Canadian Defence Chiefs Puzzled By Row In U.S.

By DAVE MCINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian defence officials and the armed forces are taken aback by the defence row in Washington. Because of differences between the Canadian and American systems of government they find it hard to understand how United States officers can become embroiled in public debate on policy without getting sacked immediately. One of the big arguments now raging in Washington concerns the chiefs of staff system: Whether it should be retained or supplanted by a single authority responsible to the defence secretary. It was learned here Thursday that Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes has no intention of changing the Canadian system. The four chiefs are responsible to the minister for their

Liberal Party Convention Is Snowed Under By Resolutions

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal party's national leadership convention has been snowed under with ideas from grassroots organizations to put the Liberals back in power in Ottawa.

They are contained in some 360 resolutions which have been received by the convention's provisional resolutions committee. Greatest emphasis is placed on more federal aid for university education and additional assistance for agriculture.

Former transport minister George Marler, chairman of the committee, told a press conference Monday that other main resolutions propose more federal help for low-rental housing, free trade with the United Kingdom, a national contributory pension plan and increased grants to the provinces for hospital construction.

REPORT WEDNESDAY

Mr. Marler, who is expected to be named chairman of the resolutions committee by the convention said the committee will start considering the proposals today. He hopes it will be possible for the committee to make its report Wednesday.

Mr. Marler said he anticipates that the convention will approve from 15 to 20 major resolutions reshaping Liberal party concepts and policies. The committee already had drafted 16 or 17 resolutions on matters of Liberal policy, many including suggestions contained in proposals from Liberal organizations.

Two resolutions propose Canadian recognition of Communist China but Mr. Marler said he would be surprised if the convention dealt with that subject. Other resolutions range from rewriting of "O Canada" in an easier-to-sing key to a suggestion that national Liberal conventions be held every four years, every two years and even every year.

Mr. Marler said resolutions approved by the convention will not necessarily form the party's campaign program for the next election.

While the resolutions would be something of an election manifesto.
