

Era Of Economic Expansion Seen For Atlantic Region

The Atlantic Provinces are entering a new era of economic expansion, according to Kenneth A. Ross, general manager of the Halifax Board of Trade.

He was in the province yesterday, attending sessions of the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council.

Mr. Ross said "it must be recognized that the four provinces, with a population of approximately 2,000,000, have a built-in consumer market within their geographical area."

"National manufacturers are beginning to look on the area where branches of their business must be established. As products catch on, production facilities are needed and this is leading to the establishment of new plants."

Mr. Ross said that Nova Scotia is going ahead "by leaps and bounds" as far as new industry is concerned.

INDUSTRIES LOCATED

He said that since Industrial Estates Limited, a crown corporation, was set up in 1957, it has assisted in the location of 37 industries. He said "22 of these industries were brand new to the province."

Examples of some of the types of industry which have located in Nova Scotia in the past few years, as given by Mr. Ross, were a $40,000,000 pulp mill at Port Hawkesbury, an $8,000,000 fish plant at Lunenburg, a $12,000,000 cement plant at Brookfield, the Volvo automobile plant in Dartmouth, a carpet factory and winery set up in Truro.

"In addition to the new plants," he said, "many existing plants have been or are being expanded. These include improvements to a pulp mill at Sheet Harbor, expansion of apple processing plants in the Annapolis Valley, and construction of research facilities for an electronics plant in the Halifax-Dartmouth area."

Mr. Ross said that other big projects to come include the construction of a $35,000,000 heavy water plant in Glace Bay, a $15,000,000 restoration job at Fort Louisbourg and the establishment of a second national park in the province.

TOURIST INDUSTRY

"All these things," said Mr. Ross, "are pouring money into the economy. On top of this, the tourist industry will have about $30,000,000 in the province this year."

He said "13 boards of trade in the Annapolis Valley area now have a full-time manager who, during the summer, promotes the tourist industry and, in winter, promotes industrial development."

"I think," said Mr. Ross, "that developments in Nova Scotia show that the aggressiveness of the provincial government and the forward approach of the boards of trade are giving leadership to Atlantic Provinces development."
