Finds Long Lost Brother

Miss Nellie A. Green arrived in Montague on Wednesday evening for the first visit to her native province in sixty years, where she intends spending the remainder of her life.

The tale unfolded by this kindly old lady reads like a chapter out of a story book. Born in Cardigan, P. E. I., she was a daughter of the late Robert Green and one of eleven children. She spent her childhood at her birthplace and was fifteen left to seek her fortune in the land of our friendly neighbors to the south. Settling at Boston, Mass., Miss Green has remained there constantly ever since until her homecoming last week.

After her departure from home, unknown to her, Robert Green, her father had married a second time and left two sons, Frank at present in Montague and Peter in Bridgetown. The existence of whom Miss Green was unaware of until five years ago, when she heard of them through a friend. To the best of her knowledge, she is the only living member of her father's first family and she rejoiced at the knowledge that she had two living half-brothers and decided to visit them at the first opportunity. She arrived home this week and met for the first time her half-brother, Frank, who is fifty-seven years of age and expects to get to Bridgetown as soon as possible to see also for the first time, Peter, who is fifty-nine years old. She will also visit a niece, the widow of Vernon River and a nephew, John Green of the same place.

Asked about the change which took place in P. E. I. since she left she replied that nothing looks the same; everything has changed. There's a big improvement in the place, Charlottetown is grand, it has built up a lot. I would hardly recognize it. It's a different place than when I left there by boat sixty years ago. Montague is lovely place and I intend to remain here for the rest of my life. I had a lovely trip home but it was cool.

Kiwanis Reports Steady Increase At Boston Rally

BOSTON, June 20 (CP)—Nearly 5,000 Kiwanians from all parts of the United States and Canada attended the opening session of the 33rd annual Kiwanis International convention. Vial civic problems including adult education, urban-rural relations, vocational guidance for youth and juvenile delinquency are highlights on the agenda of the 1939-40 service club programs.

"Kiwanis has more clubs and more members than ever in its history," Fred C.W. Parker of Chicago, secretary of Kiwanis International, told the gathering in presenting his annual report. "There are now 2,028 clubs and approximately 104,000 members in the United States and Canada, compared with 103,283 members in 1938, pre-depression peak."

G. B. Newton of Columbus, Ohio, chairman of Kiwanis Vocational Guidance committee, stressed the importance of "scientific vocational guidance" in assisting young people which could not rely on its complex environment for steady employment.

Youth programs for young people after wondering constantly whether there is a place for them in this bewildered civilization," were urged by G. L. Kiwanis clubs in every community in the United States and Canada were planning "Young Builders" organizations in an effort to give the young, useful, creative life it deserves in a democratic civilization."

DOMINION LEADERS

Canadian delegations to the convention are in charge of three district governors: Reginald V. Harris, K. O. Halliday, Ontario; Taylor, St. Boniface, Manitoba; E. G. Macpherson, Regina, Western Canada district; and J. N. Emerson, Pullman, Wash., Pacific-Northwest district.

Mr. Taylor, St. Boniface, Manitoba, immediate past president of Kiwanis International and J. J. Smith, Regina, vice-president.

Greater co-operation with welfare organizations to prevent under-privileged homes from becoming "breeding places for all kinds of ills," Paul J. Kohler, Under-Privileged Child committee, outlined juvenile health, educational and court work carried out by Kiwanis during the past year.

Mr. Kohler advised delegates interested in child welfare work to set up play areas in large cities, nursery schools to relieve working mothers, repairing centers and free milk distribution stations in the homes of the unemployed, he said, only quick action by a trained social organizer could prevent despair and "winning way to utter defeat." Romuald Bourque, Montreal, is Canadian representative on the Under-Privileged Child committee.

Muri McDonald of Ames, Iowa, chairman of Kiwanis Agricultural committee and professor at Iowa State College, reviewed the relationship of urban to rural areas. He stressed the importance of greater co-operation between the two, made necessary by large-scale migration to urban areas and increased financial stakes of city folk in farm areas.

"In many locations, people operating farms have only a minor ownership interest in them," Mr. McDonald said. "City dwellers have a direct interest in the future of agriculture and farm families."

T. Cruickshank, to a breakfast over which was presided by the bride-elect, Miss Ellen Bonnell was greeted by very sweetly singing "I Love You Truly" and afterwards "chauffeur" in a streamlined bus with packages before the bride-elect. The guest of honor was assisted in opening these by Mrs. MacKenzie, Mrs. Ralph Puskie, Miss Minnie MacLeod, and Miss Rebecca MacDonald. Mrs. Cruickshank read a little address in rhyme which was composed by one of the friends present. After the gifts had been opened and admired and suitable gifts presented to the little "bride and groom," Carol so sweet in a long white dress with veil and orange blossoms, and Jackie, looking so proud in his long white trowsers, black frock coat and tall silk hat, the two tots brought in a beautifully decorated wedding cake. This was presented to the future bride who placed a knife in the cake, after which refreshments were enjoyed. Miss Mary Fulton took charge of the music for the evening adding to the pleasure of the large assembly of guests.
