Shed Acre Farm Obtains Leading Hereford Herd

Shed Acre farm of the Island Development Company has purchased one of the Island's outstanding herds of Hereford cattle from owner Gordon Matheson of Hunter River.

The transfer of 34 females and two bulls to the Brackley Point area was to have started last Saturday — the sale transaction was completed on Friday — but the cold weather made the moving chore inadvisable.

The Matheson herd is headed by Romeo National Velvet, the four-year old bull that has been grand champion at the provincial exhibition at Charlottetown for the past three years, and champions at Charlottetown. The animals are part of a herd purchased from Gordon Matheson, Hunter River for the Shed Acre Farm by the Island Development Company. The deal included 34 females and two herd sires. Manager of Shed Acre is Ove Hansen.

Herefords from Ivan MacLean, Tyne Valley. He later purchased the best animals from the herd of D. Roscoe Walker at Kensington. Mr. Walker sold out when he became postmaster at Kensington.

The sale of his herd at this time — he has a number of young bulls left but has sold all of his females — was necessitated by ill health. Mr. Matheson has been having trouble with his back for some time, and finally decided to sell the herd which he had been building up for the last seven or eight years.

Mr. Matheson's daughters, Shirley and Heather attracted admiring glances from showing followers wherever they exhibited the animals.

Of some 20 animals, including Matheson's, now in the Shed Acre Farm herd, approximately 24 were brought down from the Shed Acre Farm in Elora, Ont., some nine miles south of Guelph. Some of the animals in the herd are feeders.

Liberals Seen Lining-Up Ammunition For Session

The government's transportation policy is one of a number of items expected to come under opposition fire in what may well be a lively session of the province's Legislative Assembly, which opens Feb. 18.

The Liberals took a stand last week on transportation, and they are expected to question the government on general transportation matters, particularly in connection with an all-weather road system and the proposed P.E.I.-N.B. causeway.

While some observers forecast a quiet session, with little new legislation being introduced and an election several years away, indications are that the 1965 session will see the traditional amount of fireworks.

Premier Walter R. Shaw has indicated that the report of the royal commission on higher education will be discussed in the House. Opposition Leader A. W. Matheson has called the report "null and void" and expected to query the government on higher education in the province.

Mr. Matheson has said that a large part of the session should be given to an examination of fiscal agreements between the province and the federal government.

Naturally, this is a subject of vital interest to Premier Shaw who, in the past few years, has repeatedly expressed dissatisfaction in the amount of federal money given to the province. He said "people want expanded services and the costs of these services are rising. With a limited amount of money, we can only cut the garment to fit the cloth."

There have been suggestions in federal circles that income taxes may be reduced. If this happens, this province will get less money from this source as its share of the tax will be smaller.

The premier has said that provincial revenue is limited with taxes almost at the saturation point. One suggested avenue for more revenue is an increase in provincial sales tax.

Government departments have been told to hold the line in preparing estimates for the 1965-66 fiscal year. If this is true, the level of services in the coming year will be no higher than last year.

The whole financial structure will be probed by the opposition and it is expected that the government's deficit financing will be severely criticized.

The two Feb. 9 provincial by-elections will have an effect on the workings of the session. The Conservative majority will be changed — if it is less — this should give the Liberals heart for a more savage attack on government, and if the government majority increases, this could be taken as a sign of confidence in the government, and could lessen the effectiveness of the opposition.

Premier Shaw said yesterday that he "is not too happy with the recent economic agreement between Prime Minister Pearson and American President Johnson. It looks as though Central Canada is being favored and I intend to speak on this matter at the session."

The premier said "work in preparation for the session is moving along fine. Estimates of several departments have been completed and some work has been done on the Speech from the Throne."

Commenting on the Throne Speech, the premier said, "we have been criticized for the speech in the past few years at great length. Some people say it is too long, some say it is too short. Last year, the leader of the opposition spoke on it for three hours after saying there was nothing in it."

The premier said that cabinet ministers will be "giving very detailed reports of the operation of their departments during the past year." It has been observed at past sessions that the opposition likes as much detail as possible on the operations of government. One Liberal member said "the more detail the government gives, the more it gives itself away."

So far, it appears that there will be no major legislation before the next session. Two pieces, however, that will at least be important are legislation providing for a water authority that will have power to control pollution and an act paving the way for consolidation in the elementary school system.

Legislators are quick to point out, however, that not all legislation planned for introduction is mentioned in the Speech from the Throne and a great deal may be brought in after the session is underway.

One subject almost sure to come up is that of Maritime union. The premier said the matter will be introduced and all members of the Legislature will have ample time to speak on it.

PREPARING QUESTIONS

The opposition has under preparation written questions on government policy that will be submitted at the session. The questions and answers for several years back are filed away by the opposition, and new questions, skillfully interwoven with the old, are sometimes submitted in an effort to catch the government ministers napping.

Prayer Week Services Are Concluded Friday

ALBERTON — Services for observance of the Week of Prayer concluded at Alberton Friday evening. They were held in St. Peter's Anglican Church Wednesday evening, in the United Church Thursday evening and in the Sacred Heart Church Friday evening. At each there was a large attendance of worshippers.

Participating clergymen were Rev. Michael Ness, Rev. David MacDonald and Rev. Gerald Steele. Each led the worship in his own church, assisted by the others.

It consisted of readings from the Old Testament, the Epistles and the Gospels, hymns, a confession of faith in the words of the Nicene Creed, a Litany, prayers of intercession for all churches and faiths, a prayer for Christian unity, and the Lord's Prayer.

Mrs. Ruth Somers directed the interdenominational choir which led the singing each evening.

At St. Peter's Church the organist was Mrs. Hubert Campbell. The hymns were "Crown Him With Many Crowns," "In Christ There is No East or West," "Fairer Lord Jesus" and "The Day Is Past and Over."
