SAKE IS

U.S. Steel

CLEVELAND (AP)—It is "neither surprising nor alarming" that steel demand and production have levelled off, the magazine Steel says. Production was steady last week at 95 per cent of rated capacity.

An uptrend must end sometime, says the weekly trade journal, noting that the input production rate was 75 per cent when the climb began early this year. Both demand and production should remain at the high level most of the second quarter, Steel adds.

"All indications point to a good level of business among steel consumers through the second quarter. If anyone does find he has ordered more steel than he will consume this quarter, he is unlikely to cancel out his order. With a steel-price increase likely at mid-year, steel in inventory will be better than money in the bank."

New Name For Agency

Mr. Allan L. Thompson, president of the James Fisher Company, Ltd., announces a change in the company's name to be effective April 1, 1955. Henceforth it will be known as Thompson-Petersen Advertising Agency Ltd.

"To change a name as old-established and respected as that of The James Fisher Company, is a step that calls for very serious consideration," said Mr. Thompson, but we believe the new name does two important things that the old name does not.

"First, it closely identifies present top management, myself, as president, and Mr. Harold V. (Pete) Petersen, vice-president, with the name of the company. Second, the words 'Advertising Agency' describe the company's business."

The James Fisher Company.

Limited, was founded in 1920 by the late James Fisher—a pioneer in Canadian advertising. It is a tribute to the soundness of his policy that the company continues to direct the advertising for many of his early accounts.

Mr. Thompson, president for the past seven years, "grew up" with The James Fisher Company and his service extends back more than 30 years. Mr. Petersen first became associated with the company in 1924 and became vice-president in 1950. There is no change in the company's policies or in personnel. Mr. Thompson will continue as president. Mr. Petersen as vice-president and the present Board of Directors—H. M. Duff, George E. Fowles, Sidney G. Law, George A. Martin and Harold C. Mason—will continue to serve Thompson-Petersen Advertising Agency Ltd.

New Concept Of Gov't Seen Probable In Britain

(By Alan Harvey, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON (CP)—Britain went under new management Wednesday and people braced for a big change in the concept of government.

Under Sir Winston Churchill it was pretty much a one-man show. Under Sir Anthony Eden it will be more of a team effort. The "Big Four" in Britain's affairs will probably be Eden, Finance Chief Richard Austen Butler, Defence Minister Harold Macmillan and the Marquis of Salisbury, lord president of the council.

Butler, only 52, confident and assured, a smooth hand at public relations, has been a success at the treasury and is bound to be a big name in British politics for a long time to come. When he has an announcement to make affecting Canada he calls Canadian correspondents in to tell them about it.

Macmillan, 60, keeps in the background but has considerable influence. His family, the Cecils, were born to rule. He is a direct descendant of William Cecil, the first Lord Burleigh, for 40 years the power behind the throne in the days of Queen Elizabeth I.

DOGGED WORKER

Eden certainly will be the top man but in a phrase beloved of British politicians he will probably be primus inter pares — first among equals.

Under Churchill, cabinet meetings often were dazzling monologues. Eden may well be more like a chairman of committee, paying close heed to the sense of the meeting.

Churchill had flair, panache, flashes of genius. He leaned heavily on intuition seasoned by broad experience. Eden is more the workhorse, accustomed to learning his brief, sticking doggedly to his point whatever the discouragements.

Some critics might say Eden carries studied moderation to the point of dullness. Churchill, right or wrong, could never be dull.

MANY DIFFERENCES

Churchill was a hard taskmaster, and sometimes an erratic one. There were underruns of criticism at the old man's methods in the last few years, even from those who freely admitted his Olympian qualities. Churchill kept unearthy hours and had his idiosyncrasies.

It will be strictly business under Eden, the trained foreman-office man. The contrasts can be multiplied. Sir Winston has had experience in 11 government departments through 50 years in politics. The new prime minister has served in only three. Virtually all his

Opinion Mainly Favorable To First Harris Budget

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians gave general welcome to tax reductions announced in the federal budget and tabbed them as a stimulant to business.

The welcome, however, was mixed with criticisms, especially from sections of the economy which felt their needs had been overlooked.

J. A. Calder, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said Finance Minister Harris had recognized that business and employment both needed a shot in the arm, and described Mr. Harris' approach as realistic.

The two-per-cent reduction in corporate income tax would encourage manufacturers, though the remaining 45-per-cent remained "unduly high". Reduction in personal income rates should give a fillip to purchasing power generally. He regretted that the minister did not see fit to provide safeguards for Canadian industries whose products were being replaced by "excessively low-priced imports."

