Large Bird Reported In Richmond Area

Many reports were heard in Summerside yesterday concerning the recent presence of a large and perhaps dangerous bird in the Richmond area A check with some of the people of the area and with Mr. Linus MacDonald, one of the people who saw the bird, confirmed the fact that such a bird does exist.

Mr MacDonald, although uncertain as the species, said that he had been walking through the woods near Richmond when he saw the unusual bird at a distance of about 45 yards ahead of him through the trees. The bird was extremely large, had unusual fierce looking eyes and was waspnest grey in color.

Having heard previous reports about the bird he did not linger in the area. He returned the following morning. armed with a gun but could find no trace of the bird.

Other reports believed reliable, but which could not be verified, said that the bird, which some persons believe to be an eagle, was first seen a week ago by Wyman Yeo, about five miles from Richmond. Mr. Yeo was said to have been walking through a field to take home his cows, when the huge bird, about half the size of a calf and with the wingspread of about eight feet, swooped out of the sky, apparently intent on attacking him.

Mr. Yeo is said to have yelled for his dog which was in a nearby woods and that the approach of the dog scared the bird off.

Another report stated that Pat Barriault also from the Richmond area, while travelling on the road had had the bird swoop down towards him in a threatening manner.

In talking to a lady from a nearby district, she said that she and other mothers in the area were reluctant to allow their small children to travel to school through areas that are sparsly populated.

Stop Counting Days Untill Christmas

JUNIPER, N. B., Nov. 20 —(CP) Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot Shaw of this Carleton County community have stopped counting the days until Christmas.

They had been expecting their son, Burton, home from the war in Korea in time for a happy family holiday. The 24-year-old soldier was attached to the 23rd Independent Field Squadron, Royal Canadian Engineers.

Not long ago he returned to Korea from a leave in Japan. On Monday his mother received a birthday gift from him.

On the heels of the mail that brought the present came advice from the Canadian army in Ottawa that Sapper Burton Shaw was accidentally killed in Korea last Sunday.

SUNBURY, England — (CP) — St. Saviour's Church was started in this Middlesex community in 1912 and left half-built when funds ran out. Now a second foundation stone has been laid and the church is expected to be completed by next summer.

Eden Makes

Indian proposal, termed Eden's speech "constructive".

Authoritative sources said the U. S. position now is almost identical with that of Britain.

However, an eight-power group which forms a special advisory body for Western Powers, was scheduled to meet again tomorrow, indicating that differences on the Indian resolution are still to be threshed out.

No Soviet Comment

Soviet bloc sources said it is still too early to comment on the Indian plan which seeks to break the deadlock over war prisoners. A vote on the Indian resolution is not expected until late next week.

Eden told the committee the Indian resolution is "timely and constructive" and brings the problem nearer to agreement.

The Panmunjom talks, he added, are a "remarkable achievement" with only one issue to be settled—disposition of the prisoners. Eden said the UN is right to insist on the principle of non-forceable repatriation but as long as this principle is safeguarded the committee should not demand that the Indian resolution be "exact and perfect." The UN should not be bogged down in legalism.

Health Minister Paul Martin of Canada told a reporter Eden's speech was along the line Canada had publicly expressed to be the sound approach to the problem.

A French source said his government is in full agreement.

Asks Clarification

Eden called for clarification of two points in the Indian resolution—provisions about which the U. S. has expressed concern. U. S. sources said the U. S. agrees with Eden subject to clarification of the two points which are:

1. The fate of those prisoners who refuse to return home.
2. The composition of the neutral repatriation commission.

On the first point, Eden suggested that the problem of those prisoners who refuse to be repatriated be turned over to a special body created by the UN or to the Korean reconstruction agency.

Kirshna Menon, deputy leader of the Indian delegation, had proposed that the problem of these prisoners be taken up by a proposed political conference.

On the second point, Eden called for appointment of a fifth permanent member for the repatriation commission, instead of just an umpire.

