Selected Story.

LOANING A LOVER.

CONCLUSION.

At first my companion did not believe that I was in earnest, but when convinced of my sincerity his astonishment was inexpressible. I remember that he stammered out some faint objections, but I would not listen, and before retiring that night I whispered to mamma that I had made it all right with Mr. Sherrington, and she had only to observe how nicely I would manage the whole matter.

I sent Patricia off in the morning to find arbutus with Mr. Sherrington, while I waited to receive Mr. Redmond.

When he came I was in the garden and had ordered lunch an hour earlier than usual. My pale blue silk looked beautiful on the lawn grass.

"Pray come and see my tulips, Mr. Redmond," I called, as he walked up the avenue.

He came pleased enough, and as he was especially fond of flowers I had no difficulty in detaining him for more than half an hour.

Then, seeing him looking at his watch, I observed:

"We won't wait lunch for Patricia, for Mr. Sherrington is with her. They have gone roaming off after Spring flowers, and may not be back this three hours. Come in and have a bit of salad, with a cup of chocolate, Mr. Redmond. I made the chocolate myself, and can recommend it."

So I kept him for another half hour and he left, pleased with his visit.

Patricia and Mr. Sherrington came back only fifteen minutes after the usual lunch hour, the former so delighted with a profusion of pink arbutus as hardly to heed when a servant informed her that "Mr. Redmond had called to see her, and had stayed with Miss Gertrude for lunch."

She had put the rosy clusters in her dark hair and on the bosom of her graceful gray dress, and flushed with her long ramble. I think I never saw her look so perfectly lovely. He has been here. Very nice of you to keep her out of the way so long," I whispered to Clyde.

He looked at me queerly, but said nothing. I did not want you to expostulate with me as I believed he wished to do. and so kept apart from him during the evening, leaving him to play and sing with Patricia.

He was interresting, with his very natural manner of reserved modesty. I was glad that Patricia found him so. He was pale, silken hair that fell in shadowy curls over a beautiful forehead soft, dark eyes, softly modulated tones. He contrasted nicely with her dark, spirited beauty.

"Clyde has an elder brother—Raymond—just the one for Patricia," I mused. "I wonder if it cannot be brought about."

But I soon had my hands full, for at all hours of the day and night Mr. Redmond came to the Hermitage. And it was not long before my success as a decoy was patent to the most careless observer. He asked only for "Miss Gertrude." He came solely to see me.

In three weeks the crisis burst upon me. He proposed.

"I used to think Mr. Sherrington was your lover," he said, standing before me, the light on his frank, handsome face "but late observations has shown me that his visits here are for your sister. Since you are free, then will you not marry me? I can support you well, Gertrude, or I would not ask you to bind your future to mine. The death of my grandfather, two years ago, left me $50.000, besides some real estate. I have a pleasant home at the Hudson—retired but ellegant—where I would like to take you. What do you think, Gertrude? Could you be contented to leave your friends and live at Rose cottage with me?"

My amazement allowed me to stammer nothing intelligible. In some distinct way I temporized the matter, and begged Mr. Redmond to give me time for reflection.

He went away making an appointment for the next evening.

So thunderstruck was I by the revelation of Mr. Redmond's wealth, that I wandered about the house in a dazed way, not heeding how mamma was fretting about Patricia, who had gone to ride with Mr. Sherrington.

"What is the matter, mamma? Is it going to storm?" I said at last.

"To storm? Nonsense! Where are your eyes, Gertrude? But it is nearly 9 o'clock. Patricia has been gone seven hours with Mr. Sherrington, and I know something is wrong."

"What?" I demanding, arousing myself.

"I don't know."

Nine, ten, eleven and twelve o'clock passed. No carriage—no news.

At noon the next day the buggy drove into the yard. Patricia and Clyde Sherrington alighted. Patricia coolly presented her husband. They had been married the evening before by our pastor at Lowbridge.

"So nice and quiet," said Patricia. "No fuss, no notoriety."

She took her place coolly at the table

"You needn't hesitate to take Gage now, Gertrude; he's dead in love with you, and as I like Clyde best, I thought I'd decide the matter without any complications."

I think I was dumbfounded. But I found my tongue when Mr. Redmond came that evening, and I said, "Yes."

I give my experience for the benefit of others. It is dangerous loaning one's lover.

Dec. 6, 1877.

The Greatest Medical Discovery since the Creation of Man, or since the Commencement of the Christian Era.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been caused by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

DR. MELVIN'S CAPSICUM POROUS PLASTERS are acknowledged by all who have used them, to act quicker than any other plaster they ever before tried, and that one of these plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other plasters are slow of action. and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different: the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

Physicians in all ages have thoroughly tested and well know the effect of Capsicum; and it has always been more or less used as a medical agent for an outward application; but it is only of very recent date that its advantages in a porous plaster have been discovered. Being, however, convinced of the wonderful cures effected by DR. MELVIN'S CAPSICUM POROUS PLASTERS, and their superiority over all other plasters, they now actually prescribe them, in their practice, for such diseases as rheumatism, pain in the side and back, and all such cases as have required the use of plasters or liniment. After you have tried other plasters and liniments, and they have failed, and you want a certain cure, ask your druggist for DR. MELVIN'S CAPSICUM POROUS PLASTER. You can hardly believe your own convictions of its wonderful effects. Although powerful and quick in its action, you can rely on its safety for the most delicate person to wear, as it is free from lead and other poisonous material commonly used in the manufacture of ordinary plasters. One trial is a sufficient guarantee of its merits, and one plaster will sell hundreds to your friends.

Ask your druggist for DR. MELVIN'S CAPSICUM POROUS PLASTER, and take no other; or, on receipt of 25 cents for one, $1 for five, or $2 for a dozen, they will be mailed, post paid, to any address in the United States or Canadas.
