Industrial Enterprises Act May Be Proclaimed By June

The act creating Industrial Enterprises Incorporated will likely be proclaimed within two or three months, Premier Walter Shaw said yesterday. The premier was replying to a question from Alex Matheson (L-4th Kings) following second reading of the bill in the Legislature.

Promoted by Natural Resources Minister Leo Rossiter, the bill calls for the creation of a non-profit company to promote industrial development in the province.

Mr. Matheson urged the government to make an effort to proclaim the act as soon as possible. "If you're going to attract industry, you must get going at a time when industry comes into the picture," he said.

He noted the directors of the company had already been contacted and were ready to begin operation. Directors named by the act are Carl F. Burke, John Simmons, William A. Rix and Austin A. Seales, all of Charlottetown, and William A. Arnett, Summerside.

EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

Premier Shaw expressed his appreciation to the Opposition, "especially the ex-leader" for co-operation in passage of the legislation which, he said, "opens the door wider for industrial development in the province."

He said they "facilitated passage of what I consider extremely important legislation to the province."

Speaking of possibilities for new industry, the premier said "at present we have one or two prospects we feel may be established in the province in due course."

"We also have a very interesting development taking place with federal departments which, if they go through, will be important to the establishment of new industry in the province."

Buffalo Stone On Way Here From Saskatchewan Plains

MONCTON, (Special) — A two-ton buffalo stone is on its way to Charlottetown by Canadian National box car from Saskatchewan to form part of the landscaping of the Fathers of Confederation Complex in Charlottetown.

The stone, a composite of quartz and granite, will be a tangible link between the birthplace of confederation and the prairies.

Buffalo stone is the name given to any large rock used by buffalo each spring to scrape off heavy winter hair from their forequarters. They are found on the prairies in hollows formed over centuries by herds of buffalo milling round the stone. The corners are worn smooth and the stone is stained with blood from buffalo hides. The stones are a reminder of the days when large herds of buffalo roamed the prairies.

Finding a buffalo stone is no easy task. The request for one was made to the Saskatchewan Arts Board on behalf of the Fathers of Confederation Corporation by Nels Bergren, a barber at Imperial, Sask. who is also a well-known prairie artist, found an appropriate stone at Last Mountain Lake near Imperial.

The stone was transported by road to Regina, and loaded aboard the CN car there for its long journey to Charlottetown.

Chickens Lay Golden Eggs For West Coast Producer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Theodore Cohen started raising chickens 20 years ago and they have been laying golden eggs for him ever since.

Mr. Cohen is president of Pance Poultry Ltd., a Vancouver-area company that claims to have the largest combined hatchery and poultry processing plant in Canada.

What started out as a meagre living for Mr. Cohen has blossomed into a business that last year netted $258,000. Nine years ago the company's net profit was less than $5,000.

Pance Poultry hatches eggs, raises broiler chickens and turkeys, freezes and packages frozen and fresh poultry and operates experimental kitchens to develop new uses for poultry products.

After 20 years of private ownership, Pance is opening the door to public money.

Two public issues of stock now are on the market—one for 12,000 shares of common stock at $20 a share and an issue of $40,000 cumulative, redeemable preference shares.

Proceeds from the sale will be used for reduction of certain debts and for general corporate purposes.

EXPAND PLANT

The company's plant in neighboring Surrey is currently undergoing extensive expansion. It will enable the plant to process 6,000 broilers—the equivalent of 22,000 pounds of chicken or 36,000 pounds of turkey an hour.

In 1964, the plant processed 5,174,000 birds. This year it is expected to process about 6,000,000. Egg production in 1964 approached the 7,000,000 mark.

Mr. Cohen said technological advances in the poultry industry since the Second World War have led to less disease, new knowledge of feeds and lower loss ratios.

He said only about 50 per cent of eggs could be expected to hatch in the early postwar years compared with about 80 per cent today.

Canadian broiler production increased five times in the years between 1955 and 1964 from 61,000,000 pounds to 304,000,000 pounds.

Although the company hatches chicks, it grows only a small portion of its broiler meat.

Ninety-four per cent of the company's chicks are raised to the broiler stage by 85 British Columbia farms under contract to the company.

Pance operates only four farms, all in the Fraser Valley. These farms produce broiler chickens, turkeys and hatching eggs. About 500,000 chickens and turkeys are grown on the four farms.

Queen Visits Uncle, Wife

LONDON (AP) — The Queen drove to a London hotel Thursday to call on her uncle, the Duke of Windsor, and his American wife.

It was the Queen's second call on the Windsors since eye operations on the former king last month for a detached retina. She visited them at The London Clinic March 15.

At that time she offered the duke the freedom of the gardens of Buckingham Palace during his convalescence. He went for a half-hour stroll there Tuesday.
