Flogging in the Army and Navy.

A protracted debate has taken place in the House of Commons this session (as in former sessions) upon the question of abolishing the punishment of flogging in the army and navy. For many years past a motion for the abolition of this punishment has been brought up and advocated, chiefly by such men as P. A. Taylor, Mr. Jenkins, Sir Charles Dilke, Auberon Herbert and other gentlemen who are rather more inclined to sentimentality than to practical legislation. The debate as usual ended this session by the rejection of the motion for the abolution of the punishment, but after this vote had been taken the Government on its own motion decided that the punishment by flogging in the army and navy shall hereafter be confined to acts which are liable to be punished by death. The penalty of flogging is thus practically abolished, as no court-martial will impose at once the two punishments, and would consider the sentence of death sufficient. The Home Rulers and English Radicals, being dissatisfied with the concessions on the part of the Government, successfully opposed further progress with the bill. There were many exciting scenes and after eight hours of wrangling the House adjourned at 2.45 a.m.

A LONDON BREWER GIVES A RECEPTION WHICH RANK, FASHION AND BEAUTY ARE GLAD TO ATTEND.

The season, says the editor of the London Truth, up to this has been a very slow affair; the court is still in mourning, and all the great houses are closed. This is partly due to 'bad times,' and, no doubt, also the existence of the ghastly and dismal bloodshed going on in Zululand. However, last week there was a brilliant fete given by Mr. and Mrs. Guinness, at their house in Grosvernor place. The mansion was built by the Duke of Westminster for his son, Earl Grosvernor, but passed into the possession of Baron Stroussberg, who figured there for two or three seasons, and then drifted into the hands of his creditors. All the rank, fashion and professional beauty of London were there. The tapestry hangings are in themselves fine, but they are too dark for London. The feature of the evening was the floral decoration. The orchids and exotics must have cost a moderate income. Even the cornice of one room was hung with garlands of summer roses, which, to the number of 10,000 blossoms, had been provided for he occasion. Why, oh why, was I not born a brewer?

Philip Theasdale, cashier of a St. Louis mercantile firm, drermed that the figures 2-2-2 would win in the Chicago races of the following day. He accordingly bought pool tickets on the three horses that were No. 2 in the entries as figured on the pool room blackboard. They won races. On the following day he repeated the operation. Altogether he made $1,341 on an investment of $6.

Cardinal Newman was unable, through ill-health, to take possession in person of his titular church at Rome, San Giorgio in Valabro, and delegated Mgr. Stonor to represent him. Cardinal Manning has written him to express the joy the English Catholic Bishops felt at the elevation to the Sacred College of one who for thirty years they had regarded with so true a friendship for his many virtues, his sacradotal example and his signal services to the Catholic faith.

In the following vigorous words, Whitelaw Reid describes what he considers to be true independence in journalism:—"I may claim to have been one of the apostles of independent journalism, but the zeal of the new converts has quite left me among the old fogies. It never occured to me that in refusing to obey blindly every behest of a party it was necessary to keep aloof from party—to shut off one's self from the sole agency through which among free people, lasting political results can be obtained. A government like ours without party is impossible. Of all the puerile follies that masqueraded before high heaven in the guise of reform, the most childish has been the idea that the editor could vindicate his independence only by sitting on the fence and throwing stones with impartiality for alike at friend and foe."

The London Times correspondent at Ischl says:—"A journey across three-quarters of Western Austria shows that the crops of Upper and Central Bohemia have run unduly to straw, in consequence of the unprecedented rain-fall. In the valley of the Danube, above Linz, the fields are superb, but it is feared the continual rains will prevent successful harvesting. The same anxiety is prevailing throughout the east, and is now being intensified by almost daily showers."

The French authorities have interdicted a great meeting at the Bordeaux Alhambra, where M. Blanqui was advertised to speak.

CATARRH.

Constitutional Catarrh Remedy
CURES CATARRH.

Hear what a Reverend Gentleman says of the Constitutional Remedy.

T. J. B. HARDING, Esq., Brockville, Ont.:—

DEAR SIR—It is now two years since your "Constitutional Catarrh Remedy" was introduced to me. I have waited this ong to see if the cure would remain permanent before doing this, my duty, to you, as at first the happy effects seemed to me to be "too good to be true."

I was afflicted in my head for years before I suspected it to be Catarrh. In reading in your Circular I saw my case described in many particulars. The inward "drop" from the head had become very disagreeable, and a choking sensation often preventing me from lying long, I would feel like smothering and be compelled to sit up in the bed. My health and spirits were seriously affected. When your agent came to Walkertown in August, 1876, I secured three bottles. Before I had used a quarter of the contents of one bottle I found decided relief, and when I had used two bottles and a third, I quit taking it, feeling quite cured of that ailment, and have not used any since until of late I have taken some for a cold in my head.

A sense of duty to sufferers from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, prompts me to send you this Certificate, unsolicited, with leave to make what use of it yon may see proper
Yours truly,
W. TINDALL, Methodist Minister.
