

11 Snow Plows Operate From Ch'town To Alberton

Department of Highways snow-plows were battling their way through drifts in many parts of the province yesterday in an effort to keep motor vehicle traffic rolling. The heaviest battles were being fought in the Western Prince area and the roads in the Summerside - Alberton, Tignish area were impassable all day yesterday it was learned last night from the official plow dispatcher at Charlottetown.

It was not until 8:30 last night that plows finally punched a jagged, narrow path through the drifts to let traffic resume between Summerside and Alberton. For a great part of the day two plows were stuck at Elmsdale. But although the Western road was opened last night to Alberton and a bit farther, in some parts heavy drifting was again filling the narrow cuttings that the plowing had been able to open in the evening.

ELEVEN SNOW PLOWS
A Montague curler who was returning from the Legion Bospital in Alberton, said last night that he counted eleven snow plows between Alberton and Charlottetown. He left Alberton at 8:30 and arrived in the City shortly before midnight.

The Montague man told of extremely heavy banks in the Alberton area and explained that their cars had been completely buried during the storm. Asked how high the cuttings were, he said in many places they were twice the height of their car and said it was difficult to drive because one could not see ahead with drifting snow filtering through the cuttings. On turns, or where there were sweeps in the road, the driving was particularly difficult and dangerous, he explained.

BETTER EAST
East of Prince County the situation was not nearly so bad, although plows were busy throughout the day in Queens and Kings County. The Montague road from Charlottetown to Summerside was open for traffic during the day but the going was heavy and cars were moving with particular difficulty in the area be-
