

Double Ring Ceremony Performed At The Basilica

Saint Dunstan's Basilica was the scene of an informal summer wedding, when Helen Lorraine, daughter of Mrs. M.G. McNeely, Charlottetown, and Conway Ellsworth of Bridgewater, N.S., were united in matrimony. Mr. Ellsworth is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Ellsworth of Dominion, N.S. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rt. Rev. Msgr. McMahon.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Henry O'Shea of Calgary, Alberta. The bride wore a ballerina length gown of embossed nylon organza with fitted bodice and a bouffant skirt. Her finger tip veil fell from a Juliet cap of embossed organza. She carried a cascade of white carnations and adiantum. Mrs. Henry O'Shea was her sister's only attendant. She wore an original Cecil Chakman model of imported French cotton in gold and white floral pattern.

Her accessories were white and she carried a nosegay of gold, white and red carnations.

The groomsmen were Mr. Reginald Lambert of Glace Bay, N.S., brother-in-law of the groom. The ushers were Mr. Gregory McKenzie of Antigonish, N.S., and Mr. Raymond Ellsworth of Toronto, Ontario, the groom's brother.

The guest soloist was Miss Norma Belair of Halifax, N.S.

A reception was held at the Charlottetown Hotel. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. H. F. MacPhee and was fittingly responded to by the groom. The happy couple left on a motor trip through the New England States.

For travelling the bride wore a light blue bengaline sheath dress with jewel encrusted bodice, and white hand made stole with white accessories. Her corsage was pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth will reside in Bridgewater, Nova Scotia.

MARY HAWORTH

Beloved Child Shatters Parents Admitting Appeal

Dear Mary Haworth: Her daughter Linda, 18, is an only child. Her father and I have worked hard to bring her up right in an atmosphere of love and trust. We have taken her to church regularly and have always tried to impress upon her the importance of high morals.

When Linda started to high school she was always popular and had lots of dates with many different boys, all of whom we considered nice and clean-cut. In her sophomore year, she met and started dating Tom, two years her senior.

My husband and I both liked Tom and never worried when Linda was with him. We were pleased when she announced that she was "going steady" with him. We wanted them to enjoy themselves and be happy, so we always let Linda date him as often as she wished; and we always gave her a certain hour to be in, and she was never late.

AT WITS' END

Linda graduated this year at the top of her class and won a generous scholarship. We gave her a hope chest as our gift, feeling sure she would be pleased that she took one look and turned away. When her father put an arm around her and said "Don't you like it, Baby?" she burst into tears and ran to her room. I followed and tried to comfort her.

She told me that she and Tom had been having an affair for three months. She said she had held him off for almost a year, but couldn't any longer because she loves him; and that they plan to marry as soon as he graduates from college, in two years.

Her father and I talked it over. Our first thought was to break it off between them, but I fear this might cause Linda to sneak and lie. We are at our wits' end. We both have talked calmly to Linda, to try to make her aware of the damage and dangers, but she only says she knows all this, but loves Tom. Please help us. L.N.

ASLEEP AT SWITCH

Dear L.N.: This is indeed a delicate and difficult situation for distressed parents to try to take hold of and rectify. The more so since you can't fathom your over-sights, that left Linda to blunder into such heartache for all three of you.

I gather that you had lulled your daughter into a false sense of security, as regards Tom's role in Linda's life. Also that you gave undue emphasis to the supposed importance of "boy-popularity" in a growing girl's scheme of things—as if this were the prime requisite, first and last, of a maidens' happiness.

In fantasy you had pictured Tom as the total answer to the dating "problem" in Linda's high school years. You "imagined" him as a parent-surrogate, a person to whom Linda was as dear as she is to you; a squire who would cherish her as loyally as you do, in your dotting fashion.

But in truth, Tom wasn't sufficiently mature to safeguard another's welfare (particularly his sweetheart's) against his own primitive impulses. He was more child than man in dealing with himself. And wise parents would ways alert to this possibility, in supervising boy-girl relationships—never relegating responsibility to adolescents, that is properly their own unremitting concern.

TALK TO BOY

As for Linda, apparently she equated loving with pleasing the beloved, on the beloved's terms, regardless of hidden cost to her innermost convictions, or feelings, or growth aspirations. This compliance on her part suggests that she didn't learn (wasn't encouraged to feel), in formative relation to parents, that a certain freedom of soul, a certain unyielding selfhood, is the very core of moral strength and admirable character, at any age.

Figuratively, Linda loves Tom as she has loved her parents, surrendering her tentative will to their respective dictates. This is a price of your having kept her "babied"—trying to "transfer" her into a good life, instead of helping her grow into it (which is the much harder pace for parents).

As for what to do, I wonder you haven't talked to Tom. Linda loves him, yes; but are you afraid he doesn't love her; and that he might take the initiative in breaking off, if you called him on the carpet? In my opinion, he should be called into constructive forward-looking discussions, designed to promote love's welfare. Ask your local Family Service Agency for guidance in wisely handling such parleys. M.H.

