

DR. AND MRS. A. E. JOHNSTON

Island Doctor And Bride Sail On S. S. Corinthia

A lovely summer wedding was solemnized Wednesday afternoon, July 3rd, at St. Philip's Anglican Church, Halifax, when Reverend H. Rhodes - Cooper united in marriage Bette Joyce Wilton, daughter of Lieutenant Commander P. K. Wilton and the late Mrs. Wilton of Halifax and Saskatoon, and Dr. Albert Ernest Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Johnston, Montague P.E.I.

The church was attractively decorated with yellow and white mums and the guest pews were marked with bows of Johnston tartan and lily-of-the-valley sprigs. The wedding music was played by P. Teale and soloist was Miss Muriel Hurst of Charlottetown.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a model gown fashioned in pure silk organza. The bodice featured shirred sleeves, a square neckline outlined with appliqued lace and medallions of the lace were repeated on the full hoop skirt. Her matching headdress held a chapel-length veil and she carried a bouquet of yellow sweet-heart roses outlined with flowers of white, tied with Johnston tartan ribbon.

The bridal attendants, Miss Madise O'Brien, Windsor Forks, N.S., and Miss Gail Johnston, cousin of the groom, of Charlottetown, were gowned in similarly-styled waltz length gowns of Nile green and blue embossed organza featuring organza cummerbunds and matching floral headresses. Their identical bouquets were of mixed yellow and white flowers. The flower girl, little Nancy McKeercher, niece of the bride from Ottawa, wore yellow embossed organza and she carried a bouquet of shasta daisies.

Dr. Johnston was attended by Kent Ellis as best man, and Dr. Allan MacLeod and Robert Vandierstine as ushers.

The wedding reception was held at the Lord Nelson Hotel and receiving with the bridal couple were Mrs. P.K. Wilton, wearing navy blue silk organza fashioned with a full skirt and white accessories, and Mrs. Leon Johnston, who chose a navy blue silk crepe dress with navy lace inserts and white accessories.

Toast to the bride was proposed by Victor Brett.

For travelling, the bride chose a navy blue linen dress with matching accessories of red and navy. Her corsage was of white gardenias. The couple left for points in Ontario and Quebec, and on July 12, they will sail from Montreal aboard S.S. Corinthia for Europe where they will reside.

The bride is a graduate of Victoria General Hospital, and the groom is a graduate of Dalhousie Medical School.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Small Woman Of 90 Still Rules In Her Own Home

On a vacation, planned to last until the week goes out, we find we are once more back to the home of our childhood, again to rest beneath the shelter of its eaves. The wind of night comes up now from the Strait, salty-sweet, having gathered scent of season from elderly fields in passing, to stir in a refreshing breath the curtains of the window and, it is true, to be a little lonesome about the roof. And we, who revisit these familiar surroundings, could think we are that child of once about to "say prayers" and slip then beneath the covers, and go wandering in dreams up those engaging trails which belong only to youth.

We could think so, if it were not that a little girl with fetching freckles on her cheeks and long hair braids, our companion on this holiday is close by, fast asleep in the quaint bed of this room. She, even as we when a small one, has left young and kindly angels to guard her and all, who shall presently sleep in this house of her kin, when lights go out here and hereabout, and the peace of the stilly hours has come.

"We must" she said this evening assembling to her neat suitcase her Sunday dress and other items for the trip "see everything about that place...the brook in the orchard, the field where the first farmhouse sat, and the Balm O' Gilead's (for young whistles) grew, and..."

"We'll drink at the lower brook" we chuckled "where the minnows boat, and make rainbow shades on the surface with a balsamy twig; and walk the lane to the shore..."

"And bathe and make castles in the sand" she nodded, "and enjoy our every minute of it."

So she anticipated with high hopes. And it came to mind that even though her every wish should be fulfilled in these halcyon summer days, it would not be at the time but in years which never now enter her fancy, that she will realize just how good and beautiful these all young, and summery, and golden, had been.

Shortly we will creep in quietly beside this one granddaughter of ours in this guest-room of the house where a small woman of 90 years still rules.

"I'll try not to disturb you in the morning when I'm making the breakfast" she said when we left her a few minutes ago.

Diary Good-night.

MARY HAWORTH

Girl Meets Man In Subway

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a girl of 20, a stickler for etiquette; and a commuter by subway to my daily toil. At least twice a week for the last eight months, I've seen this man going my way, to and from work.

