

CANADA

THIS LAND OF OURS!

Look about you. Look thoughtfully at the world in which you live.
In the centre of this wide and stirring stage there stands a nation newly come to greatness.

It wears its new mantle well. Already, its reputation stands high and its voice is heard respectfully. It is a ringing voice, speaking with vigor and clearly sounding a call of progress and achievement to all men of enterprise.

This is a nation that symbolizes freedom in action—and its accomplishments today merely foreshadow what is to come.

The products of its fertile fields, its vast forests and wind-whipped seas indicate, in their abundance, the potential of a land which is only just beginning to reach its full stature.

This is a nation of industry and commerce—of progressive people working hard and willingly to create all those things which enrich our living and typify, in themselves, the rewarding pattern of existence to which all men aspire.

This is a nation of peace-loving people, of friendly and hospitable people who cultivate those attitudes of heart and mind that tend toward horizons ever brighter—ever greater—ever more inspiring.

This is a happy land, a land without fear, without hate—a land of many peoples united in a deep and timeless love of all their country represents.

It is a youthful land, a hopeful land—and its name is Canada.