Hogg-Cairns Wedding At Trinity Church, Summerside

A pretty summer wedding was solemnized at Trinity United Church, Summerside on Saturday afternoon, July 21st, at 2 o'clock, when Birdie Mae, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wyman Cairns, Summerside East, exchanged vows with Hazen Bruce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hogg, Central Bede-que, in a double ring ceremony performed by Rev. C. Daniel Matheson. Miss Mary Goldhart was in charge of the wedding music and accompanied Miss Ruth Cairns sister of the bride who sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" while the register was being signed. The church was decorated with baskets of summer flowers and mock orange blossoms.

The lovely, young bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white floor-length wedding gown which was an original creation.

The bodice of Chantilly lace was designed with square scalloped neckline and fitted midriff. The deep pleatum was caught up with tiny crystal bows and fell over a bouffant skirt of crystallette over taffeta. The separate lace sleeves ended in scallops over the hands. Her chapel-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a Juliet cap of Chantilly lace and she carried a cascade bouquet of yellow mums.

Miss Mary Cairns attended her sister as maid of honor while Miss Doris Heckbert was bridesmaid. They wore ballerina length dresses of turquoise crystallette with fitted bodice, bouffant skirts and large bows. Poke hats of turquoise net with matching mitts and shoes completed their costumes. They carried cascade bouquets of white mums. Little Margaret Cairns, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and looked winsome in her dress of turquoise crystallette with short full skirt and matching poke bonnet, carrying a basket of yellow mums. Mr. Willard Hogg was his brother's best man and the ushers were Brad Clark, cousin of the bride, and Harvey MacKinnon of Charlottetown.

Mrs. Cairns chose for her daughter's wedding a blue flowered sheath dress with navy duster, white picture hat and accessories. She wore a corsage of pink carnations.

The groom's mother was dressed in tan flowered nylon with a blue picture hat her corsage was pink roses.

A reception for seventy guests was held at Birch Hill Tourist Home. Rev. C. D. Matheson proposed a toast to the bride to which the groom fittingly replied. Miss Dorothy Townsend was in charge of the guest book. Following the reception the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls. For travelling the bride donned a powder blue sheath dress with matching duster, white picture hat and accessories. On their return they will reside in Charlottetown where Mr. Hogg is assistant manager of M. F. Schurman Co. Ltd. prior to her marriage the bride was on the teaching staff of Summerside High School.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Claude Whittemet, Mrs. Bessie Gallant, Miss Phylla Tait, Harold Dobson and Harvey MacKinnon all of Charlottetown; Ed Dommerugh of Bloomfield, New Jersey; F.O. Donald Whiteho, Greenwood, N.S. and Miss Sandra Arnett of Belleville, Ontario.

Griffin-MacDonald Wedding Held At St. Margaret's

A pretty summer wedding took place at St. Margaret's Church, St. Margaret's, at nine a.m. July 3rd when Miss Margaret MacDonald, daughter of John R. and the late Mrs. MacDonald of St. Margaret's was united in marriage with Mr. Emmett Griffin, son of Mrs. Mary and the late John Griffin of St. Peter's.

The officiating clergyman was the Reverend George MacDonald, P.P., who performed the double ring ceremony, assisted by Reverend T.P. Butler.

The organist was Mr. Danny O'Hanley, the soloists were the Reverend Sylvaine Gallant and Miss Florence MacDonald. Their selections sung with reverential beauty were the following: "O What could my Jesus do more," "Sweet Sacrament Divine," "On this day O beautiful Mother" and "Pans Angelus."

The winsome bride looked lovely in a long white gown of net over nylon with a fitted waistline and full rippling skirt. Peter Pan collar, applied bodice and sleeves which came to a point over wrists. A halo of matching material with iridescent sequins formed her headress from which fell a finger tip veil. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

The maid of honor was Miss Frances Feehan. She wore a love-

LET'S EAT

Snappy Seasonings Give Veal Increased Flavor

By Ida Bailey Allen

"Many homemakers will visit France this summer, Madame," observed the Chef, "In Paris, perhaps they will buy a chapeau to wow their friends, n'est-ce pas?"

"Oui, Monsieur," I laughed. "Few women can resist a smart hat."

"Also," continued the Chef, "they will enjoy many new dishes, among the maitresses based on veal, the most popular meat in France."

MASTERPIECE RESULTS

"If I may say it, the French have a knack of making simple foods taste and look glamorous. This is especially true of veal, which in itself is a plain-tasting meat. But add snappy seasonings, cook it with care, serve it with glamour, and a masterpiece is the result."

"Veal is plentiful now all over this country. And it is also within the budget. It is good choice for weight-watchers because it contains little fat and is therefore low in calories."

"For our menu, I suggest this appetizing entree of la belle France."

Veal Timbales: In mixing bowl, combine and thoroughly mix 3 c. ground odiments cooked veal, 2-3 c. soft enriched bread crumbs, 3 eggs, 2 tsp. melted butter or margarine, 1/4 tsp. thyme, 1-16 tsp. cayenne, 1 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. monosodium glutamate and 1 tsp. paprika.

Rub 6 medium sized custard cups or timbale molds with butter or margarine. Fill with the veal mixture.

Place in a pan; pour in hot
