GRAY FOX GETS EVEN

Though you are smart you'll find it true
That others are as smart as you.
—Old Mother Nature.

Reddy Fox is smart. Everybody knows that. Reddy knows it himself. He takes pride in being smart, and that is quite as it should be. But it is a sad mistake to look down on others for not being just as smart as you are, or think you are. Reddy Fox made that mistake. He thought himself smarter than his cousin, Gray Fox and so was a little scornful of him. He wanted Cousin Gray driven away from the neighborhood. He couldn't do that himself but he thought he could get Bowser the Hound to do it. He was sure that Gray Fox wasn't as smart as himself in fooling Bowser, and that if Bowser chased him enough Cousin Gray would give up trying to live in the neighborhood. So whenever he got a chance Reddy led Bowser to chase him, then switched him on the trail of Gray Fox, at the same time breaking his own trail. This left Gray Fox to get rid of Bowser if he could.

"Listen," commanded Mrs. Reddy.

eager voice of Bowser chasing Gray Fox. "Cousin Gray isn't so smart that he couldn't be smarter." "Listen!" commanded Mrs. Reddy. "I'm listening," said Reddy. "They are coming this way," declared Mrs. Reddy. Reddy really pricked up his ears then. It was true. Bowser's voice sounded louder and louder. Of course that meant he was getting nearer and nearer. Could it be that Cousin Gray was leading Bowser back to the Old Pasture? He wouldn't dare do such a thing. Or would he? He would, later that they saw Gray Fox coming down one of the old Cow paths straight toward their den in the ground. "What does that fellow think he is doing?" snarled Reddy as he prepared to take to his black heels. He couldn't stay there. Of course not. Another minute or two and Bowser would be there. Already he was in the Old Pasture. Mrs. Reddy said nothing. She turned and went down inside the den.

A BAD HABIT

Most players take the old "rule" of "second-hand-low" far too seriously! Observe this typical case:

South dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♠ A J 5
 ♥ A 4
 ♦ 6 4 3
 ♣ 8 5 5 3

♠ K Q 10
 ♥ 5
 ♦ K J 2
 ♣ A J 7

♠ K Q 10 7 3
 ♥ J 6
 ♦ A Q 5
 ♣ Q 9

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣			2♥
2♦		3♦	Pass
4♦	Pass	Pass	Pass

East might well have passed to North's redouble and let West take care of himself—but the actual two-heart bid was not East's important mistake in the deal!

West opened the heart king. The ace was put up from dummy, and declarer then made the markedly correct lead of a low club toward the close hand.

East automatically played the club four on this lead from dummy—and there, to all intents and purposes, the defenders' chances vanished! South put in the club nine, and after West had won with the jack, he was helpless. Seeing the danger of the club suit's being established, West considered the advisability of leading back a low heart, on the chance that East had the jack and would return a diamond, but East had played a very low heart on the opening lead, so East now cashed the heart queen and exited with a trump.

South took the trump lead in his own hand, to preserve dummy's entries, and immediately played his remaining club. West ducked and East won with the king, but the diamond return at this point was futile. Having decided that the finesse would not succeed, South naturally chose to play for a 3-3 break of clubs, so he put up the diamond ace, led a trump to dummy, ruffed a club—and claimed his contract.

East should have anticipated the course of play and put his one good card, the club king, to use by playing it on the first lead of the suit and shifting to diamonds.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXK
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