India has proposed that Poland, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland and Sweden be members of the commission along with an umpire to break deadlocks.

Koreans Opposed

Y. C. Yang, Republic of Korea Ambassador to the United States, assailed the Indian resolution as "misguided and utterly unworkable." He asked whether the UN could be certain that the Communist prisoners would not molest non-Communist prisoners without the proper supervision.

He challenged Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky to agree to a fair and free plebiscite in all of Korea to determine whether the people of that wartorn land want to live under a Communist regime.

Let's Talk It Over

by "d"

The traffic problem in Summerside, as in many towns and cities, large and small, across Canada, is getting more troublesome every year. On Saturday evenings after eight o'clock, if a Summerside resident wants to drive down to Water Street, he may find that in order to obtain parking space he may have to leave his car halfway home. There is no parking space left within blocks of Water Street. The parking meters which are designed to relieve the parking situation in the shopping district, and also, of course, to bring in revenue, have failed in the first objective. Fifteen cents gives you three hours' parking (from 6.30 to 9.30) along the main thoroughfare, and with the dollar in such a lowly state, what is fifteen cents? So the cars which get there first usually stay till the party's over.

Would it be feasible to have two or three small zones on Water Street where cars were permitted to be parked for short periods, say twelve minutes? Suppose these zones each permitted the parking of three cars, and there were three zones. That would mean a turnover of 45 cars every hour, and 135 cars during the shopping hours on Saturday evening. This might look after those people who go down town to do a quick shopping chore, and get it over.

There are possible disadvantages. Women would probably find it cramped their shopping technique considerably. Then, the shuttling back and forth of cars in these zones might interrupt the flow of traffic down our narrow main street. We seem to have our full share of impatient motorists who blare horns at the least impediment to their progress. A session in one of our large cities, such as Toronto, where in rush hours cars crawl along, bumper to bumper, for hours on end, might make them look on our brief traffic jams with a little more tolerance.

We must agree with those who point out that cars are being allowed to park too handy intersections in our downtown district. They cut off the driver's vision to his right or left almost entirely, and turning these corners becomes sometimes a leap in the dark. It's a wonder there are not more collisions.

New Session

Speech from the Throne. Red-robed justices of the Supreme Court of Canada, diplomats and representatives of the defence forces listened.

A few hours earlier, members of the Senate and Commons had met to prorogue the sixth session, adjourned last July 4.

Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret of the Supreme Court of Canada read the prorogation speech. It listed legislation passed during the session.

Reference was made to provision for payment of compensation to farmers who suffered losses as a result of the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease.

"Canada now is free of the scourge and my government is sparing no effort to bring about the resumption of normal exports of livestock and meat within a reasonable period," the speech said.

The speech opening the new session referred to Canada's record grain crop this year and said efforts will be made to renew the International Wheat Agreement.

Inflation Danger Lessened

"Our economic conditions remain favorable and the level of external trade is high," said the speech. "While the dangers of inflation have not disappeared, pressures have eased and it has been possible to suspend the operation of some of the anti-inflationary measures."

In labor, a bill will be introduced to outlaw discrimination because of race, color or religion in industry under federal regulations. This measure will extend this principle, already effective for firms doing government work, to industries such as railways, shipping and air transport that are under federal jurisdiction.

To Extend Health Program

The national health program will be extended and revised. Under the program, extensive financial assistance is given to provinces for improvement of hospital and health services.

Public works projects are earmarked for different parts of the country. Plans are going ahead for development of the St. Lawrence seaway and power projects. Money will be sought for construction of a causeway over the Strait of Canso in Nova Scotia, for a Newfoundland-Mainland ferry and for a ferry to operate between Yarmouth, N. S., and Bar Harbor, Me.

Projects for the conservation of water resources may be undertaken in co-operation with the provinces.

Amendments to the National Housing Act are planned, but no indication was given that the government plans to reduce the down payment required of home owners. It is believed the changes will increase the amount available for loans to home builders and also ease provisions covering federal contributions to slum clearance.