Suddenly the stuffy, cramped and irritating ride had seemed exciting; I even look forward with anticipation to the daily struggle, since he walked into the subway car—and into my life.

If coincidences mean anything, he has been quite a series: He takes the same subway train (same time, same station, same car); occupies the opposite or next seat; changes trains (en route) for the same stop downtown, as I do.

He attends the same church and the same Sunday service that I do. And he is an eligible bachelor, apparently, to judge by his "aloneness" at church—and above reproach, to judge by his mannerly reserve (I hope he feels the same of me).

TRIED BREAKING ICE

Quite evidently he has noticed me; in fact it was his interested study of me that caught my attention—but the problem is, how can conversation be opened, correctly?

Somebody has suggested that I make the first acknowledgment, with a smile or a "hello." But since I've already dropped a book, I feel the next move is—that any further overtures on my part would be "out of order."

I keep hoping that some mutual friend will float by and provide introductions, and then things might work out perfectly. But don't you agree that nothing can be done, unless introductions are made, either by a third party or by the man himself? I believe your solution to my problem might help others, too. J.C.

STARVED FOR FELLOWSHIP

Dear J.C.: The significance of the story is that you are starved for meaningful personal relationships. You hunger to love and be loved, understandingly, in substantial companionship; and in your "real" life, that kind of support hasn't yet developed.

Thus it happens that your fancy has fixed on this fellow who caught your attention by eyeing you curiously, it seemed. (But perhaps he was only staring vacantly, thinking of something else, when you first assumed you were the object of study.)

I very much doubt that he is romantically interested in knowing you. If he were, some verbal exchange would have transpired by now. It is masculine instinct to act directly, regardless of etiquette taboos, when strongly attracted to a woman—and to bid for encouragement with a gallant civility, usually.

PASTOR MIGHT HELP

Your hero has had abundant opportunity to break the ice, if his mind were focussed upon you. He's had the chance to pick up a dropped book; to exclaim "sorry" and blame himself when bumped into; and to act as pilot and bodyguard, to make passage for you through a packed subway car. All ready-made opportunities to E.I. and Edmund Vance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Bridges, Summerside.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. C.R. Webber, pastor of Trinity United Church. Mr. Leslie Hiscott supplied the nuptial music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Eleanor Ashley, as she sang "Oh Happy Home" previous to the ceremony and "I'll Walk Beside You", while the register was being signed.

The young bride, given in marriage by her father, looked radiant in a floor length gown of white nylon tulle over taffets. The gown featured a fitted bodice of white lace and bouffant skirt with lace insets. Her finger-tip veil was held in place by a coronet of sequins and tulle. She carried a white Bible with a spray of pink roses and cascade of blue forget me nots.

NEW HAVEN W.I.

The regular monthly meeting of the New Haven W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Brewer Boyle on Wednesday, June 5th. The meeting opened in the usual manner, and roll call was answered by 15 members with an article for a white electric fan. The sum of $7 was realized from this sale.

There were 3 visitors present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved and signed. Sick committee reported 2 sick treated last month. Correspondence was read and included a letter from R. T. Holman's appeal for "Women's Day" to vote for your favorite Institute on Friday, June 21, at Holman's store. It was decided to renew membership to C.A.C. for another year. The school children received the sum of $29 for Red Shield Appeal in canvassing the district.

Plans were made for the school picnic to be at Stanhope Shore at a suitable date and to treat the children to ice cream. Secretary is to write about securing a play and to advertise it if available. Members to make lunches. It was moved and second that a suitable gift be sent to a former member who has moved from the district. The program committee for next month is Mrs. Darrach and Mrs. T. Devereaux. The collection for evening was $1.35. The next meeting is to be at Mrs. Agnes Cavanaugh's and roll call to be sent for each letter in name. A bird contest was put on by Mrs. MacDonald and won by Mrs. Richard MacPhee. Meeting closed with the Queen after which a dainty lunch was served by the hostess and several members.

SLUMBER SONG

Sweetly cool and comfy is the new crop of abbreviated sleepwear and so easy to care for, too. Like a child's romper is this short sleeping pajama in dacron and cotton fabric. The color is yellow with blue smocking. The hem is elasticized. A nice number for the traveler because it takes up so little suitcase space and is so easily washed and drip-dried.
