N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK (AP)—A rampaging rally quietly faded away on the stock market last week. It was a week that left many guessing about what comes next. The market broke badly the previous week after the federal reserve board raised the requirements for buying and selling stocks on credit.

The move was taken as a warning to Wall street about the booming bull market in stocks that has been going on for 16 months.

On Jan. 7 the recovery from that break started, and it continued strongly on Monday of last week. Some 75 per cent of the previous loss was retraced in those two days.

But on the remaining four days of last week, the stock market almost marked time as it drifted lower.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 50 cents on the week and closed at $152.30. The average now stands $1.30 above the low point of last week's break.

SELLOFF SHOULD FOLLOW
If the market now follows along the way brokers feel that it should, there will be a selloff to deter-
