It was agreed that the discussion of resolutions should be left until within three months of the annual meeting instead of during the first meeting, as the rule has been in recent years, as most of the time during this meeting is used in making arrangements for the coming Provincial Exhibition.

Foresters And Mounties Aid In Curbing Bad Fire

The danger of forest fires at this season is causing much concern, according to Fire Marshall T. Arthur Campbell who cites the fire which started last Wednesday just west of Winsloe as an example of what can happen when a blaze really gets under way.

Mr. Thomas Rogerson, who secured a nice farm property about six years ago through the Soldiers Settlement Board as a war veteran, had his house, barns and outbuildings swept away before help of any nature could reach the location. His wife had entered hospital for treatment just a few hours before the fire started from a cause which has not yet been determined.

The fire spread from the barns to an adjoining woodlot owned by Mr. Marvin Bell, who called the Department of Natural Resources. Hon. Eugene Cullen accompanied the two experienced foresters from his department to the scene of the fire, where the overseers and members of the R.C.M.P. were making a strenuous effort to confine the rapidly spreading fire. The men from the Department then took over and with the help of a bulldozer, made several "brakes", whereby the sod is turned over and the red soil exposed, in advance of the approaching fire. The fire was thus brought under control.

"However," said Mr. Campbell, "a constant watch has been kept because of the menace still to be faced in the event of smouldering moss or grass being fanned into a blaze."

Mr. Campbell said he would not like to think of what could have happened in that area had it not been for the timely assistance of the overseers and R.C.M.P., and particularly the work of the foresters who took charge of the situation on arrival and from their experience sized up the situation and made the proper moves.

Rural Life Conference To Be Held At S.D.U.

Prince Edward Island's first conference on rural life will get under way at St. Dunstan's University on August 5, according to an announcement made recently at the University.

"Our rural life problem is a complex one," the announcement states, "and St. Dunstan's has invited teachers and parish representatives to join the priests of the diocese in a sincere, down-to-earth investigation to discover just what our basic rural problem is. Why the continuing exodus of youth? Why the persisting covetous glances of our remaining farmers towards the lives and works of other professions?"

Over one hundred teachers, and approximately eighty parish representatives, as well as nearly all the priests of the diocese, are expected to attend this two-day conference. They will study together all phases of rural life. The preparation of papers and discussions by representatives of these groups is already well under way, and the final program will be released later this week.

Island Odds And Ends

Col. D. A. MacKinnon who helped make much of the race track history in this Province in the last forty years, is still assisting in writing new pages into that record.

As driver-owner the Colonel's colors are seen every week at the local track, and the crowds never fail to pay him the respect and admiration due a great showman and the dean of horse-racing in these parts.

Old Country politicians have a command of language, which merits respect. Aneurin Bevan, fiery left-winger of the Labor Party once referred to Churchill as a "petrified adolescent". Mr. Churchill classified Bevan as a "gamin from Welsh gutters".

About half of the seventeen German labourers who recently arrived in Charlottetown to work on Island farms can speak some English. A few have served with the American Army in civilian type jobs, as kitchen workers, gardeners, labourers. All of them had some experience in some department of farming.

One of the men was a prisoner of war in the United States for two years. He was a lieutenant in the German Army when captured.

General "Ike" Eisenhower's ancestors were German, a known fact which did not seem to weigh against him at all in his fight for the Republican nomination. It speaks well for the American system of education that the grandchild of a German emigrant could become the personification of the hopes and aspirations of so many citizens of the United States in two generations.

Contrary to general belief the great war-time President of the United States, Franklin Roosevelt, was English, not Dutch. This became known during the late war when Hitler propaganda referred to F.D.R. as of Dutch-Jewish origin. Genealogists who carefully traced his racial descent at that time came up with the answer that Mr. Roosevelt was 99 per cent English.

Montague is carrying out a program of improvement to its secondary streets. Several of them leading off the main paved road and concrete thoroughfares are being given a semi-permanent toping. Not so long ago the town's only street thought worthy of more than passing notice was this same metalled main highway.

But the town has grown, and the little streets in embryo, the side-streets, have sprouted new houses and assumed new importance. Recognizing this, the Town Council with commendable foresight has undertaken the present program at considerable expense. The result has been most noticeable and catches the eye of every visiting motorist.

