Awake!

(A Reply to Tennyson's "To Sleep.")

Awake, awake, the dreary night is gone;
Rise with the day; gird duty's raiment on.
Awake, awake.

Whate'er in darkness hideous lies are.
They'll vanish soon in light that comes from far.
Awake, awake.

Peace, mourning heart yield not to sorrow's sway:
Death dies and life's dream ends when God doth say—
Awake, awake

Looking Ahead.

Mr. Bingo—We may as well talk over this question of getting the house painted.

Mrs. Bingo—But my dear, it doesn't need to be painted for at least a year yet.

Mr Bingo—True. But you have got to decide what color you want.—Munsey's Weekly.

Strange Revolution in Women's Dress.

Some predict that the great change in the fashioning of the clothes which are to be worn by women this coming season is the most wonderful victory of the nineteenth century—if fashion leaders can be induced to adopt it, and appear just once in public so arrayed.

Men will hold their breath in wonder at the marvelous change it makes in lovely woman. "Few of the fair sex can help being beautiful in these glove-fitting costumes," says a writer in a recent number of the New York and Paris Young Ladies Fashion Bazar. "This magazine is the only one in Europe or America which makes a specialty of giving those inclined to stoutness an unrivalled appearance of sculpture slimness," said Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales. Madame Patti has ordered from the Paris house four magnificent costumes, the design of which appear in the April number of this Fashion Bazar—and in the magazine only.

Mrs Harrison is greatly fascinated with the exquisite gem, costume No. 4, in the April number. It is expected she will give an order for an exact counterpart of it, the whole front of which will be incrusted with pin-head diamonds. This gown alone will be worth a king's ransom.

The Lumber and Cotton King.

"Kismet" writes to the Halifax Mercury of St. John's wealthy men. The writer bewails the fact that St. John has not one millionaire. The wealthiest men according to "Kismet" are Simon Jones, W. W. Turnbull, worth about $500,000 each, Dr. James Walker, Howard Troop, C. M. Bostwick and James Manchester. Of the Marysville millionaire, Kismet says:

About once or twice each month there is unusual activity in a little office in the building of the Western Union Telegraph office on King Street. On these occasions prominent shipping men and politicians visit this little office, and meet there a somewhat singular personage. Tall, of commanding appearance, silent, quietly dressed, with an iron-gray beard and always wearing a large soft felt hat—such is the description of New Brunswick's cotton and lumber king—Alexander Gibson. His shipping business makes it necessary to have a St. John office, and in this way the city has the honor of dining a millionaire perhaps once a month. His great cotton mill at Marysville, and his railway and lumber interests in that part of the province demand the greater part of his time, and receive it. His wealth is reckoned at something (no one knows how much) over a million, and in many ways he is a power in the land. A few weeks before the Dominion elections the chances of Mr. Thos. Temple, Conservative M. P. for York, were beginning to appear desperate. Mr. Gibson threw his influence into the balance. Mr. Temple's majority was 300. He has a will of iron and an active brain to back it up. Of men and of cigars there is no better judge. Such is New Bruuswick's self made and solitary millionaire.

An Ottawa Lady's Protest.

Evening dress for ladies is essential at the ceremonies in the Senate Chamber in connection with the opening of Parliament. An Ottawa lady has entered a protest, and in doing so she gives an idea of the daily routine of a society young woman. Writing to the Citizen she pathetically pleads as follows: "Will you be so good as to urge the authorities to permit of our going to the grand opening of Parliament this year in walking dress, especially as I want to show for the first time in public a new bonnet, such a beauty, all the way from Paris. Besides, that day I have to attend the art school, music lessons, ambulance lecture, be treated by Dr. Alex. Martin, play lawn tennis, have five o'clock tea, walk to the top of Sandy Hill, return and attend choir practice and shall be too tired for anything if obliged to dress so often and keep my bonnet in the box it came to me in. Help my cause all you can."

The Newfoundland Crisis.

LONDON, March 26.—The Newfoundland crisis occupies the first place in the thoughts of the press and public men, and it is regarded as the leading topic of the day everywhere. The ministers of the crown and ex-ministers admit the gravity of the situation, and the foreign office is moving with great caution. There is a general dread, due to somewhat sensational reports received here from Newfoundland, that the colony may take some extreme steps, thus isolating herself from British favor. It is generally felt, however, that as this vexatious matter stands the government is pursuing the only course consistent with international equity and that respect for treaty obligations to which the British people are so devoted. The relations between Newfoundland and the United States go to make the features of the case which attracts extraordinary attention. Canada's intervention and the contention by Sir John McDonald that Canada should be included in any trade advantages secured by Newfoundland from the United States, is regarded as perfectly justified by the position of the dominion.

The Result of Lying.

A negro who was giving evidence in a Georgia court was reminded by the judge that he was to tell the whole truth.

"Well, yer see, boss," said the dusky witness, "I'se skeered to tell de whole truth for fear I might tell a lie."

