

THE DAILY EXAMINER.
SEPTEMBER 18, 1883.

Editorial Notes.

O'Donnell was interviewed at Maderia on his way to England. He is reported to have said that he was quite indifferent as to the result of his trial, but felt sure that he would not be hanged. He declined to give a detailed statement of the deed for which he is prisoner.

The Princess Louise has presented to the National Gallery of Canada a painting done by herself and said to be one of her best efforts. It is the portrait of a lady, and is at present on exhibition in Boston. The gift, and Her Royal Highness' kindness in presenting it, have been suitably acknowledged by Sir Hector Langevin.

The Montreal Herald is justly indignant with the Toronto Globe because of the evident satisfaction with which the Globe regards any reverse which may appear likely to overtake any branch of business in Canada. The Herald says:— "Whatever people may think of the tariff, we should like to know how a party organ finds its party's interest served by helping to create a 'financial collapse' through its unfounded statements and worthless surmises. The Globe invents a 'collapse' and gloats over the monstrous creature of its imagination. It exhibits a bad, a dangerous spirit, one destructive of business credit and calculated to be injurious in proportion to the influence of the paper."

It is pleasing to note that there is one Opposition newspaper in Canada which has the courage and public spirit to rebuke the unpatriotic conduct of the Opposition's "leading organ."

The political outlook in England at present shows increased activity on the part of the extreme Radicals who are preparing to contest all the great boroughs at the next election, even in opposition to Liberal candidates of the old school. The programme issued by Pankhurst, the ultra-Radical candidate for Manchester, is a type of the rest. It comprises the abolition of the House of Lords; adult manhood suffrage; payment of members of parliament; the disestablishment of the church; the abolition of parliamentary oaths; secular, free and compulsory education, and local self-government for Ireland. At the conference to be shortly held at Leeds an effort will be made to subordinate this programme to the immediate interest of the Liberal party. In Ireland the Parnellites are working with great vigor, with the view of returning such a preponderance of Home Rulers to Parliament as shall enable Mr Parnell to hold the balance between the two parties and dictate his own terms to both.

The Toronto Mail is right about the Leadership of the Liberal-Conservative Party. It says:—Any man in public life, who is young enough to expect to survive Sir John Macdonald may also hope to succeed him, by dint of usefulness, ability, industry and popularity. The question of leadership to a party is not decided by one man's ambition, but by all men's will; it depends not on personal choice or on even a caucus vote; but on pre-eminent talent and tact recognized by a party and a nation, and followed by them with due loyalty and confidence. In the meantime Sir John Macdonald is right here. He is the Liberal-Conservative leader, and likely to be so for years to come. There is, greatly to the regret of the morbid anatomists of the Grit organs, no serious failing in his health. His wit is as bright as ever it was, as the dull-witted and wordy chief of the Opposition knows to his cost. His skill has not decreased with years, as the smashed up Grit party knows, and as the triumphant majority in Parliament recognize and cheer.

A few days ago the Toronto Globe published a statement to the effect that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company had refused to accept any portion of their land subsidy from lands west of Qu'Appelle, on the ground that the country through which the railway runs west of that point is unfit for settlement. In reply to this statement Mr. George Stephen, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, has sent a letter to the Globe in which he states,—

"That this company have not contemplated, and do not contemplate, refusing or declining to accept any of the uneven numbered lots in the railway belt west of Qu'Appelle as part of their land grant, except in so far as any particular section, for some special reason, may not be fairly fit for settlement; that this company have examined a large portion of the territory referred to, and are satisfied not only that it is in a material degree fairly fit for settlement, but that to a large extent it consists of as fine farming land as is to be found in the Northwest Territories or in any part of Canada; and as respects the portion of the territory not yet specially examined, they have no reason to doubt that it is of equally good quality."

The correspondence between Lord Granville, British Minister of Foreign Affairs, and M. Waddington, French Ambassador to London, with reference to the attitude of France in Anam is regarded as satisfactory. M. Waddington stated that the French Government was willing to admit the claims of China to the sovereignty over Anam, with the right of investiture of a monarch, and of a veto over the succession to the throne. He also stated his Government were willing to discuss favorably the Chinese proposal of a neutral tone between the Chinese Frontier and French Protectorate. On the same question the Chinese Ambassador also had an interview with Lord Granville, and it is said he at once accepted England's mediation with reference to a neutral zone, but subject to reference to Peking. M. Waddington assured the Minister that reinforcements now being sent to Tonquin are only just sufficient to keep the French force there in an effective fighting condition, and therefore imply no menace whatever to China. The Chinese Government have been advised to accept the French terms and an early settlement of the present troubles is looked for.

