THE DAILY EXAMINER.

AUGUST 24, 1894.

THE MATTER OF THE CLUB.

A CORRESPONDENT imagines that THE EXAMINER has misapprehended the meaning of the Stipendiary Magistrate's decision. We regret that the continued absence of His Honor from town renders it impossible just now to obtain an authoritative explanation of the reasons why the bona fides were placed, not incidentally but in the very forefront of his judgment. If our correspondent is right in his interpretation, this must have been done for the purpose of misleading and humbugging those who are not learned in the law. But it is impossible to accept this hypothesis. We are bound to assume that the Stipendiary Magistrate has not stooped to the art of the small politician and the pettifogger,—we are bound to assume that his judgment, as given to the press, is bona fide, that of an honorable man. This is evidence—there is no use blinking the fact that if clubs for the evasion of the law are not to be subjected to punishment when they sell liquor, the Scott Act will, ere long, be devoid of effect and utterly useless—a dead letter in Charlottetown. In this fact we have an additional strong reason for concluding that the Magistrate meant to intimate, by his judgment, that he would punish by fine and imprisonment the members of clubs formed for the sale of liquor.

As to the Charlottetown Club, it is pleasing to be assured that the sale of liquor there, privileged as it is, is strictly and carefully regulated, and that drunkenness or any other misconduct is not for a moment tolerated by the committee of management. That the Club is nevertheless subjected to public criticism is not wonderful under the circumstances. Those who yearn for the privilege of which it has a monopoly are apt to speak in terms of harshness and injustice of the Club and its members. We have nothing to say against either, and we regret the too hasty inference drawn from the fact that liquor is sold there, that men may become drunk within its precincts. Still, in view of the official positions filled by prominent members of the Charlottetown Club, in view of the importance of personal and corporate consistency, and in view of the duty of all good citizens to obey the spirit as well as the letter of the law, we think that the Club would exercise a wise and judicious discretion if it should give up, so long as the Scott Act is the law of Charlottetown, the right to buy and sell liquor. The example of a club of gentlemen giving up a valued privilege for the sake of the community at large would be stronger than many precepts.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

—Several thousands of boxes of cheese have been received and stored at the cheese depot in Charlottetown, and are awaiting shipment.

—The U. S. Board of Agriculture is importing lady birds from Australia to wage war upon the destructive insects of the West. If this inoffensive beetle does what is expected of him, it would be worth while for the Canadian Department of Agriculture to bring some across by the new Pacific line and set them to work in the Northwest.

—Professor Craig says that "the only sure remedy" for black knot is to cut off and burn promptly every knot which makes its appearance on plum or cherry tree. He says also that cherry and plum trees should be carefully examined for knots two or three weeks after growth begins in the spring, and again after the leaves fall in the autumn.

—Montreal Gazette: After all the worrying over the United States Tariff bill, now it is passed it is found to be full of errors. There are semicolons and apostrophes out of place, which will cost the country thousands of dollars in loss of revenue. Some commas went wrong in the Canadian Tariff bill, but Mr. Foster hunted them up and had them put right before the measure became law. This is another of the things that are done better in Canada than on the other side of the line.

—After England compelled India to abandon the protection duties, the cotton industry of India was destroyed and Lord George Bentinck, Governor General, in a report upon the matter declared that "for the ruin that had been inflicted there could be found no parallel in the annals of commerce, for in a short time there was nothing left but an impoverished agricultural class, while the very cotton that the natives wore, the raw material of which was grown upon his own Indian fields, was the product of Manchester looms."

—The reduction of the American duty on barley from 30 cents a bushel to 30 per cent., or about one-half, is expected to revive the export trade from Ontario markets. The Oswego Palladium says: "The reduction of the barley duty gives assurance of a return of the trade that brought thousands of dollars yearly to the pockets of our laboring men and which was cut off by the operation of the McKinley tariff law. If things move as they should, and Canadian barley is not held too high by growers on the other side, there is no reason why a million and a half or two million bushels of barley should not be received before the close of navigation."

TRADE NOTES.—The Globe reports Island prime mess pork 50 cents higher in St. John, and clear pork also firmer.

During last week 68,535 boxes of cheese and 276 packages of butter were shipped from Montreal, compared with 60,176 boxes of cheese and 1,705 packages of butter in the corresponding week last year.

A goodly number of the cheese factories in the Kingston, Ont., section of country have contracted for the balance of the season's make at prices ranging from 10c. to 10½c. per lb. At London, Ont., one lot of 230 boxes sold at 9¾c.; 9 9-16c. was refused for first half August, July's all sold.

