British Malaya World's Biggest Rubber Country

The great rubber producing country of the world is British Malaya which accounts for over half of the world's production. 940,000 tons of rubber it is estimated were consumed by the world in 1935 and this year's consumption, at the lowest figure, is placed around 950,000 tons. Of this quantity British Malaya is expected to account for 569,000 tons. The total area planted with rubber in British Malaya is over 3,000,000 acres of which 60 per cent is on estates of over 100 acres. During 1935, the United States took 303,383 tons. Tin, pineapple, vegetable oils, pepper, rice, sago, tapioca, rattans, are other products. The United States is British Malaya's best customer accounting for nearly half of the total exports of all kinds. Great Britain is next, followed by British Empire countries, the continent of Europe, Japan, the Dutch East Indies. Canada increased her purchases of British Malayan products 61.7 per cent over 1933 and 209.7 per cent over 1934. In imports the Dutch East Indies top the list with British Empire countries supplying about half the quantity, closely followed by Great Britain. Japan ranks third, and is followed by the Continent of Europe and the United States. The big item in Canada's exports to British Malaya is motor vehicles. More than double the number of Canadian passenger cars were imported in 1935 as compared with the previous year and commercial vehicles by two and a half times, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways.

FOR CANADIAN MACARONI

A market is opening up in South Africa for macaroni and vermicelli from Canada, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Heretofore Italy has been the chief source of supply, with the United States supplying canned spaghetti. The principal consumption centres are the coast cities. Yellow is the colour required due to the apparent belief on the part of the public that the yellow colour indicates the presence of eggs.

POLISH CENSUS REVEALS GROWTH

Cruise Ships Make Montreal Home Port

MONTREAL, Que., May 8.—The first of the vagabond cruise ships to reach here this season will be the R.M.S. Colborne, Canadian National Steamships, due to arrive early tomorrow (Saturday) morning, completing a cruise commencing from Halifax on April 4 to Bermuda, Puerto Rico, Guadeloupe, Martinique, Barbados, Trinidad and British Guiana. Hereafter the vagabond ships will use the port of Montreal for arrival and departure during the St. Lawrence navigation season. Another sister ship has still to make her initial entry into the local port this season, being the Chomedey, which left Halifax April 18 over the same route and due to arrive here May 22.

The sailing of the Colborne next Thursday will inaugurate for the season a cruise program consisting of ten voyages of 38 days duration for the round trip to interesting ports in the British, French and United States possessions down in the Caribbean Sea. These passenger-carrying freighters apparently cruise around to various Caribbean ports for the pleasure of the passengers but are, in reality, engaged in carrying Canadian commodities to the tropical colonies and act as reciprocal agents in bringing Caribbean products up to Canada. Among the passengers arriving Saturday will be the following: P. B. Dymon, Miss D. Grenhall, E. A. Jaffary, Miss H. G. Scully, Miss P. M. Scully and Mrs. L. E. Benfield, all of Montreal, Mrs. G. H. Harlowe, Mrs. R. E. Pannell, all of Toronto, Dr. A. W. Miller, New Waterford, N.S., Miss N. McLeod and Miss K. Mersereau of Sydney, N.S., Miss Mary Murray of Boston, Mass., Miss Jean Mowatt of Chicago, Ill., H. Morrish of Demerara and V. Simpson of Barbados.

Traffic Problem Theme Of Address By Police Chief Kinch To Trade Board

The regular monthly meeting of the Summerside Board of Trade was held in the Town Hall Thursday evening May 7th with a very good attendance. Mr. W. E. McDonald presided.

Continuing the campaign begun last month to encourage safe driving, the Board heard Chief of Police Percy Kinch speak on the subject, "What is wrong with our traffic?" Mr. Kinch gave a comprehensive outline of the problem of handling motor traffic and asked for the cooperation of the public. Following an interesting discussion the appreciation of the Board and willingness to cooperate was expressed to the Chief.

Mr. J. E. Campbell reported for the Marine Committee that there is considerable activity in the port of Summerside, several ships having already called for potatoes. An unusual Spring movement. Mr. Campbell also said there is promise

NEW HAIG BOOK QUOTES REGARD FOR CANADIANS

British War Chief Admired Morale Of Canada's Men— Vimy Attack Said Justified.

By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer LONDON, May 7.—Interesting references to the Canadian Corps in France and to its leaders appear in the second volume of "Haig," by Alfred Duff Cooper, secretary for war, published by Macmillan. The first volume, it will be remembered, which was published last year, provoked, or rather revived, the controversy which ever since the Great War has revolved around the characters of soldiers, statesmen and other men of prominence in that momentous period. The controversies, it is to be anticipated, will arise afresh with the appearance of this second and final volume. It carries the story of Haig's career from the close of the Battle of the Somme to the end of his life.

Writing of Easter Monday, 1916, when the Canadians captured Vimy Ridge, Duff Cooper speaks of the morning being bitterly cold. It was not until eight a. m. that Haig received a report that four Divisions of Canadians and the VI Corps were doing well, and that all first objectives had been gained. During this day and the following one the strongly defended Vimy Ridge was captured by the Canadians, and Haig's wisdom in attacking it was fully demonstrated.