The Civil Service Superannuation Act will be amended to bring some temporary civil servants within its provisions.

Bargain Day Featured By S'side Stores

Yesterday was bargain day in Summerside as the two main department stores, R.T. Holman Ltd. and Smallmans Ltd, put on their annual good will sale. Out-of-town customers and townspeople as well flocked to the stores early in the morning and from the time the doors were opened until closing time the large staff of clerks, augmented by additional help, were hard pressed to handle the vast crowds who came to take advantage of the special bargains.

Parking space in the town limits was at a premium all day and although traffic was heavy the police were able to handle the throngs efficiently and no report of accidents was registered.

While adults were taking advantage of the merchandise values they found time to take the children to the toylands in both stores where could be found a dazzling array of toys to delight the hearts of the children.

Officials said yesterday that the results of the first day of the sale were most satisfactory and attributed the success of the sale to the quality of goods on display, the exceptional bargains and the fact that weather conditions made travel to Summerside a pleasant day's outing.

First County Leadership Course At S'side

The first of the County leadership courses sponsored by the P. E. I. Women's Institutes was held at the Town Hall, Summerside, yesterday with a good attendance of presidents and alternates from the different institutes of Prince County. These county courses are to be held to further advance the work of the Women's Institutes.

After the registration of delegates, the provincial president, Mrs. Harold Laird, opened the meeting with a few introductory remarks. Mrs. Edward Laughlin, on behalf of the Women's Institute executive, extended a hearty welcome to the visiting delegates and expressed pleasure on seeing such a good attendance, which showed the interest taken by the institutes, and introduced the delegates.

Informative Talk

Mrs. Julian Herring, a past president of the P. E. I. W.I., and now radio director, gave a very informative talk on conducting an institute meeting, the points the president should know and use in holding the interest of the meeting, the procedure concerning motions, resolutions, guest speakers, appointment of committees, and all that tends to make a meeting run more smoothly.

Mrs. Herring then lead a discussion on the topic when many interesting questions were asked by the delegates.

By a showing of hands it was revealed that practically all members listen to the radio broadcasts directed by Mrs. Herring on Friday mornings.

The president, Mrs. Laird, then gave an address on planning programs for institute meetings, stressing that institutes should first try to build up home life, community life, and work that is nation-wide. This year, she said, the institutes are studying soil fertility and work of the United Nations. She advised that programs be outlined for a year in advance, and said that this should include business, educational, and social items.

She endorsed a suggestion made earlier that the institute of the district attend at least one meeting a month to discuss farm problems with the men, at the Farmers Federation meetings.

Miss Robin, the institute supervisor, spoke on suggestions for soil and forest conservation, suggestions for Christmas gifts, and institute programs.She gave an interesting explanation of forums, panel discussions, and symposiums.

Discuss Problems

The delegates held interesting discussions on community problems, and heard suggestions for improving their soil by sending samples to the Department of Agriculture for soil analysis. Other suggestions supported the organizing of credit unions, community centres, farm fourms, garden, food sewing and calf clubs, home nursing, dental clinics.

Mrs. Oscar MacNeill, convener of arts and literature, gave an interesting description of institute participation in rural beautification, county hospitals, art festival, dental clinics, school and hall improvement, and stressed the need of blood donor clinics, and of ordering cod liver oil capsules for school and pre-school children.

Mrs. Maylea Manning, who has just returned from accompanying the Island team winners of the 4-H Club members to the Royal Winter Fair, reported on the work done by these clubs which were formerly known as Canadian Council of Boys and Girls Clubs. She also announced that local food clubs now have local leaders.

Mrs. Charles Yeo spoke on farm forums in which the whole family may participate as a group. She advised that when discussions come up concerning women that women should try to attend. The opinion was expressed that it is necessary for women to encourage men in organizing and attending farm forums.

In the evening films were shown on farm electrification, the principles of baking and principles of cooking, and a social sing song was much enjoyed.
