The Discovery of America

IT WAS AFTER BITTER DISAPPOINTMENT THAT COLUMBUS FOUND LAND.

Columbus, whose keen eye saw signs of rising mutiny, took steps to meet it. The men who were timid he encouraged with kind words. To the ambitious he spoke of the great wealth they would find in the new countries. Those who were openly rebellious he threatened with the severest punishment. Thus, by managing the men with tact, he kept them on their posts as duty till September 25, when, from certain favorable signs, every one grew hopeful that land was near. The sea was now calm, and, as the ships sailed close together, wafted westward by gentle breezes, Martin Pinzon, who commanded the Pinta, cried out, "Land, land!" and forthwith began to chant the "Gloria in Excelsis." But he had been deceived by a ridge of low-lying cloud. For a week following, from many favorable indications, all on board were confident that as each day drew to a close land would be discovered on the next—and with each morning came bitter disappointment. This state of feeling continued till October 7, when, as the Nina, the smallest of the vessels, was breasting the waves ahead of others, she suddenly hoisted a flag and, as a signal that land had been sighted, fired a gun, the first ever heard upon those silent waters. But the ships sailed on and no land came in view.

The high hopes of the sailors now left them. The golden countries promised them seemed to recede as they approached. They became firmly resolved that they would give up the search after phantom lands and return to their homes. Columbus had exhausted his powers of persuasion. He now boldly announced that he would continue his voyage to the Indies in spite of all dangers. Doubtless he knew he could not much longer control his turbulent, hot-tempered followers. But the 11th of October, the day after he had come to an open rupture with them, brought unmistakable signs that land was near—such indications as fresh weeds that grew near running water, fish that were known to live about rocks, a limb of a tree with berries on it, and a carved staff. Every eye eagerly scanned the horizon. Night came on, however, and land had not been discovered; but the eager men were too happy to close their eyes to sleep. About 10 o'clock Columbus saw a light in the distance which moved to and fro in the darkness; and, shortly after midnight a sailer on the Pinta made the welcome announcement that land could be seen. The ships now took in sail and waited for the morning. As the 12th of October dawned, and the light of the rising sun dispelled the soft morning mist, Columbus' patience and unflagging zeal had their reward. He could plainly see land; and he tells us it looked "like a garden full of trees." It was an island belonging to what is now the Bahama group.—(July St. Nicholas.

The Homestead Lockout.

Christ Evans, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, arrived at Pittsburgh from New York on the 12th inst. The object of Mr. Evans' visit is to give the situation in his official capacity as an executive officer of the federation. He will report to the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor. The troops have taken possession of the Homestead works and everything is quiet.

The Homestead expedition of the militia is an expensive undertaking and will cost the State a good round sum of money. The National Guard of Pennsylvania consists of 8,470 members, of which fully 8,000 have responded to the Governor's call. Of these 600 are commissioned officers. It will cost the State about $22,000 a day until the troops are recalled.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 12.—The idea of the locked out men that they still have a voice in the management of this town was shown this morning when Capt. Hunt, of Battery B, was unloading his guns from a flat car opposite Homestead station. A crowd watched the proceedings with great distrust and suspicion and then appointed a grievance committee of three to order Capt. Hunt to desist. They went to him and said: "See here, you haven't any right to unload that cannon here. This is a peaceful town. You had better quit right now. There are a lot of hot-headed people around here and we won't answer for the consequences if you try to land that gun."

The captain took no notice of the interruption and the committee went away. They had another consultation with their principals and returned again. Seeing that they couldn't scare the battery, they left for good.

A crowd of strikers objected to General Gobin, of the Third Brigade, taking possession of an empty house in Carnegie row for his headquarters. General Gobin's brigade flag is planted in the front garden. The committee marched up to Colonel Green, Provost Marshal, who is located near the house, and demanded to know about it.

"We want some information about that flag they've stuck there," they said. "The owner of that house is out of town, and we are looking after his interests. We want to go through the lines and see about it." The men were some of the brilliant special officers, with tin badges, sworn in by the Burgess. Colonel Green told them they could all go through the lines if they liked, and laughed heartily at them, as they had really been trying to find out if the military were going to sneer at their badges so as to get up a new grievance. They soon saw there wasn't anything in the strategy and they departed. It is needless to say that General Gobin occupies the premises with the full consent of the owner.

