

THE KLEENERS KLOST
By Ed. Orlowski.
Campus Ink is not Effective. Ho Hum
Diddy Yum Yum.

Ho Hum Diddy Yum Yum, annals will become channels. The old bossy boots type garbage bag yummied at such a big treat, the Captain muttered to himself.... thats four in a row, what in haunting googaggs is going on, these should be on the bulletin boards not in the garbage cans, they must have a catch of the KRABS or something, let see now, he took out his "lookie here's" (glasses) and started to peak-a-boo through this 14 1/2 X 22 1/2 news paper folder, the paper being of the quality though, of that of text book paper. Let me see now what it has to say- or not to say, as so many copies from different offices have been thrown out. Oh lookie here garbage can(garbage cans are called by thier first names as they are one trippers, and its not very long, they go to thier pre-destined place among the material things in life) Hummmmm on such good quality paper too---. The garbage bag was pickering for another chomp, when he burned out, yummie, this is even better quality paper than the pay stubs, yummie, yummie. The captain of this voyage, said "Oh no, one tripper, you're not getting these tid-bits", lets see if we could do something constructive with them. The one tripper garbage bag had that dark cloud atmosphere around him mostly from sulking, the garbage gobbler said to the captain "Do you realize that this paper has 28 pictures in it", "Ya", said the captain, and you would have eaten them all yourself, eh. In his island to island travel around the building, the Captain pinched some thumb-tacks, and thumbed the pieces of literature in the most conspicuous places which could be found, lets see what happens, he mumbled to himself. Before long, as students came into the building, they stood there in little groups, mulling over the pictures which appeared in this little paper, The paper "UPEI GRADS ON THE MOVE," one student was so taken aback by the little paper, that she pinched the copy from the bulletin board, and went happily on her way. It made the Captain feel good that this voyage was one that the students would enjoy, and by going home time, all the copies which the captain had salvaged from the noble mouth of one tripper, had been pinched from the boards by students who seemed to want them, and it made the captain wonder, just how many students will get some type of inspiration from these lovely papers of UPEI GRADS ON THE MOVE, it seemed to the Captain that these papers should be given out to the students, as a form of "Look at what UPEI has going for US, instead of sifting into the Garbage cans. Much time, effort, money, love, pride, etc. has been put onto the creation of this beautiful paper, it should be as comfortable for one to have it in thier home, as it is to wake up in the morning. If we don't really have pride in our grads, and what happens to them, well, I guess the Captain will just have to go on finding them in the old bossy boots type garbage can. Who knows, some Grads might even influence others to come to UPEI where even people like the Captain are proud of them, and thier accomplishments.... especially as we have become more aware of the creative frugality road to try and build a more closely knit University, every thing starts with the NOW of things, right now.
