Weaving a Fatal Web

OF EVIDENCE ABOUT THE ASSASSINS OF DR. CRONIN—RECITAL IN COURT OF HOW HE WAS LURED TO HIS DEATH.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 29.—Slowly, but none the less surely, the state is weaving a fatal web of evidence about the "assassins" of Dr. Cronin. The prosecution is relying upon small points as well as large ones to refute the stories and explanations of the defence. This fact was shown in an interesting manner to-day. Coughlin has always claimed that when he hired the famous white horse, which is believed to have driven Dr. Cronin to his death, he did it for a friend who wanted to make a visit down South Halstead Street. Had this story been true when the stranger returned to the livery stable with the rig he would have driven in from the south. To-day Mrs. Patrick Dinan, the wife of the livery stable keeper, swore that she saw the stranger drive into the stable about 9.30, on the night of May 4th. He came down North Clark Street from the North, the direction in which the assassins' den lay. This knocks an important peg out of Coughlin's story, and he realized it, for he paled perceptibly when Mrs. Dinan told her story. The defence did their best to shake her but failed.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—At the Cronin trial to-day Napier Moreland, an employe of Patrick Dinan, the livery man, testified as to the facts of the hiring of the white horse on the evening of May 4, when Dr. Cronin was killed. He said that when the horse was returned, in a little over two hours, it was in the condition of a horse that had been driven very fast for the length of time he was out. The buggy was covered with sand and boulevard mud. Mrs. Conklin, at whose house Cronin last lived, was the next witness.

THE DROXY MESSAGE TO DR. CRONIN.

Mrs. Conklin told the story of how the doctor was called away from her house on the night of May 4. She said that at 7.20 p. m., a stranger, who seemed nervous and excited, rang the bell, and when she opened the door enquired for Dr. Cronin. He seemed reluctant to enter, but finally did so when told that the doctor was engaged. The stranger then took a seat in the waiting room. When Dr. Cronin came out of his office the man advanced and said, "Doctor Cronin, you are wanted to attend a man who has been hurt at O'Sullivan's ice office." The doctor made a remark which witness didn't hear. At that moment the man drew a card from his pocket and presented it to the doctor, and he took the card and said, "Oh, yes; what is the nature of the accident?" He said, "A man has been run over by a wagon." The doctor said, "I will be with you soon," or something to that effect.

LEFT THE TELL-TALE CARD BEHIND.

The man sat down again on the edge of a chair, the doctor turned, laying the card on the mantelpiece. The man said O'Sullivan was out of town and left word that Doctor Cronin was to attend his man. Dr. Cronin ran to his private room and gathered some bandages and cotton batting, and brought them out with his surgical case and a case of splints. Then drawing on his coat as quickly as possible, he left running, carrying the things and case in his arms. The two went hurriedly out of the house as fast as they could, and did not even shut the door. Witness heard them running down stairs. Witness went to a window and saw a buggy with a white horse attached standing before the door.

DRIVEN TO HIS DEATH.

Dr. Cronin and the man who called for him got into the buggy, which was driven northward. Mrs. Conklin gave a description of the man who came for the doctor. On the day following Dr. Cronin's disappearance witness and her husband discovered the card which the man had brought, that of O'Sullivan, the ice man. Mrs. Conklin's cross-examination brought out nothing of importance. It lasted until late in the afternoon, but the witness' statements on direct examination were not materially shaken. In reply to a question as to where Cronin kept his money, indicating a possible defence of murder for purposes of robbery, Mrs. Conklin named the bank in which the doctor kept his funds, and said she was sure he had very little with him on the night of the murder, because he never carried much money about him.

SCHAACK WAS IN NO HURRY.

T. T. Conklin, the saloon keeper with whom Cronin resided, was re-called by the state. He testified to starting out immediately after breakfast the first morning of Cronin's absence to search for him. At O'Sullivan's house the ice man was seen, and denied having sent for Cronin, or that any of his men had been hurt. Conklin then went to police headquarters, proceeding afterwards to the East Chicago Avenue police station. Captain Schaack, at the station, thought the evening time enough for an alarm. Conklin went at once to the Pinkertons. Conklin was still on the stand when the court adjourned until to-morrow.