The refusal of General Snowden to consent to the reception and brass band business has infuriated some of the men. They want recognition of some kind, and they don't like to see themselves reduced from the high office of dictators to that of plain citizens without so much as a finger within gunshot of the pie.

Curious Facts.

A stream near Tucson, Arizona, petrifies all soft substances thrown into it. It is in the great Colorado potato beetle belt, and at the time of their migrations thousands of them strike the water and are converted into solid stone.

At the laying of the corner-stone of a small synagogue for Russian Jews in Whitechapel, London, by Lord Rothschild, on Her Majesty's birthday, the most striking feature was the hearty singing by the entire congregation, of "God Save the Queen" in Hebrew.

A boy fourteen years old, who lives near Waycross, Ga., is said to greatly resemble an alligator. Scales of a delicate texture can be seen all over his body. He has a flat head, a long wide mouth and eyes like an alligator. His legs and arms are flat and crooked at the joints. He can neither talk nor walk, but bellows and crawls like a reptile.

In the reign of Richard II., 1390, the dandies of London wore shoes with toes from one foot to eighteen inches in length, with the point or "horn" turned up and fastened to the garter by a gold or silver chain.

MEMORIES.—A number of visitors by S. S. Miramichi last evening were eagerly seeking mementoes of the city, but as the jewelers were all closed they were disappointed. If such tokens could have been procured, the purchase of at least twenty was guaranteed.

Lumber Rising.

OTTAWA'S STAPLE EXPECTED TO COMMAND HIGHER FIGURES.

(Ottawa Free Press.)
The lumber trade is prosperous. Orders from outside cannot be filled. Men wanting to make contracts with the mill owners direct find they cannot. The output of the year as far as the mill owners is concerned is sold.

The majority of the lumber contracts are made early in the year before the thaw, and include the bulk of the cut. This year not only has this been done, but the class of buyers known as middlemen has been excessively busy, and speculated in whatever the Chaudiere men may have unsold after those contracts were made.

This not only applies to Ottawa, but to the mills in the surrounding districts. As a consequence the price of lumber is being fully maintained and with the probability of the re-opening of the South American export trade a heavy rise may be expected. It is now nearly two years since much was exported to South America. Now enquiry is very brisk and it looks as though several satisfactory orders would be placed with the middlemen in a few days. In the face of this prices have stiffened and a rise of at any rate $2 per 1,000 may be imposed within a few days.

EXTREME CONSTIPATION

AND CHRONIC INDIGESTION

CURED BY THREE BOTTLES!

MR. B. T. ELWELL, FORMERLY OF PATRICK, ARBOURTOOK COUNTY, ME., BUT FOR THE LAST THREE YEARS LIVING AT ROCKLAND, ME., NO. 5 BUNKER ST., WRITES:

"GENTS.—I am now 79 years of age. I have been troubled for twenty years with inflammation of neck of bladder and enlargement of Prostate Gland. For six years, have been afflicted with irregular action of the bowels, alternating between Diarrhoea and extreme Constipation. For two years the Constipation has been so great, that for five or six days would have no action of the bowels at all. I have been a great sufferer from indigestion with no appetite. Within fifteen minutes after taking food into the stomach, it would become strongly acid with extreme burning sensation, and no action of the stomach whatever. Prescribed by SKODA'S DISCOVERY and SKODA'S LITTLE TABLETS, I had taken many remedies, including castor oil, but by all the same failed to-day with not the least benefit. I had been taking your Discovery but a few days before I felt a decided change. I have now taken one-half course (three bottles) and have a fine appetite; not the least distress or souring after eating; bowels regular in action every day, and food tastes as good to me as when a boy; my bladder trouble has entirely disappeared. I feel as if I had a change of heart. I feel my duty to testify to the wonderful effects of your remedies.

Very truly yours, B. T. ELWELL.
