—We learn with regret that Mr. William Trainor, son of Mrs. James Trainor, of Johnston's River, suffered a painful and serious accident at that place a few days ago. —Mr. John Clay, a well-known and respected resident of Summerside, died suddenly at Conway yesterday. Mr. Clay was surveying in a field on the farm of Mr. B. Trowsdale when the summons came. A doctor was summoned who declared that Mr. Muttart had been attacked by hemorrhage of the brain and that there was no hope of his recovery. About three hours later death came. Mr. Muttart was for many years a member of the Summerside Town Council, and was respected by all by whom he was known. He is survived by a wife and nine children.

—The New Glasgow Chronicle says.—Mr. Hedley V. McKinnon son of the late Alexander McKinnon, Esq. of McKinnon & McLean, iron founders of Charlottetown, is at present visiting at his uncle's, Mr. George A. Mr. McKinnon was a member of Company G. of the first Canadian Contingent, sailed from Quebec in the troopship Sardinian in October, 1899, and was present in every one of the 37 engagements in which his Company participated. He never lost an hour from illness, and although often in the thick of the fight with the Boers never was actually hit with a bullet with force sufficient to wound. He has had however, many narrow escapes, and speaks of his campaign in Africa as one grand holiday, and although many of his companions in that contingent lie buried in the sands of that distant country, he is grateful that he has escaped. He returned in the troopship Idabo with twenty-four of the original Company G.

WEST PRINCE RECOUNT.

The recount in West Prince has resulted in Mr. Hackett's majority of three given him by the returning officer being increased to nine by the County Court Judge. Every one of ordinary intelligence felt that a recount would increase Mr Hackett's vote as partisan returning officers may always be depended on to give more than the benefit of a doubt to their own side. The ballot box thief knew this and endeavored to make up a majority for a minority candidate by stealing a box containing ballots largely in favor of Mr Hackett. The crime, however, has failed to accomplish what its perpetrator anticipated.