The Islander's Hockey Club have felters out for a playing coach for the coming winter. The Club's president, Doctor Dougan is in touch with one of the National League Clubs and may have his choice of several big name players, who are still youthful enough to play good hockey.

A few days ago a trout was caught at Lot 40, which had previously been trapped and marked at the Ellerslie Experimental Station. This bears out the intention of Mr. Saunders, in charge of the Ellerslie research work, that trout do not, as once believed, return invariably to the stream in which they were spawned. Hundreds of fish marked for identification purposes at Ellerslie have turned up many miles away from that point.

Former Premier Mustapha El Nahas Pasha, a Wafdist Party chieftain, cut short a vacation in Europe and left by air for Cairo. The Wafdists were in power last January when anti-British riots swept Cairo.

Since those riots, in which 67 persons were killed and millions of dollars lost in property damage, Egypt has gone through various government crises in which five cabinets fell. Naguib launched his army coup with the avowed purpose of restoring stability.

Advisers Arrested The newspaper Al Misri said today that Kamim Tabet Pasha and Elias Androuss Pasha, who were among Farouk's close advisers and who had been placed under house arrest Saturday, attempted to flee the country aboard a Paris-bound plane. The plane returned five minutes after taking off, the newspaper said, and the two men were prevented from leaving.

As the 32-year-old deposed King sailed the Mediterranean, presumably bound first for Naples, the independent newspaper El Akhbar January in an editorial which said "today history records the name of an oppressive and unjust king among the names of tyrants and despots."

Farouk's wealth has been estimated from 250,000,000 to 1,000,000,000. Other estimates said his royal catches included 30 per cent of the sable leg of the rich Nile Valley. Much of his money has been reported deposited in Swiss banks.

Four Palaces Farouk had four palaces including Abdin with 400 rooms and Koubbeh with nearly 1,000 acres of grounds, both in Cairo. One big question was what might become of this wealth. One high government source said one of the abdication agreements was that Farouk surrender that part of his fortune in Egypt to the state.

The newspaper Al Misri said Farouk took his personal belongings in 204 trunks. Just before Farouk sailed, Naguib shook hands with the ousted monarch and saluted him while the band played the royal anthem.

South Africa's Racial Problem Discussed By Rev. W.A. Cotton

Friends and relatives are happy to welcome the return of Reverend Walter A. Cotton C. R. to the Island. He is on furlough from England and is now visiting his sister Miss Margaret Cotton of this city. Father Cotton's previous visit to the Island was in 1945, after his return from Johannesburg, South Africa; where he completed thirty-four years of missionary service with the Order of the Community of the Resurrection. This Order which has its centre in Mirfield, England, has a twofold purpose. First, in training young men for the ministry generally and secondly, in preparing men for the missionary work which the Order has undertaken in South Africa.

Three native Africans who received their training in Johannesburg, and then at Mirfield, England, returned to the Order of the Community of the Resurrection in South Africa to carry the Christian message to their people. This Order has thirty brethren doing missionary work here.

Two Alternatives

In connection with the racial problem now existing in South Africa where 2,000,000 whites rule 12,000,000 coloured people, and which has become more acute since the election of Dr. Malan and his National Party in 1948—Father Cotton thinks that there are two alternatives as a possible solution. "History teaches that where two people occupy one country," he said, "especially where one brought in to rule the other—the two will eventually mingle and form one new race and nation."

"The bleeding process began long ago in South Africa. And if it becomes clear as time goes on that the two races are indeed intermingling en masse, and that the fusion will ultimately make them one race and nation in one Fatherland, then that must be accepted as the destiny of South Africa."

General Smuts once told the African people that the remedy for their grievances must be slow. Their advance to equal citizenship must be the pace of the ox. It is a tragedy that this great man died without having been able to point out their way of advance and progress, or to get any good plan for them accepted by Dutch and British fellow citizens. With his large view of the coming Nationalism of sub-continental lands, great nations and the brotherhood of nations, he might have visualized a Nation in which justice would be colour-blind.