"STRATEGICALLY CORRECT"

James Muir, president and chairman of the Royal Bank of Canada, said Mr. Harris had made "a strategically correct approach to his problem," and added: "If successful, his policy will promote an increase in the national product to the point where his basis of taxation could achieve the results he desires."

A different view came from George Burt, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CL), who said the budget is opposed to "the basic economic purposes of organized labor."

The reduction in personal income taxes, he stated, did not put enough purchasing power in the hands of the people who most need it, and his union was opposed to reduction in corporation taxes.

DISAPPOINTED INDUSTRIES

Among the most disappointed were the woollens and tobacco industries.

Francis E. Cley of Huntington, Que., chairman of the wool cloth section of the Primary Textiles Institute, said announcement that there would be no tariff increase on imports from Britain "had disappointed many thousands of Canadians who rely on the industry for their livelihood."

Ruinous competition from abroad he said, had caused more than 30 Canadian wool-cloth mills to close down in recent years.

Fred Cunningham, chairman of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Association, said present taxes on cigars and tobacco, unchanged by the budget, are "unrealistic discrimination against tobacco products."

Manufacturers described as a bitter blow the decision to retain the special 15-per-cent excise tax on radio and television sets.

"We thought Ottawa could at least have reduced the tax by five per cent," said Stuart D. Brownlee, manager of the Radio and Television Manufacturers Association of Canada. "That would still have meant quite a sizeable source of revenue."

William A. Wecker, president of General Motors of Canada, said the reduction in excise tax on automobiles from 15 per cent to 10 per cent "is certainly welcome" but regretted that the government could not see its way clear to remove the tax entirely.

He regretted, too, that some retailers was not given to dealers who had already paid the old tax on new cars.

LOGICAL STEP

E. C. Row, president of Chrysler Corporation of Canada, thought the excise-tax reduction was a logical step if the industry was to be expected to maintain a high level of employment.

Rhys M. Sale, president of Ford Motor Company of Canada, said the budget removed the uncertainty which had created a bottleneck in car sales for the last several weeks. The tax reductions should mean a brighter economic picture for Canada.

Rubber companies welcomed removal of the 10-per-cent excise tax on tires and tubes.

R. C. Berklinshaw, president of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, said repeal of the tax should stimulate sales. I. G. Needles, president of B. F. Goodrich Company said it would give the Canadian rubber industry a better chance to compete with American products.

PLASTICS WELCOME

The plastics industry welcomed the 7 1/2-per-cent tariff imposed on importation of polyethylene, basic ingredient of many plastic products.

A spokesman for Canadian Industries (1954) Ltd., said that about three-quarters of the polyethylene used in plastics in Canada is imported from the United States and the tariff should tend to equalize the position of American and Canadian manufacturers.

Mining and exploration circles were cheered by the budget action of making permanent certain tax concessions in the mining and oil fields.

Mrs. Viola MacMillan, president of the Canadian Prospectors and Developers Association, called it a step in the right direction which would give mining companies further incentive.

MAY COME TO CANADA

VIENNA (Reuters)—Forty-six Greek citizens living in Hungary since the time of the Greek civil war may be allowed to leave the country soon to join relatives now in Canada. Reports Saturday said arrangements have been made by Dr. W. S. Stanbury, national commissioner for Canadian Red Cross, recently in Budapest.

U. S. To Probe Cheese Imports

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower directed the tariff commission Saturday to investigate whether certain cheese imports should be placed under a 1953 proclamation establishing annual import quotas for a number of dairy products.

The White House said the president acted at the request of Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson. For reasons of language it appeared some imports of cheese had not been regarded as subject to the proclamation.

"The department of agriculture, however, views these cheeses as indistinguishable from those admittedly covered by the proclamation and considered their uncontrolled importation a serious threat to the effectiveness of the proclamation," the announcement said.

Atom Testers Take Holiday

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Atom testers set off an infant device Saturday, then paused for the Easter weekend.

They had planned a double feature but the second test was postponed because the wind direction and speed turned unfavorable.

No experiment was planned for Easter Sunday. The next will not come before Tuesday, with a weather evaluation conference set for today.

Saturday's detonation from a 300-foot tower on Yucca Flat at 4:30 a.m. (7:30 a.m. EST) was watched by 24 British and Canadian observers.

The explosion was seen as a quick flash in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Salt Lake City.
