"Eleven more rows, Ellen... and that chore will be done James remarked at supper...

"I believe they were made quick, that is, with buttermilk and a pleasant hazelnut...

"Eleven more rows!" we echoed. "Yes! James nodded. 'Now, if I just had a bit of extra help...

"He went then to feed the cows, who get their food in part from the grassy old orchard and paddock...

"So lovely, the sunset was, the colors that massed, and floated across the way to us in eternity...

"Possibly he justified himself by reflecting, in the back of his mind, that she was disposed to find him irresistible...

"All of which is to say, it is unfair to your mother to suppose as you do, that she was striking at you in this episode...

"So Richard is to, forgive her blunder, with a heart full of love. The group-up thing to do...

"I'd like to know who is right, and in any way you can help me forget what my mother did to me...

"Dear P.F.: Your husband's sane slices of gully remove following your mother's death...

"In condensing your letter, I've omitted such details as the fact that your mother was newly a widow when the affair was opened...

"Dianna Ruby Hicken became the bride of Blair Horace Sencabaugh in a ceremony performed at the Trinity United Church...

away above the dark of a fir-clad hill. Orange and scarlet, gold and royal purple, turned to pastel shades...

But the mangled rows heaved away along the field. Twice, because they were not lifting by hand...

"Butts to the wind, Archie!" "I'm a grinner, recalling from my youth, a reminder from his father to a helper, given to weaving dreams...

We reached the end of the last row, when the dusk had deepened and faded. Through the haze of the moon of the month was rising in the east...

Over the east from Alderlea, the lights from the P.A.I. grounds will, by this, be brightening the silver backdrop of night-sky. Gathered thither from the ends of the island and afar...

"Oh dear" one or another of this "one day" will say wearily when they see the bride and groom...

Summer Ceremony Is Held At Baptist Church Grand Bay

The United Baptist Church, Grand Bay, held the scene of a July wedding when Bertha Elma, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Maxwell...

The bride's mother wore an arnel dress of brown print, white and cream, decorated for the occasion. The Ladies' Aid of the church served the refreshments...

For travelling, the bride wore a sheath dress of green silk lined with white lace and white accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses...

The church was decorated with bouquets of red, white and pink carnations, and the guests' pewes were marked with white bouquets.

The organist, Miss B. L. Moise, accompanied the soloist, Miss Barbara Duval, of Summerside, who sang "I'll Walk Beside You" prior to the ceremony...

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a floor-length gown of white tulle organza over taffeta, embroidered with flowers...

The groom, wearing a white tulle suit, was accompanied by his best man, Mr. Gordon Trowsdale, and his bridesmaids, Misses Mary and Helen Trowsdale...

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the church hall which was decorated for the occasion. The bride's table was centered with three tiers of wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom.

The guest book was circulated by Miss Ann Hur, friend of the bride, while the bridesmaids and groomsmen were seated at the bride served.

A reception was received from the bride's aunt, Mrs. Frank Roper and two daughters, Lucy and Hazel.

Following the ceremony the bride and groom flew to Moncton, N.B. For travelling the bride donned a beige dress in straw hat linen, and green accessories...

Prior to her marriage the bride was honored with several miscellaneous showers.

MARY HAWORTH Mate Confesses Affair Marital Peace Vanishes

Dear Mary Haworth: Some time ago, shortly after my mother's death, my husband told me he couldn't sleep because of something on his mind which he said that he was young and he had a brief affair with my mother. It was then my husband informed her of his death with my mother. He asked me not to tell my husband again. I was slow to please to let him stay on as a boarder, at least.

I kept after him to tell me who started the affair and from what he said I talked myself into believing it was her fault as she wasn't too crazy about me. I thought maybe it was her fault, but she bickered with everyone.

At any rate I don't believe in divorce, besides, we can't afford to. I took him back against my better judgment; now I find can't bear his touch. We fight all the time. He says he can't understand me. It's pretty awful.

I'd like to know who is right, and in any way you can help me forget what my mother did to me. I have a daughter and a nephew whom I love very much and wouldn't want to be in tears of this sortid history.

Dear P.F.: Your husband's sane slices of gully remove following your mother's death which drove him to confess to you in a state of abolition, suggests that he feels that he was your aggressor in their wrongdoing.

In condensing your letter, I've omitted such details as the fact that your mother was newly a widow when the affair was opened, also that your husband was drinking excessively in those years, and admits being drunk more or less when they sinned.
