HOW TO COOK BEEFSTEAKS AND HOW TO SERVE THEM.

The Way to Do It With Mushrooms—Steak a la Chateau Viand—Charcoal Better Than Coal for Boiling Purposes.

After securing your steaks, and seeing that they are properly trimmed, season them with a little salt and pepper on both sides, rub them with olive oil and let them lie for an hour in a cold place. At the end of this time dredge them very lightly with flour and broil them. For broiling the fire should be clean and all the dampers turned on to make the heat intense and carry off all the smoke of broiling. A steak three-quarters of an inch thick should be broiled ten minutes to be red throughout, but cooked through. The first two minutes it should be held near the hot coals, so as to sear over the surface, first on one side and then on the other. Afterward it should be lifted up and kept on top of the stove or a little distance from the coals to complete the broiling. Sometimes a little fat will drip into the fire from the steak while it is cooking. In such a case lift the gridiron a little further from the coals and turn it while the smoke of the dripping passes off. As soon as steaks are done they should be spread on both sides with a little maitre d'hotel butter and served at once. They may be garnished with potatoes cut into little balls with a small potato-scoop, thoroughly washed and drained, tossed in melted butter and browned in an oven for 20 minutes. Fried onions, crisp and tender, and only delicately browned (not a dark, greasy mass, as they are generally served), make a garnish for a steak a la maitre d'hotel, which is much liked by some people. Peel and cut in slices medium-sized white onions. Lay the slices in milk for five minutes, then in flour, and fry them in a croquette basket in deep fat for eight minutes. Drain them and serve them around the steaks. A steak which is broiled over charcoal is always finer in flavor than one cooked over coal.

One of the most delicious and fashionable ways of serving steak is with slices of marrow and bordelaise sauce. To make this sauce, mince fine two shallots; add to them two gills of claret. Reduce the wine one-half, add a pint of Espagnole sauce and a pinch of fine cayenne pepper. Let the sauce cook for five minutes. Meantime, cut in six half-inch slices of marrow for each pound of steak from a piece which has been soaking in cold salted water for one hour. Throw the slices of marrow into the boiling sauce, and the moment it boils up take them out and lay them on the steaks; then pour the sauce around them.

Still another nice way of serving a steak is with mushrooms. For two steaks select 12 fine button mushrooms. Cut them into small pieces, a quarter of an inch thick, after peeling and trimming them. The canned mushrooms may be used, but are not as good as the fresh ones. To half a pint of good Espagnole sauce add half a glass of Madeira, a small piece of bay leaf, half a sprig of thyme, one clove, a little piece of celery (about half a stalk) and a sprig of parsley. Let the sauce simmer slowly for 25 minutes; then skim off the fat, if there is any, and strain it. Add the mushrooms and let them simmer in it for about six minutes—no longer, as they become tough if they are cooked too long. Pour the sauce over the steaks. If you have no Espagnole sauce at hand any strong, rich brown stock may be substituted for it. In this case the mushrooms should be tossed in a tablespoonful of butter till slightly brown, a teaspoonful of flour stirred in, and finally the stock added with half a shallot or an onion minced fine. Steaks are excellent served with Bernaise sauce. Chop fine a small onion or a shallot, put it over the stove in a little porcelain-lined sauce-pan, with two tablespoonfuls of tarragon vinegar; let it be reduced down till the vinegar has been almost evaporated, then take the pan off the fire and add five yolks of eggs and a large tablespoonful of butter, with salt and pepper. Set the saucepan in another containing boiling water. Stirring all the time with an egg-whisk or a fork; in two minutes remove the pan from the fire and add another tablespoonful of butter. In two minutes more repeat the process and add a dozen tarragon leaves cut fine. Add a tablespoonful of Espagnole and then strain it. It should be about as thick as mayonnaise.

Steak a la Chateaubriand and other dishes which bear the name of the once famous French writer show how often a man's reputation as a bon vivant may survive all his literary achievements. A steak which is served in this way should be at least an inch and a half or even an inch and three-quarters thick. It must be cut from the tenderloin or fillet, and broiled six minutes on each side. It should be garnished with potatoes prepared in the same was as for steak with maitre d'hotel butter, and served with the following sauce. Reduce a gill of sherry to one-half, add a pint of Espagnole sauce, let the sauce boil for 20 minutes and add two ounces of maitre d'hotel butter.—New York Tribune.

the heel, sew the front to the lower portion according to the notches, gathering all the extra fullness in at the toe. then join on the back. Buttonhole the edges with colored twist, and feather stitch all the seams. Tie in front with baby ribbon. If desirable the shoes can be made much higher, in which case cut little slits above the ankle and run in baby ribbon to tie in front and draw up snugly about the lower part of the limb.

The Doctor Passed Him.

GRAVENHURST, Sept. 18—About a year the newspapers contained of the curious case of Sam Murray, a railroad brakeman, of this place. He was paralyzed, as a consequence of an injury received while coupling cars, and for two years was unable to work. Several doctors, among them some Toronto specials, pronounced him incurable and his case hopeless. The Grand Trunk Railway Company paid him his full disability claim, and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen was about to pay a similar claim, when Murray astonished everybody by a return to health. It was proven at the time, beyond the possibility of a doubt, that Murray's recovery was due to Dodd's kidney pills. A few days ago Murray applied to a life insurance company to take out a policy on his life. Two physicians have just examined him, pronounced him a desirable risk, and recommended the company to issue a policy. That's the kind of work Dodd's kidney pills do.

W. H. ROGERS.

AMHERST, N. S., May 27, 1893.

THE GRODER DYSPEPSIA CURE CO.

GENTLEMEN:—I am 71 years of age. Have been afflicted with sick headache most all my life, which developed into Dyspepsia of a mild type about twenty years ago, and has continued to grow worse until during the past seven or eight years I have not been able to take a drink of cold water or milk, as they would produce severe pains and sometimes vomiting. I have been subject to severe pains in the chest, with dizziness, which have been more frequent during the past three or four years. My mouth was furred up in the mornings, accompanied with bad breath. My case was yearly growing worse.

During all this long period I have tried many popular medicines, as well as prescriptions from the regular medical practitioners, but without producing any improvment.

In the fall of '92 I concluded to try a bottle or two of your medicine and such were its effects that I continued it and now I can drink cold water or milk without any inconvenience. Those dizzy pains are all gone and my mouth is as sweet as a baby's. In short, your medicine has cured me and I am sure that all Dyspeptics can be cured by its use.

Mr. Wm. Thompson of Musquash, N. She became weak and nervous, lost all energy, and had a constant feeling of dread. She suffered with intense pain in the stomach after eating, which was usually followed by the smothering sensation about the heart and fainting spells. She tried a great many remedies and was treated by the doctors for some time, but obtained no relief. She became so discouraged that she gave up all hope of ever getting better, when our pastor suggested that she try HAWKER'S NERVE AND STOMACH TONIC and LIVER PILLS, which had produced remarkable cures in several cases he knew of. We did so and she obtained immediate relief from the distress after taking the second dose, and has continued to improve ever since until today she is as well as ever, and can enjoy her food without fear of suffering. I cannot speak too highly of these valuable medicines which have restored my wife to health and strength and saved much suffering and expense."

Rev. Henry M. Spike, Rector of Musquash N. B., says: "I am personally acquainted with Mrs. Tompson's case, and am greatly pleased that the medicine which I recommended to her produced such remarkable results."