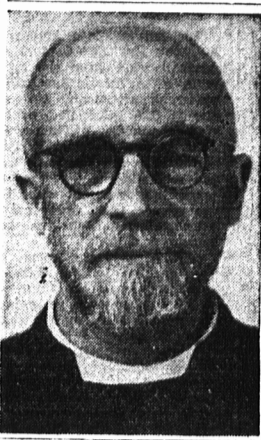

Thus equality for white and coloured persons would evolve as the two races blend and become one race, bearing the responsibilities of government and the economy of the Union.

The alternative is "If those for whom the Prime Minister of South Africa has lately spoken, really believe that such race-blending means the end of 'civilization' in their country—that to accept it as inevitable means national suicide for them—they should at once contract the limits of the Union. They should withdraw their rule from all parts of the country where there are large concentrations of African people, so that their nation's racial composition could be prevalently European. Thus leaving the white in control of their own designated territories. But this, through going segregation means really great sacrifice on the part of the Union of South Africa and its Nationalism."

The Rev. G. C. Webster closed the meeting with prayer and Mr. Cotton's reading. Mr. Karolusson brought greetings from their respective societies. Lunch was served under the direction of Mr. MacNaughton and his host society.

Another Prospect

Father Cotton adds that "another prospect and decision concerning the future of South Africa could have been suggested. The white man, it might be authoritatively announced, will leave the country—or at any rate he will abandon his governmental control of it—when the African and coloured people become able to govern themselves in peace, and to protect themselves from outside aggression. So it was announced long ago by the British in India. And the promise has been fulfilled."

Father Cotton, who received his early education at St. Peter's Church School, later attended Kings College, Windsor, N. S. He joined the Community of the Resurrection in 1911.

Father Cotton would now like to work for the extension of the religious community life in Canada, especially Eastern Canada. There is at present only one Anglican religious Order in Canada. This is located at Bracebridge, Ontario and called The Society of St. John the Evangelist. Rev. Father Palmer, brother of Judge H. L. Palmer, belongs to the Society of St. Francis, in England.

Father Walter is a brother of Mrs. W. R. Hymman, Mrs. T. E. MacNutt, Miss Margaret Cotton, Mr. R. L. Cotton and Mr. W. E. Cotton, of this city and Mr. Frank Cotton of St. Peter's, Cape Breton. His father the late W. L. Cotton, was editor and proprietor of "The Examiner."

P. Y. P. S. FELLOWSHIP

A bus load of young people from Zion Church, Charlottetown, travelled to St. John's Presbyterian Church, Belfast, where they were the guests of the local Society. After an enjoyable swim and picnic lunch, the evening's service opened by a hymn-sing led by Mr. J. A. Johnston.

Miss Margaret MacDougal, formerly of Belfast, opened the meeting with prayer. Following the Scripture reading, Mr. Karolusson led in prayer, and Mr. Roddie Hickox presented an excellent address concerning the Presbyterian camp at French River. Mr. Johnston then screened a Kodachrome commentary on the Oberammergau Passion play which was filmed in Austria two years ago.

The theme-speaker was Mr. Gardner Dalzell of New Amman, who is at present supplying the pulpit at Breadalbane. Mr. Dalzell is a graduate of Acadia and a student at the Presbyterian College, Montreal. In the excellent address, the speaker forcefully told of God's call to young people and of the various ways in which they could serve Him.

The Rev. G. C. Webster closed the meeting with prayer and Mr. MacNaughton and Mr. Karolusson brought greetings from their respective societies. Lunch was served under the direction of Mr. MacNaughton and his host society.

New Refrigerator Car Test Successful

HALIFAX, July 26—After successfully completing its initial test carrying fresh meats to Truro, the first mechanical railway refrigerator car of its type arrived here yesterday to begin its second test run between Halifax and Toronto carrying 30,000 pounds of frozen fish. The car was designed by Canadian National Railway engineers.

The new car presents great possibilities for the fishing industry, said H. E. MacDonald, Montreal, regional supervisor of perishable traffic here today. "If frozen fish can be handled at lower temperatures than now it will be possible to ship it greater distances and store it for much longer periods without losing its quality or flavour."

Research engineers of the Canadian National state that with mechanical refrigeration temperatures attained through the use of ice will be reduced by as much as 15 degrees to between five and ten below zero. It is also believed that the electrical refrigeration unit, powered by a diesel driven generator, will eliminate much of the corrosion caused by salt and water now.
