THE DAILY EXAMINER.

MAY 24, 1889.

Our Book Table.

The May number of the Century Illustrated Monthly Magazine begins Volume XXXVIII. The article "Round About Jerusalem," has been finely illustrated, is well written, and sure to please those whose minds are prone to turn enquiringly to the surroundings that were familiar to the Man of Sorrow.

The account of Samoa at this time, is a real contribution to our little knowledge of the Isles of the Navigators, and as the peculiar habits of the Samoan are well explained, and faithfully sketched, the interest in the Berlin Conference of the three Powers, ought to be correspondingly increased. It is all of a very satisfactory character, and as usual with the Century, will be widely read. Published by the Century Co., Union Square, New York City.

"The Painters of Parma," by Sylvanus Cobb, jr., has been issued by publisher Wm. Bryce, of Toronto. It is full of plots and ploys, and is a very readable Italian story of love, mystery and adventure.

"The Scragville Bandits," is followed by other stories in the same volume. The publisher, Woodburn, of Ottawa, felt there was rather short measure for the price, has made it up with several others. 1st, "Jack and Jim"; 2nd, "Little Carl and the Blue Cap"; 3rd, "The Earl's Revenge"; 4th, "Tommy Dodd's Christmas Debt"; 5th, "Miss Chippy's Little Game"; 6th, "The Phantom Partner"; 7th, "Milly McCraw's Adventure"; 8th, "How two Kids Camped Out"; 9th, "The Magic Draught," and one more called "The Triumph of a Walking-stick." It is a very fair mental dinner of ten courses.

No. 59 of Bryce's Library is called "The Reproach of Annesley," and is chaptered in six parts, for the purpose, probably, of giving the reader good breathing time as he proceeds. It is varied enough to be interesting, and incident enough to keep a sleepy student awake.

A sort of two-in-one volume comes from Publisher Robinson, of Montreal. The first half is a kind of ghost story of anno 1586, full of good points and worth reading. The other half is a capital story of a blacksmithing girl, whose eccentricities were all on the right side. It is good all through, and ends as it ought to, in the arms of mutual love.

Red and Blue Pencil.

SHELLEY'S FATE.

(The Dominion Illustrated.)

Sir,—Under the heading of "Red and Blue Pencil," April 27, you speak of the death of the poet Shelley. "A storm came on and the boat was upset." But how? You further say: "In Trelawney's 'Record' the burning and the rescue of the boat from the flames are described." Trelawney's name is thus connected with the death. In the winter of 1882-3 I was at Leiric and at Shelley's house and was speaking of the fact over the dinner at the table d'hôte at the Croce di Malta at Spezia, where I was staying. My vis-a-vis happened to be Sir Charles Goring, whose mother was the daughter of a kind friend of my boyhood, Colonel John Harvey, of Thorpe, next Norwich. After dinner Sir Charles told me that his mother had married (the second time) E. Trelawney, Esq., and that when one of his half-sisters was in Italy (a few years before) she had been called to the deathbed of an old Italian boatman, who, having heard that a Trelawney was at Spezia, availed himself of the opportunity of making a confession—viz., that the "Don Juan" was not upset accidentally, but purposely, for the purpose of plunder. This curious story Sir Charles did not say whether he believed in it or no; he merely gave it as his step-sister gave it to him. I am sorry to say Sir Charles died in November, 1884, so that I cannot appeal to him; but I give the story, as I think it too curious to be altogether lost.

DAVID C. MOORE.

Stellarton, N. S.

In the volume on "Shelley," by John Addington Symonds, in the "English Men of Letters" series, edited by John Morley, we find just a hint of the possibility of foul play. "In fact," writes Mr. Symonds, in describing Trelawney's perplexity, soon to be changed into consternation, "though Trelawney could not then be absolutely sure of the catastrophe, she had sunk, struck in all probability by the prow of a felucca, but whether by accident or with the intention of running her down is still uncertain." If the story which Sir Charles Goring told to Mr. Moore be accepted as based on fact, the darkness of a still deeper tragedy overhangs poor Shelley's fate.

News Notes.

A despatch from Berlin says the position of the German Emperor with regard to the strikes of Westphalia, commands universal approval.

The Indiana coal miners have rejected the terms of the operators, and a huge strike has been inaugurated, which it is feared will last all summer.

A portion of a year's profits, amounting to over $44,000, has been distributed among 400 employees in John Wanamaker's Philadelphia establishment.

If the Sufferers From Consumption,

Scrofula and General Debility will try Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, they will find immediate relief and a permanent benefit. Dr. H. V. Mott, Brentwood, Cal., writes: "I have used Scott's Emulsion with great advantage in cases of Phthisis, Scrofula and Wasting Disorders. It is very palatable." Sold by druggists, at 50c. and $1.

Local and Other Items.