"This was one of the matters in which his judgment had differed from that of Nivelle, who had believed either that the Germans would evacuate Vimy Ridge of their own accord, or, if they failed to do so, that it would prove impregnable. Haig had been convinced it would be strongly held, but had not doubted his ability to capture it after proper preparations and with determined troops. The Germans proved his first supposition to be correct, and the Canadians justified his second."

Coming to preparations for the ill-starred and prolonged operations of Passchendaele and other quotes from Haig's diary concerning an inspection of the Dominion Forces: At Les Quatre Vents I was met by General Burstell, commanding the 2nd Canadian Division, and George Black with the horses. A ride of about ten minutes brought us to where the 4th Canadian Brigade (Rennie) was drawn up. General Currie, commanding Canadian Corps, met me here. He has sprung a tendon in his leg playing badminton, and is very lame. Currie is a very big, tall, heavy man. He must have been in great pain, but he stuck it all day. His legs are necessary to support such a frame as Currie has. After inspecting the brigade the troops marched past me, reformed and gave three cheers. They asked me if I had any objection to the latter—"they wished to do it and cheering does us good."—so of course I agreed, though of course it would have been out of a busy summer in the port.

The Publicity Committee, Mr. H. T. Holman, Chairman reported on a number of projects. Progress is being made in the matter of presenting the need for improved facilities in the abattoir. He also stated that his committee had arranged for the distribution of labels to be placed in automobiles in connection with the safe driving campaign. It was hoped he said to raise a contribution for the Prince Edward Island Tourist Bureau and a fund for local publicity. Good progress was reported by the Music Committee and it was announced that the first public concert by the new band is planned for some evening in June.

The gift of band instruments by Senator Creelman MacArthur was announced and the Secretary invited to express the appreciation of the Board to him. It was stated that entries for the amateur entertainment are coming in well.—S.

Praised Dominion's Troops

Haig goes on to mention meeting Tuxford, Griesbach and Loomis. Of his inspection of the 3rd Brigade he noted:

"There are three killed battalions in this brigade, all fine big men. The experience and training of the past year have done wonders for the Canadians. Their morale is now very high, and though they have been opposed by the flower of the German Army (Guards, etc.) they feel they can beat the Germans even if the enemy's loss of morale. That these two Canadian Divisions are now in such a fine state is due to having ample reserves to replace casualties, the result of sound organization."

To pass over for the moment nearly 200 pages of this ample and arresting biography we come to the French President's words after the British had been fighting—in the words of Haig's celebrated order—"with their backs to the wall." It is rather curious to note incidentally that Haig made no mention in his personal diary of this historic morning but that King George and the French President lunched at Haig's headquarters, a day when the troops "were about to begin the advance that was to end on the Rhine." Haig's diary notes the inspection he made in the afternoon.

I went to Canadian headquarters at Dury and saw General Currie. The latter said he had "been a hustle to be ready in time but everything had been got in except two long range guns." Last night was the critical moment. If the Germans had bombarded the Canadian zone, we could not have retaliated. Tonight the situation is quite different and we are ready.

In that August, too, Haig visited the Canadian Cavalry Brigade: I rode round most of the squadrons, horse artillery batteries and machine guns. Fine, plucky fellows all, who don't know what fear is. Eighty per cent are Scotsmen. One young fellow, born in Edinburgh, now a major, by the name of Strachan, was at Cambrai; was before the war ranching in Alberta. Most are from Winnipeg.

Haig speaks of Clemeenceau inspecting the 7th (Canadian) Brigade on the ground they had won. "They looked splendid and the officers looked up to their work in every way."

In the month of September, when the British were still pushing ahead, the commander-in-chief again saw the Canadians at first-hand, with Brudenell's force of machine guns, armoured cars, cyclists, etc., were on the march. Arras-Cambrai road. Haig writes: The Canadian Corps had taken prisoners from ten different Divisions. Watson seemed disturbed by the losses he had had, but on enquiry I found they did not amount to many. I next saw General Macdonell. He was in great spirits. His troops taken Villers-lez-Cagnicourt without any difficulty, and were now on the spur north of

WHEN PSYCHOLOGISTS DISAGREE, WHAT CAN ORDINARY FOLK THINK

CHICAGO, May 6.—Dr. John J. B. Morgan, Northwestern University psychologist, commenting on a prediction that the Dionne quintuplets stood a "good chance of growing into heart breakers and old maids," declared today there was no scientific basis for such a statement. "The quintts are too young to be affected one way or another," he said. "Their future attitudes toward the opposite sex will be molded by a great many factors during their childhood and adolescence." The heart breaker prediction was made by Dr. Donald A. Laird, of Colgate University, who said the quintts' segregation from little boys while very young might make them "man haters."

Dr. Morgan challenged the Colgate psychologist's statement that premature birth tended to make children better looking as also without scientific foundation.
