You'll enjoy the Winter

through all its varying moods if you have your clothing interlined with Fibre Chamols. This wonderful fabric is so light that you never notice its presence in a garment till you get out into the wind and cold, then you realize that you are cozily warm even though the light clad Fibre Chamols is a complete non-conductor of heat and cold, not the strongest wintry blast can penetrate it, nor can the natural warmth of the body escape through it—This explanation and the fact that it sells for 25c a yard gives the whole story, and easily proves that for health and comfort's sake you can't do without it.

BICYCLE POSSIBILITIES.

The Mechanical Limitations of the Wheel About Reached.
Here we reach the domain of speculation. The bicycle has changed many times in its form, and always for the better, each form has been on its multitude of improvements, and no part of the modern wheel has escaped the ingenuity of the mechanic in his aim to secure better material, stronger connections, lighter weight, greater speed, grace of design, and comfort for the rider. Every day is a day of new records and of the revelation of new possibilities. Four hundred and odd miles for a single day, thirty miles in an hour, a hundred miles in three hours and forty seven minutes, a single mile in one minute and—these are some of the records of the bicycle which would be true only for the week in which it was written.

Six years ago one of the best-informed and most progressive of our cycling authorities, Mr. F. P. Prill, editor of "The Wheel" writing of the safety bicycle of that day, mentioned the drawbacks of the pneumatic tire as being "its large size, and the necessity of replenishing the air to keep it properly distended." He advised that the ideal safety should not be geared too high, but only to fifty-four or fifty-seven inches, "except in the case of strong riders." The gearing of the man's wheel of 1896 is from sixty-three inches upward, a gearing of seventy inches being about the average, and eighty not at all uncommon; while the woman's wheel of to-day, when geared at sixty, is easily propelled by a state of imperiousness. Saddles, tires, frames, bearings, handle-bars, cranks, spokes, and rims have been lightened, simplified, improved, and from year to year made to displace the cruder product of the year before.

Where is the limit? No man can tell; but so far as it relates to the common pedometic bicycle of to-day, the practical limit would seem to be not far distant. A year or two hence will probably witness the introduction of a general adoption of motor carriages in certain parts of the country where the roads have been improved. Meanwhile the bicycle now in common use will hold its way, with such improvements in detail, and perhaps in form, as will add to its usefulness, and to the comfort and security of the rider.

CONSTIPATION

The bone of many lives
It's the cause of nine-tenths of the head aches, stomach disorders, fits of "blues," drowsiness, etc., which curse the lives of thousands. Doses of cheap purgative pills, while they may give temporary relief, only increase the trouble, as their use, (Kidney and Liver) Pills not only give RELIEF, but they also CURE. They set to work the bowel wall, and stimulate the secretions, that in a short time the use of medicine is unnecessary. Price 50 cents a box.

AN ORIGINAL JOURNAL.

A Traveling Newspaper Which is on a Tour of the World.
Two Parisian journalists have established the most original newspaper in the world, a paper without an editorial home or any precise day of publication, which is being issued in various parts of the earth.

This unique sheet is called En Route and it is edited and published wherever its enterprising editors happen to be, says the Kansas City Journal. They are touring the world on the American globe trotting plan of so many months to each famous sight.
En Route is an eight-page paper, and is illustrated. In spite of all obstacles in each city in which its editors stop, they manage to get out the paper and make money on it, all within an incredibly few days. A complete issue is published in several languages.

The strangest part of all is that, while the two men started out with the idea of having this traveling newspaper pay only a portion of their expenses, they never managed to get out the paper and make money on it, all within an incredibly few days. A complete issue is published in several languages.

A MAN'S VIEWS.

He Talks of Girls Who Can Wear Short Bicycle Suits.
"It is astonishing," said the other morning as he perched himself on the balustrade of the balcony of a summer hotel, "how really few people understand anatomy and what is really an artistic figure."

"Now, there is that little Blank girl, who has the proud distinction of wearing the shortest bicycle gown on the coast. The gossipers tear her to pieces and say it is to show her feet and ankles. Possibly it is. Possibly she does not know any more than the gossipers that while her feet are not large and her legs are not small, they are very badly shaped and contrary to all rules of art."

"It reminds me of the time we were getting up some theatricals here some years ago. The leading part was called for short skirts."

"That was before the bicycle girl had swept all such hesitancy about revealing the fact that her pedal extremities are attached to legs to the musty recesses of the dark ages."

"One by one the belles read the part and though dying to play it, would not promise to dress for it as required."