THE SOURCE OF THE BURKE TELEGRAMS.

Through a young woman who was employed as a telegraph operator at Hancock, Mich., last May, the State Attorney has learned the identity of the senders of telegrams which Martin Burke received from that point. One of these telegrams, it is said, was addressed to Burke at Joliet, telling him to get out quickly. Another was addressed to Cooney at Chicago, telling him to take some money to Burke at Joliet to assist in the latter's flight. Other telegrams were addressed to well-known men in various Western towns along the route which Burke took on his way to Canada. It was through a leak somewhere as to these dispatches that Burke's journey was interrupted. In addition to the correspondence between Burke and the Hancock parties, it is alleged other communications passed which seriously one or more of the men recently indicted on the charge of attempted jury bribing.

INVESTIGATING HEFFER'S STORY.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28.—George A. Baker, Assistant State Attorney of Chicago, arrived here to-day. It is understood he is here in connection with the confession regarding the Cronin murder alleged to have been made by Burke to his fellow prisoners, Bob Heffer, the released prisoner, vigorously asserts that every statement he has made is true. He says Burke, despite his protests that we did not want to be near him, persisted in telling him the details of the plot with its murderous outcome. One of the three alleged recipients of Burke's confession has recently gone crazy, and another has yet to stand trial for forgery. Heffer is the only one available to the prosecution as a witness in Chicago. Baker will try to induce Chief of Police McCrea to go to Chicago as a witness.

A Woman Excommunicated

FOR LIVING IN ADULTERY WITH A MAN NOT HER HUSBAND.

A Kingston special to the Halifax Herald says: Archbishop Cleary was at Westport last week where he excommunicated a woman baptised and confirmed in the faith, but who had been notoriously defying the law of God and the church by living in adultery with a man not her husband. Four times he had admonished the woman, but she persisted in her course. She offered as a protest a bill of divorce procured from some court in the United States, "and to add," said the archbishop, "sacrilege to adultery, she produced a certificate of pretended marriage undergone by herself and the partner of her guilt at the hands of a Protestant minister in a neighboring town. This but added irreligious insult to her immorality, for there is no such thing as divorce under the Christian law." The archbishop then recited the law on the matter. The effect produced was visible upon the congregation in various forms of emotion. The anathema has caused great consternation. It draws attention to marriage under similar circumstances amongst persons of high social standing.

Ireland and Crete.

THEIR CIRCUMSTANCES ALMOST IDENTICAL.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Geoschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is expected at Hull this evening, instanced the Cretan difficulties as an example of the troubles almost certain to follow the granting of home rule to Ireland. The circumstances of the two countries were almost identical.

John Morley, speaking at Bristol to-night, referred to Chamberlain's career as a lamentable illustration of the "Rake's progress" from ultra-radicalism to ultraradicalism. He warned the liberals not to be drawn by unionists' catechising into framing a constitution for Ireland, as they were under the fire of a set of men only pretending to be acting in good faith.

Wyndham, Balfour's secretary, speaking at Dover to-night, announced that in 1890 Balfour would introduce in parliament a bill providing for a large system of land purchase.

Mount Stewart Notes.

Business is fairly brisk here now.

Mr. Egan is building a vessel of 245 tons register, which he expects to launch in a few days, for Messrs. Welsh & Owen. She is being rigged on the stocks and will be a brigantine. Mr. Frederick Douglas is foreman.

There are three vessels loading and others daily expected. McDonald & Egan are loading one, and Mr. Jas. Ross and Mr. F. H. Peer are each loading one. S. C. Clarke is loading three—two down the river and one at the bridge. Mr. Clarke loaded and sent off five, and is expecting others. Mr. Ross also loaded and sent off one in the early part of the season.

As a family medicine, Ayer's Pills excel all others. They are suited to every age and being sugar-coated, are easy to take. Though searching and thorough in effect, they are mild and pleasant in action, and their use is