Judge (to witness)—Do you know the nature of an oath?

Witness—Sah?

Judge—Do you understand what you are to swear to?

Witness—Yes, sah; I'm to swar to tell de truf.

Judge—And what will happen if you do not tell it?

Witness—I 'spects our side'll win the case, sah.—Boston Traveller.

Mr Gladstone and the Sweeper.

A well-known London minister, who got crushed in the crowd at the opening of St Martin's Free Library by Mr. Gladstone, tells an anecdote of the ex-Premier's kindness of heart, on the authority of a former vicar. When Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Gladstone regularly attended this church. A crossing sweeper in the parish who had been some time ill, when asked by the vicar if anybody had been to see him, said, "Yes, sir. Mr. Gladstone." "Which Mr. Gladstone?" he was asked. "Why," was the answer, "Mr. Gladstone himself. He often speaks to me, and gives me something at my crossing. Not seeing me, he asked my mate, who was keeping it for me, why I was not there. He told him I was ill, and then he asked where I lived. So he came to see me, and talked and read to me."—Christian World.

The Apostolic Blessing for the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, March 27.—A local paper says Pope Leo XIII. is out with an apostolic benediction upon the World's Fair and the plan to erect a beautiful stone monument in honor of Christopher Columbus at Buenos Ayres. He says.—"It is proper as well as useful to render homage to men who have merited so well of Christian faith and human society. Columbus, in accomplishing by his genius and perseverance such great deeds, has been the fountain in both hemispheres of so great influence upon mankind, that few men can be compared with him. Hoping that the honors rendered him will served to stimulate the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago, we give to your project the praise that it merits, and at the same time as a token of fraternal love we give the apostolical benediction. (Signed) POPE LEO XIII."

Maritime Foundrymen.

A special meeting of the association of foundrymen in the Maritime Provinces was held in Moncton on Thursday. There was present David Robb, of Amherst, president; Frank H. Wilson of Yarmouth, vice-president; Chas. Fawcett of Sackville, treasurer; T. S. Kirkpatrick, of the Enterprise Foundry Co., Sackville, secretary; John White of Halifax, representing the Burrill-Johnson Iron Co. of Yarmouth; Clarence Dimock of the Windsor Foundry; F. Robb of Amherst; W. B. Dixon of Sackville; Mr. Fisher of Emerson & Fisher, St. John; and Messrs. J. and A. E. Peters of the R. F. & M. Co., Moncton. The meeting was called for the purpose of regulating the prices of new stoves, and it was decided not to make any change in prices at present. Among other things the question of amalgamating the foundries of the Maritime Provinces under one central management was considered, but nothing definite arrived at. A proposition was made to the foundrymen some time ago by a syndicate of foreign capitalists for the purchase of all maritime stove foundries, but this was not entertained. The maritime foundries are generally paying well, that at Moncton returning good dividends to its stockholders each year.—Moncton Times.

The Noble Beerage of England.

The "noble peerage" of England is fast becoming known as the "noble beerage." A recent publication by the English Government discloses the fact that 152 peers of the realm own 1,539 drinking places, an average of more than 10 to each peer. Lord Salisbury, who is now Prime Minister, owns four saloons (or "public houses,") the Bishop of Llendaff owns two, the Earl of Derby owns 72, the Duke of Bedford 48, the Duke of Devonshire 47, the Earl of Cawdor 39, the Duke of Rutland 37, the Earl of Dudley 35, the Duke of Northumberland 34, and the Duke of Portland 32. Isn't it beautiful to see these aristocratic peers using their capital and influence to establish "poor men's clubs" throughout the kingdom! "In London alone 10,000 liquor shops are owned by monopolists, companies, syndicates, and wealthy individuals, the nominal tenant being a mere bartender, who has no interest whatever in the business." The noble peers seem to have improved on an old saying, and are ready to declare, "Let me own the saloons of a nation, and I care not who make the laws," and they are accordingly now buying up the beer and whiskey business in America.

Last year Lord Salisbury's Government introduced a Compensation bill, to pay every proprietor of a public house who failed to get his license renewed, money enough out of the National Treasury to compensate for the loss of his business. Piteous appeals were made in behalf of the poor and toiling publicans. But it now appears that a large proportion of the money, coming in taxes from the people, would have gone into the pockets of these wealthy landlords, brewers, syndicates and "peers of the realm."

Gladstone's Government was defeated the last time on the beer-tax. Through the "poor man's club" the hereditary nobles and aristocrats swayed the vote of the people, just as the wealthy corruptionists of America to-day determine the results of elections through the same medium. In the saloon dwells to-day, both in England and America, the political power, purchasable by the highest bidder, which makes and unmakes rulers and laws. It is a weapon which wealthy Injustice always finds available for its most outrageous ends. It is indeed the "poor man's club," but a club which the unscrupulous capitalist wields. It is the poor man's simply because he feels its weight, and the men who tell him so are his truest friends and safest leaders.

The liquor saloon must go.—Voice.
