THE DAILY EXAMINER.

DECEMBER 6, 1878.

A YEAR and a half have rolled away; and the DAILY EXAMINER still lives.

Indeed it may now be truly said that the DAILY EXAMINER is one of the "institutions" of the Province.

An appetite for a daily paper has been formed; and, judging by the increasing sales of the DAILY EXAMINER in the city, along the line of railway, and in the various towns throughout the Province, it is doubtful if the people could live without their daily paper.

Hard though the times and dark the prospect of the coming winter, it is our intention to continue the publication of the DAILY EXAMINER, so that the popular demand may be supplied.

Throughout the winter we intend to supply to the public, by means of the DAILY EXAMINER, a daily telegram containing news of all the notable events which shall transpire throughout the world in this great crisis of its history.

Through the DAILY EXAMINER the people of the Island shall--from day to day--and, independently of the Northern Light or Muttart and Irving--be informed of what is transpiring in Afghanistan, in Russia, in Germany, in the neighboring Republic, and most important of all--in the mother country.

We shall, if possible, send a special correspondent to report for the DAILY EXAMINER the Parliamentary proceedings at Ottawa, with special reference to those which most directly and most deeply interest the people of this Island.

The local news shall be given through the DAILY EXAMINER promptly, truly and as full as possible.

For the large means required to carry out this work we look to the people whose wants the DAILY EXAMINER will supply, and whose varied interests we shall assiduously endeavor to promote.

The original subscribers of the DAILY EXAMINER will, in the course of a few days, be called upon for a renewal of their favors.

The beginning of another term is a good time to subscribe; and persons who have not hitherto taken the DAILY EXAMINER would do well to subscribe now.

In connection with the DAILY EXAMINER the WEEKLY EXAMINER will be issued, at the unprecedentedly low subscription price of ONE DOLLAR a year--payment to be made in advance.

OTTAWA.

A GRAND ILLUMINATION AND TORCHLIGHT PROCESSION.

(Special to St. John Sun.)

OTTAWA, Dec. 4.

The members of the different deputations from Western Canada, at present in the city, despatched a message to Rideau Hall last night, expressing a desire to pay their respects to Her Royal Highness, and requesting the appointment of an hour for that purpose.

No answer was received to this message, which was sent shortly after ten o'clock, beyond the announcement that Major DeWinton, the Governor's Secretary, had retired.

This morning a second message was despatched, and after considerable delay an answer was received, which announced that the members of deputations would be received at three o'clock.

They accordingly went to the hall at that hour and was presented in regular form, H. R. Highness and his Excellency shaking hands with each of the gentlemen presented.

The Princess was attired in a black velvet dress with satin bodice of same color, jet ornaments and black silk gloves. His Excellency and staff wore a plain morning dress.

The members of the English press were invited to dinner at Rideau Hall to-day, and considerable feeling is expressed in a certain circle at members of the Canadian and United States press, who accompanied the Vice-Regal party from Halifax, being ignored, several of them being still in the city.

To-night Ottawa is shining forth in all its glory, the weather being clear, and, although rather cold, on the whole favorable for the postponed torchlight procession.

Being Thanksgiving Day, and consequently a holiday, citizens have had especial opportunity to decorate and prepare for the illuminations and their efforts in this direction reflected general credit on their good taste; some of the displays being exceedingly fine.

A strong wind prevailed throughout the night and prevented many from putting out Chinese lanterns, which would otherwise have been in far greater profusion.

On Parliament Square a thousand lanterns and as many gas jets shone forth in all their refugence, and as the procession passed under the beautiful Civil Service arch the scene was dazzling beyond description.

Fifty men, stationed on the four towers of the arch, waved flags and torches, and joined in the enthusiastic cheers of the multitude, as the distinguished party passed beneath them.

Among the best private displays made was that of J. R. Andy, whose house and grounds were beautifully illuminated, while in front was an Indian wigwam, a couple of Indians in war paint and feathers, smoking the pipe of peace around the camp fire, adding largely to the effect of a very picturesque scene.

Nearly every street in the city had its share of transparencies, etc., while the leading thoroughfares appeared like streams of fire when viewed from the tower of Parliament buildings.

By 6.30 o'clock the torchlight procession was formed at the City Hall Square, and accompanied by three bands, proceeded to New Edinburgh Bridge, which is half-way between Rideau Hall and the city, where they met His Excellency and her Royal Highness and suite, who rode in an open carriage accompanied by an escort composed of dragoon guards under Capt. Stewart.

The Vice-Regal party having taken their position in the procession, the march through the city was immediately commenced.

There were three hundred torch-bearers, principally firemen of the different city corps, who were in uniform.

A large bonfire had already been started on a small island near New Edinburgh Bridge, and its lurid glare lighted up the surrounding neighborhood, and formed a magnificent background to the scene, as the procession started off.

As the cavalcade passed through the streets, throngs of people waved their hats, and enthusiastic cheering was kept up along the entire route.

There could not have been less than fifteen thousand people on the streets, and an unbroken line of conveyances of all descriptions fully two miles in length followed after the official carriages, during which bonfires of mammoth proportions were started in three prominent points of the city, and rockets were sent up in all directions; and the bells of city churches rung out a merry peal during the progress of the procession.

The demonstration was undoubtedly the best ever witnessed here.

His Excellency will hold a levee in the Senate Chamber to-morrow afternoon, when it is expected a large number of citizens will pay their respects.

Matrimony.

Ah, blessed thought to contemplate
From happy youth to manhood's dawn;
Yes, happy stage from marriage date
Till the frail ties of time are seen;
The joys of two are blended now,
And make the life of each more sweet,
Two minds adapted each to each,
The cares of married life to meet.

In childhood's pure and happy hours,
With faith and innocence combined,
In image thou was often seen;
Yes, ere thy name could be defined;
A few short years will come and go,
The dreams of youth will ripen fast,
Yea, now on manhood's brink you stand,
And now the consecration's past.

Such is the fate of most our race,
The course which each young lover runs,
None differing from the previous one,
But strangely varied in their turns,
The happy day is past and gone,
And family cares are to the fore,
And each a trust in each repose,
Pray Heaven bless them evermore.

Dependent on those sanctioned ties,
The cares of family life spring up,
And, when the first-born is proclaimed,
O'erflowing is the pleasure cup;
As each few years pass o'er their heads
Renew again this pleasant time,
Oh man! thou shouldst at once proclaim
Marriage "with joy alone doth chime."
-BESOM.

The Influence of Newspapers.

A school-teacher, who had been a long time engaged in his profession and witnessed the influence of a newspaper upon the minds of a family of children, writes as follows:-

I have found it to be a universal fact, without exception, that those scholars, of both sexes and of all ages, who have access to newspapers at home, when compared with those who have not, are:-

1. Better readers, excellent in pronunciation, and subsequently read more and understandingly.

2. They are better spellers, and define words with ease and accuracy.

3. They obtain practical knowledge of geography in almost half the time it requires of others, as the newspapers have made them acquainted with the location of the important places of nations, their government and doings on the globe.

4. They are better grammarians, for having become so familiar with every variety of style in the newspapers, from the common place advertisement to the finished and classical oration of the statesman, they more readily comprehend the meaning of the text and consequently analyze its construction with accuracy.

5. They write better composition, using better language, conducting more thoughts, more clearly and correctly expressed.

6. Those young men who have for years been readers of newspapers and are always taking the lead in debating societies, exhibit a mere extensive knowledge upon a greater variety of subjects and express their views with greater fluency, clearness and correctness.