SACRED MUSIC.—A movement is on foot in Toronto to give sacred music in the Parks on Sunday.

The itching of the scalp, falling of the hair, resulting in baldness, are often caused by dandruff, which may be cured by Hall's Hair Restorer.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.—The seventieth birthday of Her Most Gracious Majesty will be celebrated to-morrow. THE EXAMINER will not, of course, be published.

HER MAIDEN MATCH.—A London despatch says that Lord Dunraven's yacht Valkyrie sailed her maiden match on Wednesday and was first home, but was beaten on time allowance.

GOING IT YOUNG.—A giddy young couple were married at River John, (Pictou County), a few days ago by Rev. Mr. Gordon. The groom was upwards of seventy, and the bride well up in the fifties.

VIRGINIA WEATHER.—A Harrisonburg, Va., despatch of the 22nd says that a severe hail storm passed over that section on that day. Snow fell in quantities and the ground surrounding the mountain is covered with snow.

HORSE EPIDEMIC.—A peculiar disease resembling malarial fever has become alarmingly prevalent among horses in and around Indianapolis, Ind. It is stated that about thirty per cent. of the horses in the city are affected.

ACCIDENT.—The Times reports that Wm. Knight, baker, now of Moncton, but formerly of Charlottetown, sprained one foot quite badly while alighting from his driving wagon some time ago. He is still quite lame, being obliged to use a stick in walking.

Never had a preparation a more appropriate name than Ayer's Hair Vigor. When the capillary glands become enfeebled by disease age, or neglect, this dressing imparts renewed life to the scalp, so that the hair assumes much of its youthful fullness and beauty.

THE RING.—The fight to a finish between Joe McAuliffe, of San Francisco, and Tom Lees, ex-champion of Australia, came off at San Francisco on Wednesday. In the eighth round McAuliffe put the Australian to sleep. McAuliffe was not hurt. Lees was badly used up.

THE HALIFAX CARNIVAL.—The Halifax Evening Mail will publish a Special Carnival Number, which promises to surpass any attempt in this line yet made in the Maritime Provinces. The paper will consist of forty pages, and will be illustrated by William Gill, the well-known artist.

THE USUAL STORIES AFLOAT.—Alexander Hayden left Pictou for River John in a boat a few days ago, but at latest accounts had not reached his destination. The boat has been found and it is supposed that Hayden has been drowned. He worked in connection with one of the lobster factories and was a single man. The usual stories are afloat as to the cause of drowning.

CAUGHT A SHARK.—The schr Minnie C., Capt. Saunders, captured a large shark ten miles off Yarmouth, N. S., light a few days ago. The shark took the bait and was hauled to the surface of the water on a 15-thread hand line, when he was harpooned, and after half an hour's hard struggle finally secured. He measured twenty-five feet in length and weighed two tons.

RAILWAY FACILITIES.—The Summerside Journal says: "We are pleased to note that the steamboat special stops at Travellers' Rest, when there are passengers to take on or leave off. This arrangement will be greatly appreciated by residents of that vicinity, and is another proof that Mr. [Unsworth] is anxious to afford every possible accommodation to travellers by the Island railway."

A NARROW ESCAPE.—A son of John Bishop, of Lawrencetown, nearly met his death last week by being trampled under foot by an ox. He fell from a stool, under the feet of the animal which was fastened in the stanchions. The Star says: "It became terrified and leaped wildly about striking the boy, but fortunately another boy in the stable had presence of mind to turn the animal loose, and thus rescued the imperiled lad who escaped with some bad bruises."

Marine Matters.

A miniature cyclone struck Halifax on Wednesday morning and did some damage to the shipping in the harbor.

The Portland schooner John Somes struck a ledge near Port Hood on Tuesday night. The stove upset and the vessel was burned. The crew escaped in dories.

The schooner H. S. Tierna arrived at San Francisco on Tuesday night, bringing Captain Saxe and crew of six men of the schooner Addie C. Haseltine, cast away on Ebon Island, March 19th last, during a terrible gale.

Advices from San Francisco are to the effect that the steamer Rockton, which brought the American sailors from Apia, is in a very dilapidated condition. The vessel has accommodations for 250 men, but 444 were crowded into her, and the confusion and suffering of the men thus occasioned was terrible. The Rockton was a cattle boat, and the food and water was bad and unfit for human beings. In addition to this condition of affairs there were 14 Chinese servants and waiters, and had first-class accommodations for keeping an opium joint going all through the voyage. As another indication of the mismanagement of affairs there were only six small boats of four oars each aboard the Rockton, totally insufficient in case an accident happened to the vessel.

FISHING GEAR.—We have the largest and best assortment of hook flies, casting lines, silk and hair lines, gut hooks, fishing baskets, etc., etc.—Geo. E. Hughes, Apothecary's Hall.