"My friend, who was getting the thing up, was in despair, and was about to let the whole affair slide, when an old friend of his arrived. She was a very bright, dashing girl, and up to a lot of fun. She went to him and offered herself for the part."

"He determined that if that play came off after all the pow-wow there had been about it, it should be a howling success. He hesitated with the air of a New York manager engaging a leading woman for a Broadway theater production."

"The girl thought he doubted her earnestness and said:—
"I don't mind wearing the short skirts and if you cast me for the part I'm sure we will make a perfect success of it."

"Yes—yes—but—that is, can you wear short skirts?" he asked.
"She could. There never was anything given in these parts that was the success that play was. It was produced a second time, and there was hardly room to anchor the yachts in the harbor."

"They arranged most impromptu boxes in the ball room at the end of which was the stage. Those boxes were auctioned off and the old ladies whose waifs or orphans (or whatever they called it) the play was to benefit, rose and called her blessed."

"The other girls were green with envy, but she was right in it—there wasn't a thing on this coast, from the club to town, she could not have had had she wanted it."

"So, I think before a young woman goes in for cycling she should learn to walk or not she will wear short skirts," as my friend said. "That little Blank girl can't."—New York Telegram.

Why is it that "femininity" for want of a better word—seems to be an almost wholly feminine attribute? Rarely, if ever, do you come across a man with that small, shy, stealthy streak in his nature that we recognize as "catty." It isn't innate to man, and he hasn't time to cultivate it. Yet among women it is unusual not to find some traces of it, even in the largest, kindest nature. It is chiefly engendered by sewing societies and the like; in other words, narrow lives. Although "small" in one sense, and although, of course, by no means ranking with the seven deadly sins, this feminine quality manages to play some pretty desperate havoc in the world. It makes mischief wherever it goes. Gossip, busybodyism, malice, uncharitableness, slander, and many other peace-destroying things must follow directly in its wake. Indirectly it induces all sorts of evils. Every one who has taken the trouble to reflect upon the "sisters three and such branches of learning" must acknowledge that it is the little things of life that really count for the most; it is they that have a way of turning the tide of events, that, in the most insignificant word or act sometimes shaping destiny itself. But there is no small thing responsible for larger, more impressive results than this same feminine prerogative. It is one that women need not be proud of.—New York Evening Sun.

A Teetotal Lecture.
"Here's danger in the glass, Beware, lest it enslave. They who have drained it find, alas! Too often early graves. It sparkles to allure, with its rich, ruby light. There is no antidote of cure. Only its course to fight. It changes men to brutes; makes women bow their heads; fills homes with anguish, want, distress, and takes from children bread. Then dash the glass away, and from the serpent flee; Drink pure cold water day by day, and walk GOD'S FOOTSTOOL FREE!"
This Rubber-Tired World.
A rough estimate of the number of bicycle riders in this country places the amount at between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000. Considering the latter number to be a fairly conservative estimate, the startling fact confronts us that 14.2 per cent. of the entire population of the country ride the wheel. A figure found, averaging the length of these wheels at 5 1/2 feet each, finds that by pulling them end to end they would reach a distance of 55,000,000 feet, or over 1,030 miles.

Cripple

The iron grasp of scrofula has no mercy upon its victims. This demon of the blood is often not satisfied with causing dreadful sores, but racks the body with the pains of rheumatism until Hood's Sarsaparilla cures.
"Nearly four years ago I became afflicted with scrofula and rheumatism."

Made Well

Running sores broke out on my thighs. Pieces of bone came out and an operation was contemplated. I had rheumatism in my legs, drawn up out of shape. I lost appetite, could not sleep. I was a perfect wreck. I continued to grow worse and finally gave up the doctor's treatment to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Soon appetite came back, the sores commenced to heal. My limbs straightened out and I threw away my crutches. I am now stout and hearty and am farming, whereas four years ago was a cripple. I gladly recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla. Wedding Rings

"WELL, SAM, since the engagement ring wears so well these long eight years you bought from G. G. Juby, I accept your proposal if you promise to buy the Wedding Ring from him also. My friend Nell was married a few days ago, and you should see the beautiful ring she has, and oh, so cheap. She says Mr. G. G. Juby has a fine assortment from 14k to 18k, and he buys them from the largest establishment in Canada, and they will last a lifetime, and you know one wedding ring must do these hard times."
"Agreed, I will go and buy the ring from G. G. Juby, Watchmaker and Jeweler, Charlottetown."
