Home And School Fed. Has 'Stimulating Day'

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

"Thins has been a stimulating day", guest speaker Harold Simpson, of Amherst, N.S., told members of the P.E.I. Federation of Home and School Associations at the close of the federation's semi-annual meeting in Kensington last night.

Mr. Simpson, a former national president of the Canadian Home and School Federation and a lifetime member of the organization, commented "and this is perhaps one of the basic purposes of the home and school movement."

"There is a tendency to be complacent, to conform", he said, "so we fail to recognize that we are living in an age of tremendous challenge".

In referring to a discussion earlier pertaining to the theme of the meeting "education and the struggle for excellence," Mr. Simpson said "we have been talking about challenge to excellence and this whole movement has taken exception and developed around that challenge".

He recalled that over a period of 60 years the world had moved from a horse and buggy age to one of interplanetary space travel and added "change has been the order of our lifetime and will continue to be so."

Mr. Simpson's speech climaxed a busy day in which 117 delegates from 32 of the 45 associations across the Island took part in lively discussions and listened to a number of speakers. Also in attendance were 16 members of the provincial executitive and two school inspectors.

The meeting opened at 2:30 yesterday afternoon with the greeting of the home and school prayer by the federation president, M.F. Hagan.

In an address entitled "Our Purpose" by Rev. Keith Hobson, it was stated "most people, be they the teacher or student, are not interested in excellence, but only in doing a reasonably adequate job."

Following Mr. Hobson's address the members broke up into five discussion groups led by Dr. K.A. Parker, Col. Leo F. MacDonald, Mr. Hobson, John Martin and Mr. Hagan.

TWO RESOLUTIONS

Dr. Parker, the resolutions chairman, announced that two resolutions had been received by the federation, one from Souris and the other from the Tracadie Cross association. They will be brought before the federation's annual meeting.

Prior to the evening session a supper was served by the Kensington United Church Women followed by a social hour during which students from Kensington Regional High provided entertainment.

The evening session was centered on a lively panel discussion in which Charles Campbell, principal, Morell Regional, was chairman. The topic "Exploring and meeting the needs of children and youth", drew many opinions from panel members. Miss Eleanor MacDonald, liaison teacher in city schools; Wilson Ross, principal of Central Queen's Regional; Henry MacWilliams, Charlottetown association member; and Dr. J. Maloney, member of the Charlottetown School Board.

Dr. Maloney said that a child goes to school for two reasons - factual knowledge, and to think, but "nobody ever teaches a child to think", he added.

He felt that history is a useless subject unless it can be used in the future. He said "never go back unless to learn something. Always look to the future, history never repeats itself."

Toronto Story Incorrect

A Toronto story which stated that the only Protestant to receive an honorary degree from St. Dunstan's University, was Rev. Dr. J. Sutherland Bonnell, an internationally know Presbyterian minister was incorrect.

Chief Justice Thane A. Campbell of this province received the honorary degree of doctor of laws at the 108th convocation exercises in 1962, and thus he was the first Protestant who was honored in this way.

The first honorary degree was granted St. Dunstans in 1960 when Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec, was the recipient.

PWC Head Stresses College's Advantages

KENSINGTON — "Our biggest disadvantage at this time is that Prince of Wales College cannot be run as a business-like institution". Dr. Frank MacKinnon, college principal, said yesterday afternoon in an informal talk before the members of the Prince County Ministerial Association.

Because of its present set-up, PWC "is a sitting duck for political interference", said the doctor, as are all other public owned institutions in the country.

He was speaking in connection with the movement being carried out by several education minded citizens in P.E.I. to have Prince of Wales promoted to being a degree-granting institution.

A business-like, non- political executive is necessary before any college can operate to the maximum, Dr. MacKinnon said. As is the case with PWC at this time". Most people will not give a nickel to a government controlled institution.

"Prince of Wales in 1963 has to keep up with the times. Today society is facing just as great a challenge as it did in any past period of history, and our education must meet the new challenges.

"Present university and college facilities across Canada are not adequate to meet the age of industrial challenge and successfully teach our young people how to think."

Dr. MacKinnon indicated that he definitely believed Prince of Wales was ready to become a degree- granting college.

BEGAN WITH LESS

He said that numerous Canadian universities that are well established today began with less than half the facilities that are now available at PWC. In addition he said that "just a few blocks away PWC will next year have access to five and a half million dollars worth of culture and education with the completion of the Fathers of Confederation memorial building."

In regard to student population the doctor said that Prince of Wales now has "more students in third and fourth years (265) than many degree granting institutions have in four years.

"Prince Edward Island has 17 regional high schools. Where are the graduates going to be fully educated? Are they going to be sent to the mainland?

"The cry has been increasing in recent years from mainland institutions that P.E.I. doesn't look after enough of its own college students. Prince of Wales leases this land".

The college motto is 'I Serve', said Dr. MacKinnon, "that's what Prince of Wales wants to do."