BIG TIME.—A good time is expected at the excursion on Saturday, 25th inst. Everyone is going.

Dr. Cronin.

A FEW FACTS CONNECTED WITH HIS DISAPPEARANCE.

YESTERDAY our despatches gave particulars of the finding of the dead body of Dr. Cronin, the well known Irish-American, in a sewer in Chicago. This information we to-day supplement with some particulars as to his disappearance. Dr. Patrick H. Cronin was the leader of one of the Chicago factions of the Irish Nationalists. Early on Saturday evening, May 4th, a young man drove up to his office and residence, No. 468 North Clark Street, Chicago. He rushed into the doctor's office and told him that a man at Sullivan's ice house in Lake View had been terribly injured, and must have his attendance. Securing his instruments Dr. Cronin jumped into the waiting buggy and in a moment was rolling northward. He did not return home that night nor Sunday, and Mr. Conklin, with whom he had lived nearly ten years, reported his disappearance to the police. Sullivan was seen, and said that nobody had been hurt at his ice house, nor had Dr. Cronin been there. Leading Nationalists, including J. Scanlan, declared it their belief that Dr. Cronin had been murdered by members of the Irish societies who were opposed to the doctor's methods as a nationalist. The missing man was regarded by many as the apostle of dynamite among the Irish nationalists, and many Irish-Americans are of the opinion that the advocacy of his doctrines had retarded the progress of home rule and other movements for bettering the condition of that race in the old country. Officers Smith and Hayden, of Lake View, early on Sunday morning saw a carpenter's wagon with two men, drawn by a bay horse, running at a furious rate towards the north. There was a large trunk in the wagon. Both officers saw the receptacle. Later at Clark and Diversey street they heard a vehicle rumbling over the pavement. It proved to be the same old carpenter's wagon, this time. Hayden noted the men's appearance as well as possible, but thought nothing strange in the occurrence. Alderman Chapman, of Lake View that morning saw three men standing around a trunk near Setzer street and went to the spot. The cover of the trunk had been forced open. The interior was bespattered with blood and partially filled with absorbent cotton, which was saturated with gore. Chapman drove hurriedly to the Lake View police station and gave the alarm. Capt. Villiers and a detachment of officers hopped into the patrol wagon and made a furious run to where the trunk stood. When they got there they found a large crowd of gaping men and boys. The trunk was taken to the station house. Captain Villiers found enough evidence to satisfy him that a grown person had been murdered, thrust into the trunk and then carted to the spot between two cemeteries. The trunk is large. A man six feet tall could be crammed into it. An examination showed that murder must have been committed. Villiers also found a lock of brown hair.

The Parnell Commission.

WILLIAM O'BRIEN GIVES FURTHER EVIDENCE

In the Parnell Commission on Wednesday, editor William O'Brien continued his testimony. There were some amusing passages between the witness and the attorney general during the cross-examination, and a sharp contest of wits in which Sir Richard by no means came out best. Being asked if he approved of the way the war of landlord and tenant was carried on, Mr. O'Brien replied that it was legitimate for a man who chose the side of a landlord to defend landlords. O'Brien denied that he had ever published in United Ireland articles inciting to outrage. The league, he said, was founded chiefly to oppose secret landlord combinations. The landlords had formed a combination having a nominal capital of £1,000,000 for the purpose of carrying out evictions by wholesale and replacing evicted tenants with colonies of tenants from other countries. He had been a member of the committee of league since its organization. The witness never heard a suggestion to encourage outrage. Several branches of the league have been suppressed in consequence of strong language used at meetings and excessive boycotting to which they resorted. Witness attended convention in America in 1886. He had no connection with dynamite while there. The bulk of those who attended the convention were of the highest standing. Witness saw Patrick Ford at the convention. He appeared to be sorry for the attitude he had previously taken. The cross-examination of O'Brien was conducted by Attorney General Webster. Witness said he could not produce any record of the league suppressing branches or protesting against boycotting. He did not consider boycotting unconstitutional. It was simply Irish for blackballing. He drew a distinction between criminality and illegality. "The Irish," he said, "have an earnest, healthy repulsion for criminality" as to illegality, meaning irreverence for the law, as the law is, "illegality is bred in us." This remark occasioned laughter.

Personal.

It is said that Mr. Parnell will go to Edinburgh at the close of June, and will receive the freedom of the city with due ceremony.

If Mr. Thomas Lynch, jr., signer of the Declaration of Independence, could have foreseen the future, he would have employed his spare time in writing letters and storing them away to be discovered by his descendants, 100 years later. A New York dealer in autographs recently paid $4,000 for a letter by Lynch—the highest price ever paid for such a document. Letters by Benjamin Franklin, John Hancock and other worthies of the revolutionary period can be bought for $20 a piece or less, but the value of an autograph, like that of a diamond, depends a good deal on its scarcity.
