

SWADLINCOTE, England (CP)—Officials of this Derbyshire town reduced the season's rental to a bowling club from $560 to $420, to compensate for a dip in the bowling green. The depression was caused by subsidence of the ground, fairly common in old mining areas.

Vic Towel Will Not Quit Ring

JOHANNESBURG, (AP)—Mike Towel, father and trainer of Vic Towel, ex-world bantamweight champion, declared Monday his boy will not quit the ring, but will continue to fight as a featherweight.

Vic was knocked out in the 10th round Saturday night by world champion Jimmy Carruthers of Australia, who originally won the world 118-pound crown from Towel last November.

South African sports writers have advised Vic to quit the ring, but papa Towel angrily said: "As far as I am concerned there is no question of Vic's quitting."

Meanwhile it was discovered that Towel had suffered a broken nose in the fight and he went to a hospital to have it set.

Detroit Admits Boston Bruins Can Be Dangerous In Semi-Finals Series

By JOE FALLS
DETROIT, (AP)—Detroit Red Wings open defence of the Stanley Cup Tuesday night against their "cousins" from Boston but, as Detroit general manager Jack Adams says, "these Bruins can be dangerous in a series like this."

Winners of five straight National Hockey League titles, the high-powered Red Wings are heavy favorites to trim the Bruins in the best-of-seven series. Many think they'll do it in four straight.

But Adams, a genial Irishman with more than 25 years in the business, has other ideas. "These playoffs are different," he said. "The players know that cold cash is at stake, so they skate a little harder and backcheck a little closer."

"Sure, we beat the Bruins soundly during the season but in a series like this, they can be dangerous. This Fleming Mackell, of theirs has scored clutch goals all year and, of course, there's still Milt Schmidt. He's still a great player."

Murdered Beantowners

When Adams said his club beat the Bruins soundly during the season, that ranks as a large-sized understatement. Detroit literally murdered the Beantowners.

The Wings won 10 of the 14 games between the clubs, with two ending in ties. But get this: Detroit scored 62 goals against Boston while the Bruins retaliated with only 19.

You can't get it much more one-sided than that. On two occasions the Wings scored 10 goals against Boston. The chief tormentors over the season were Ted Lindsay with 11 goals, Gordie Howe with 10 and Red Kelly with eight.

Canadiens Should Be Favorites Over Chicago

MONTREAL, (CP)—On the basis of their 14 meetings during the regular National Hockey League season, Montreal Canadiens should be favorites over Chicago Black Hawks when the two teams open their Stanley Cup semi-final playoff series Tuesday night.

Canadiens were winners seven times, the Hawks three times and four games were tied. The Montrealers also hold the edge in scoring—34 goals to the Hawks' 29. Canadiens scored three shutouts, and Hawks none.

Although the first two games, Tuesday and Thursday, will be on Montreal ice, Canadiens won't consider this any particular advantage. During the season they lost only one game in Chicago Stadium. But what might happen in the short, best-of-seven series is something else.

Both teams were en route to Montreal Monday. Canadiens, second-place finishers, closed out the season Sunday night in Detroit with a 1-1 tie against the first-place Red Wings. Until the Hawks pulled out a 3-1 win over Rangers in New York Sunday night they didn't know whether they would be heading for home, as an eliminated team, or would come to Montreal as fourth-place holders, last spot for a playoff berth.

The ticket office at Montreal Forum was busy Monday preparing for the usual horde of ticket-seekers. Holders of season tickets are looked after first.

Coaches Dick Irvin of Canadiens and Sid Abel of Chicago were expected to stick with their regular lineups, at least for the first couple of games. Irvin has been reported saying if his regulars don't show enough zip at the start he won't hesitate to throw in his farm-club youngsters named as eligibles and called up for the series.

Veteran centre Ken Mosdell is a doubtful starter because of an injured knee.