RCAF Has Discontinued Local Mercy Flights

RCAF Greenwood will no longer carry out mercy flights from this province, generally to Halifax, it was learned yesterday.

In its place a commercial flying service will perform this operation, the cost of which is believed will run to about $50 per hour. The commercial organization expected to conduct the service is said to be based at Moncton N.B.

It is rumored that at least two such flights have been made with the total costs ranging around $150 per flight.

Air Force headquarters at Ottawa said yesterday there had been no change in policy in this regard, but the RCAF had been performing the service only in areas where there was no commercial organization designed for the purpose.

Formerly authorization for the service flights was given by local doctors, high officials of the health department or the chairman of the hospital commission. In future arrangements will have to be made through Moncton.

It was rumored that recently a city patient endesvoured to get an RCAF flight and was referred to Moncton. On learning the cost of the flight the plan was scrapped and the patient travelled by ambulance instead. The cost of the plane flight now does not include nursing services.

Information obtained from Moncton last night, stated that the airline involved is likely to be Atlantic Central Airlines, which was founded about five years ago.

The company has been carrying out mercy flights for the past few months, employing twin-engined Pipe Apache aircraft, equipped with the necessary survival and emergency equipment.

Their base of operations is at the Moncton Flying Club near the Moncton airport, some five miles east of the city.

Bureau Changes Policy On Adoption Of Babies

Miss Elizabeth Torrey recently appointed director of the Protestant Family Service Bureau was welcomed at the monthly meeting of the board of directors held at the Rendezvous Restaurant, Tuesday evening.

In the absence of the president, G. Reg. MacNutt, the vice-president, R.J. Rogers presided.

Miss Torrey who undertook her duties as director three weeks ago gave some impressions of her survey of the bureau's activities which she had been able to make in the brief period since her arrival on the Island. She assured the board of her desire to make the bureau one which would serve the community and province in an effectual and special way. In turn Miss Torrey was assured of the support of the board members.

The policy of the bureau regarding infant adoptions was carefully considered. It was pointed out that adoptions had been confined to Prince Edward Island homes and this often meant the necessity of boarding infants for unnecessarily long periods when there were homes outside the province who desired to adopt children. It was decided to change this policy so that in the future babies will also be given for adoption outside the province.

The director stated that at present there are 20 babies under the care of the bureau awaiting adoption and she will be happy to confer with couples anywhere who wish to adopt a baby and can meet the necessary requirements.

The chairman reviewed the progress of the United Fund campaign in which the bureau participates. He explained that several factors had caused some delay in obtaining the returns, but the campaign leaders are confident of not only reaching but surpassing the objective. To this end the canvassers throughout the province are being urged to get the job done without further delay.

The meeting agreed that the "United Way" has proven to be a vast relief from the previous method of a multiplicity of individual fund-raising campaigns and gave assurance of its full and continued support.

An expression of sympathy was tendered Mr. MacNutt in the death of his mother Mrs. Robert MacNutt which occurred Tuesday at Malpeque.

ONE EMPTY SEAT

Standings in the 30-seat House are 18 Conservatives and 11 Liberals. One seat is vacant due to the resignation of former Conservative Lorne Monkley who was appointed to head the Civil Service Commission.

Renovations are to be carried out on all three floors of the Province Building. They will include cleaning and painting of walls, filling cracks in plaster, laying of new carpeting and possibly changes in the Legislative Assembly room in which the rail will be moved closer to the walls, eliminating the gallery on that floor.

Yesterday a group of government officials toured the building, listing what they felt was necessary in the way of renovations.

In the group were provincial Secretary J. David Stewart, Public Works Minister Philip Matheson, deputy public works minister Gordon White, public works engineer John Gilmore and deputy provincial secretary Wendall MacKay. Accompanying the group was Dr. Frank MacKinnon, president of the Fathers of Confederation Memorial Citizens Foundation.

Montague Curling Club Plans Start Of Winter Operations

MONTAGUE — The Montague Curling Club will officially open its winter season on Saturday of this week.

The plant was started on the night of Nov. 4 and an exact record of procedure was been kept to date. This included the taking of samples of sand from different areas on the surface after the sand had been levelled.

The Olson method of making ice was followed, that is wetting the sand to a depth of six inches using approximately 2,000 gallons of water. Following the wetting the plant was turned on and a succession of fine sprays applied.

The weather during this period was quite warm and on one occasion the day temperature reached a high of 57 and at night dropped to only 48.

On Tuesday of this week the surface was whitened by using hydrated lime, the surface was then sprayed with a fine spray and yesterday the lines and circles were painted on and following several fine sprays today it is expected the surface will be ready for the first workout with the rink being in full swing Saturday night.

The club is looking forward to its most successful season and to an increase in membership. Schedules are to be drawn up immediately. The reason for this early start so that considerable curling can take place before the Christmas lull.

It has been asked especially by the ladies' club for the past year or so and they felt this would be better even if it meant closing down earlier in the spring.

The ice committee has worked hard and long to meet these wishes and it is the hope of this committee that all will take advantage of this early start.