The Patriot is in error. We have not presumed to jeer and sneer at the fiscal policy of the Mother Country. But we say that, with a large and wealthy country on our borders whose policy is protection, with undeveloped mines of iron and coal, and with a sparse population, the National Policy is the right policy for Canada. Granted that Free Trade has been, on the whole, best for England, Free Trade does not prevent strikes and failures, and lock-outs, and cutting down of wages, and poverty, of which we, born and living in Canada, have no conception. Here is an item which the Patriot should publish for the benefit of its readers:

"The Lancashire cotton spinners to-day resolved that the depressed state of the cotton goods trade demands a reduction in the wages of spinners and weavers.—London Cable Despatch, Sept. 11.

So it seems that the cotton lords of Canada, with whose distress the Patriot has lately been sympathizing, are no worse off than their fellows in Free Trade England, and that the cotton spinners and weavers there, as here, have had to suffer a reduction in their wages. But what is more important for the public of this Province to know, is the undeniable fact that cotton and sugar and tea, and many other necessities of daily use are cheaper now than when ex-Governor Laird luxuriated in the high places at Ottawa and Battleford.

In the course of his address at the opening of the Toronto Exhibition, His Excellency the Governor-General said:—

"I had a conversation only yesterday with a gentleman at the head of the Agricultural Science department of South Kensington, London. To show you that there is a wide field for the surplus population you would wish to get—I should like to quote that gentleman's words. His name is Prof. Tanner, and his authority is of great weight. He told me that over 6,000 passed last year the examination in agriculture instituted by the Government, and that of these 6,000 there was certainly not opportunity for the employment of more than one-tenth in great Britain. Thus nine-tenths must, if they wish to follow the pursuit indicated by their studies, leave the shores of the Old Country. I should certainly recommend them to come here. (Cheers.) I have made such recommendations often at home. Sometimes I have been told I incurred a great responsibility in so doing. I shall be very glad to assume such a responsibility. (Cheers.) I only ask the Ontario societies, when they invite immigrants out here, not to send for instructors of youth. I have received 500 letters from people who said they were certain that there must be a capital opening in Canada for a good governess. (Laughter.) I confess I know of none such, for here we rear our own stock in this respect. One of the most noble exhibits in the Exhibition today will be found to be the school desk and bench, which I have no doubt may be seen among the most prominent products of Canadian industry. I shall continue to recommend this province, because you have inspired me with the utmost confidence in it and its future. Probably your strength lies in the fact that your community have so much confidence in themselves."

Souris Petitioning.

Your issue of July 17th, and one or two other dates, contained suggestions in "Items from Souris," as to the necessity for public buildings here, for the purposes of Postal and Customs work. The "idea" has since (as it was previously) been subject of much public comment. Leading men in the community, and the public in general, feel that more convenient and important public government buildings are necessary in this part of King's County. A large amount of government business is transacted, excellent officers fill their respective positions, and not only theirs, but public convenience demands that the Government of the Dominion should provide suitable premises.

This morning the balls has been set a-going by the presentation of the following petition for public signature. It has already been largely and influentially signed, and awaits still further signatures at the office of Mathew, McLean & Co:—

TO THE HONORABLE SIR HECTOR LANGVIN, C. B., Q. C., Minister of Public Works, Dominion of Canada:

We, the undersigned residents of Souris and surrounding country, in the Province of Prince Edward Island, most respectfully represent:— That the Town of Souris and suburban districts contain a population of about three thousand people.

That much inconvenience is felt by your petitioners through want of proper Post Office accommodation at Souris.

That the apartment occupied at present as a Post Office at Souris is not more than twelve feet by ten in area.

the new public building should be placed in as central a position as possible, so as to accommodate, in an equally satisfactory manner, both school districts. Somewhere near the line dividing the Grammar and Colville districts would, I think, suit best, as that position would be quite central.