The visible wheat supply in the United States and Canada and on passage to the United Kingdom an continent was 92,261,000 bushels on Aug. 29th, compared with 94,148,000 bushels on Aug. 11th, a decrease of 1,887,000 bushels.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL AND LADY ABERDEEN AT TRURO, N. S.

Truro was en fete on Tuesday, the 21st inst., in honor of the visit of Lord and Lady Aberdeen; and by the time the train from Halifax arrived, thousands thronged the streets and sidewalks of this lively town.

The citizens of Truro certainly excelled themselves with the extent of the decorations, and when the procession accompanying the Governor-General's party passed along the principal streets to the Courthouse, they appeared to be proceeding under a continuous canopy of flags and bright colored streamers. After the presentation of the civic address, the vice-regal party was entertained at lunch at the Prince of Wales Hotel.

A little after two o'clock your correspondent wended his way to Victoria Park, near the town, where the Agricultural Conference was held. Here a neat pavilion is erected, and when the Earl and Countess, accompanied by ex-Governor Hoard and Professor Robertson, arrived a very large gathering cheered them lustily.

After the usual addresses had been presented, and after Lady Aberdeen had taken several snap shots with her kodak at the crowd, which was artistically arranged amidst the beautiful natural scenery of this most charming spot, the Earl delivered one of those happy addresses by which he has captivated the people of the Maritime Provinces.

Space will not permit an extended report of his remarks, which, however, were in line with those previously delivered at former agricultural conferences during his present visit. He made a happy hit by saying that although his hands were not hardened by toil, yet he claimed to be a farmer, for in these days head work, rathe than manual labor, was required to make a successful agriculturist.

Lady Aberdeen presented a gold medal to Mr. James Freeman, who had supplied the greatest quantity of milk from one cow to the Nappan experimental station last year.

Prof. James Robertson then spoke on the importance of progressive agriculture; pointing out that half civilized countries, where men required few, if any, of the ordinary conveniences of civilization, were competing in the production of grain and ordinary farm crops; but could not enter in the race for the best prices for finished products, like gilt edged butter, fine cheese, bacon, beef, &c., such as could be produced by the intelligent farmers of Canada.

Instead of growing and selling hay and the raw products of the farm, it was the first and bounden duty of Canadian farmers to manufacture those articles that now and for years to come would command fairly remunerative prices.

Professor Robertson before resuming his seat introduced in a few well chosen words, ex-Governor Hoard, of Wisconsin, whose name and presence has become now so well known to the farmers of the Maritime Provinces.

Governor Hoard spoke for some time, on the necessity of all who wished to raise the standard of farming, to "fall in," and work together for the general benefit. "Every farmer," he said, "should and must keep in elbow touch with his neighbor, and when all did so, the advance all along the line would be a mighty one.

In the evening the town was prettily illuminated by Chinese lanterns hung on all the principal private residences and scattered among the trees in the public squares and about the residences of the citizens.

Notwithstanding the fact that Truro is a Scott Act town, there was a good deal of drunkenness in the evening; but the active policemen quickly hustled away any who were noisy.

Altogether the reception at Truro was a great success, and it was estimated that fully 5,000 visitors, besides the townspeople, were present.

Strange to say, your correspondent met a specimen seldom found, and that is a courteous hotel clerk. The clerk at the Victoria does not know anything of the superciliousness of the genus.

I enclose some verses given me by Mr. Murdock, of Pictou, who is the veteran printer of Nova Scotia. He said the type which printed the verses was made in Pictou County, N. S.

MGR. SATOLLI AND SALOONS.

The course of the papal delegate to the United States with respect to liquor saloons, according to an authoritative statement made by Mgr. Schroeder, one of the professors of the Catholic University at Washington, is much less important, in a general sense, than it has been represented to be. Mgr. Satolli, says Dr. Schroeder, in approving the regulations and prohibitions of the Bishop of Columbus, touching the liquor traffic, dealt only with a particular case of episcopal prerogative, and he "never intended to promulgate a fundamental declaration as to the liquor question, with respect to the advantage or disadvantage, the propriety or impropriety, of the manufacture, sale, or use of spirituous liquors, or with respect to temperance, total abstinence or prohibition.'

The delegate's utterance, it would thus appear, was simply designed to preserve, sustain and defend the authority of a particular bishop, and its purpose was to enforce discipline in the particular diocese directly affected, by confirming the right of a bishop to issue independent regulations in furtherance of the spiritual welfare of his people. But, says Dr. Scroeder, it is an exaggeration if the approval extended to a local regulation is represented to mean the promulgation of a regulation for other dioceses, and "it is a distortion of the utterances of Mgr. Satolli to stamp them as a declaration of war against the proprietors or frequenters of saloons, or against the use of spirituous beverages generally."

MASQUERADED IN FEMALE ATTIRE.

Quite a sensation was created in Halifax a few nights ago by the arrest of a man in woman's clothing. The supposed girl, who is young and good-looking, arrived in Halifax about a month ago, and soon attracted the attention of a number of the chappies. One of them paid the board for three weeks of Miss Mary Cullen, the name given, and several young bloods, including a city physician, had "her" out driving, but they soon commenced to get on to the fact that Mary was not all she pretended to be, and the police were given information since the arrest. When the investigation went to examine the prisoner, she discovered that "Mary" was of the masculine sex. The man then made a clean breast of it. He said his name was Thomas Cullen, and that he had been masquerading as a girl for two years, having done St. John, where he mashed the policemen, and all the provincial towns before coming to Halifax. He had worked as a servant girl and nurse maid several times, and quite enjoyed being with the female help. Cullen is but 24 years of age, and his make-up was perfect. He was professing to give music lessons in Halifax.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A DOCTORS' DIFFERENCE.

SIR,—Judging by the tone of the answers to "Dr. Dorsey's question asked of Mr. Brown," one would be led to believe that the former gentleman thought the latter did wrong in administering to the injuries received by the old lady by the accident. But if I read his communication aright he simply referred to the fact that the so-called Dr. Brown had no legal right to the title of Dr., not caring whether or not he had raised the dead, worked miraculous cures, or even carried on the practice of all the other physicians put together. Now, why stick to such an unfounded mistake and not answer his first letter with all straightforwardness, coming to the point, and if needs be drop the subject? But no. Dr. Dorsey was not shown fair play, but was pounced upon in a most unreasonable manner. And again, this "most powerful medical education" is being continually harped on. Did Dr. Dorsey say he had a most powerful education? No, he did not; he simply said that the Medical Act of to-day required that a most powerful education was necessary to obtain the title of M. D. One would think by "Critic's" communication, that Dr. Dorsey had not a friend in the wide world to defend him. Poor fellow! What a most deplorable condition to be in! Because his friends do not choose to come forward and make laughing-stocks of themselves by scribbling in the press, does that go to prove that he has no friends? Perhaps his friends are not confined to a certain few who dare not for conscience sake step outside the boundry line of a "certain pampered up circle," who never had the cold courage to ask whether or not Dr. Brown was practicing under legal certificate. With all the writings which have appeared in the daily papers upon this subject, there has not as yet been an honest answer to Dr. Dorsey's statements as to Mr. Brown's legal right to practice medicine and collect therefor. He has himself given a half satisfactory answer. But it seems there has been a great amount of leniency shown him, while I doubt if another just as ill or as clever as he would be granted the privilege he enjoys. Mr. Editor, another word before closing. Dr. Dorsey's motive has been put down as jealousy. Now, I consider that a very mean resort to fly to, for, as far as I can understand, the above mentioned doctor has more to do in the way of medical practice than he is able to attend to, therefore, giving other physicians the benefit of his overplus, and has been known to (although so young) cure cases when given up by those of a practitioner of longer standing.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your space, I remain, one of Dr. Dorsey's many true friends.

HORSE RACES AT AMHERST.

Island Horses do Good Work.

AMHERST, Aug. 24.

The unfinished 3-minute race was won by John Almont, with Prince Charlie second and Douna third.

In the race for yearlings J. J. easily outclassed his field, winning with the greatest ease, Tootsie Sloper, second; Gussie Wilkes and Gudrun dividing third and fourth moneys.

The three-year-old race was between two Island horses, Brighton Boy and Hatasu. In the first heat Brighton Boy led Almont to the three-quarter pole, when he left his feet and Hatasu passed him and won the heat by two lengths in 2.39¼, which was very fast considering the strong breeze blowing down the stretch. Hatasu led throughout in the second heat, with Brighton Boy second and Welling third. Princess Belle, Champe and Agalon, who were distanced in the first heat, trotted off for fourth money, Champe winning, in 2.51¼.

The first heat of the free-for-all was won by Pilot Jr. in 2.31¾; Stranger second, Israel third and C. P. R. fourth. In the second heat Israel was first in 2.32¼, Stranger second, C. P. R. third and Pilot fourth. Pilot Jr. led throughout, in the third heat, winning in 2.26¾, with Stranger a very close second and Israel some distance behind. In the fourth heat Pilot Jr. finished a length ahead of Stranger. But he made a long run, besides throwing Israel out of his stride by pulling out on the upper turn, and for this he was set back to last position and Stranger given the heat in 2.25¼. In the fifth heat Israel did good work, never lifting his nose, and came in first, with Stranger a good second, and Pilot, Jr. third. Time 2.27. The race was then postponed till to-day, darkness setting in.
