A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully,

HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

ADAM BEDE.

CHAPTER XVI.

LINKS.

ARTHUR DONNITHORNE, you remember, is under an engagement with himself to go and see Mr. Irwine this Friday morning, and he is awake and dressing so early, that he determines to go before breakfast, instead of after. The Rector, he knows, breakfasts alone at half past nine, the ladies of the family have a dffierent breakfast hour; Arthur will have an early ride over the hill and breakfast with him. One can say every thing best over a meal.

The progress of civilization has made a breakfast or a dinner an easy and cheerful substitute for more troublesome and disagreeable ceremonies. We take a less gloomy view of our errors now our father confessor listens to us over his egg and coffee. We are more distinctly conscious that rude penances are out of the question for gentlemen in an enlightened age, and that mortal sin is not incompatible with an appetite for muffins; an assault on our pockets, which in more barbarous times would have been made in the brusque form of a pistol-shot, is quite a well-bred and smiling procedure now it has become a request for a loan thrown in an easy parenthesis between the second and third glasses of claret.

Still, there was this advantage in the old rigid forms, that they committed you to the fulfillment of a resolution by some outward deed. When you have put your mouth to one end of a hole in a stone wall, and are aware that there is an expectant ear at the other end, you are more likely to say what you came out with the intention of saying, than if you were seated with your legs in an easy attitude under the mahogany, with a companion who will have no reason to be surprised if you have nothing particular to say.

However, Arthur Donnithorne, as he winds among the pleasant lanes on horseback in the morning sunshine, has a sincere determination to open his heart to the Rector, and the swirling sound of the scythe as he passes by the meadow is all the pleasanter to him because of his honest purpose. He is glad to see the promise of settled weather now for getting in the hay, about which the farmers have been fearful; and there is something so healthful in the sharing of a joy that is general and not merely personal, that his thought about the hay-harvest reacts on his state of mind, and makes his resolution seem an easier matter. A man about town might perhaps consider that these influences were not to be felt out of a child's story-book; but when you are among the field's and hedgerows, it is impossible to maintain a consistent superiority to simple, natural pleasures.

Arthur had passed the village of Hayslope, and was approaching the Broxton side of the hill, when, at a turning in the road, he saw a figure about a hundred yards before him which it was impossible to mistake for any one else than Adam Bede, even if there had been no gray, tailless shepherd-dog at his heels. He was striding along at his usual rapid pace, and Arthur pushed on his horse to overtake him; for he retained too much of his boyish feeling for Adam to miss an opportunity of chatting with him. I will not say that his love for that good fellow did not owe some of its force to the love of patronage; our friend Arthur liked to do every thing that was handsome, and to have his handsome deeds recognized.

Adam looked around as he heard the quickening clatter of the horse's heels, and waited for the horseman, lifting his paper cap from his head with a bright smile of recognition. Next to his own brother, Seth, Adam would have done more for Arthur Donnithorne than for any other young man in the world. There was hardly anything he would not rather have lost than the two-feet rule which he always carried in his pocket; it was Arthur's present, bought with his pocket-money when he was a fair-haired lad of eleven, and when he had profited so well by Adam's lessons in carpentering and turning as to embarrass every female in the house with gifts of superfluous thread-reels and round boxes Adam had quite a pride in the little squire in those early days, and the feeling had only become slightly modified as the fair-haired lad had grown into the whiskered young man. Adam, I confess, was very susceptible to the influence of rank, and quite ready to give an extra amount of respect to every one who had more advantages than himself, not being a philosopher, or a proletaire with democratic ideas, but simply a stout-limbed, clever carpenter, with a large fund of reverence in his nature, which inclined him to admit all established claims unless he saw very clear grounds for questioning them. He had no theories about setting the world to rights, but he saw there was a great deal of damage done by building with ill-seasoned timber—by ignorant men in fine clothes making plans for out-houses, and workshops and the like, without knowing the bearings of things—by slovenly joiner's work, and by hasty contracts that could never be fulfilled without ruining somebody, and he resolved, for his part, to set his face against such doings. On these points he would have maintained his opinion against the largest landed proprietor in Loamshire or Stonyshire either; but he felt that beyond these it would be better for him to defer to people more knowing than himself. He saw as plainly as possible how ill the woods on the estate were managed, and the shameful state of the farm buildings; and if old Squire Donnithorne had asked him the effect of this mismanagement, he would have spoken his opinion without flinching, but the impulse to a respectful demeanor towards a 'gentleman' would have been strong within him all the while. The word 'gentleman' had a spell for Adam, and, as he often said, he 'couldn't abide a fellow who thought he made himself fine by being coxy to's betters.' I must remind you again that Adam had the blood of the peasant in his veins, and that, since he was in his prime half a century ago, you must expect some of his characteristics to be obsolete.

Public Meeting at Mount Stewart.

According to notice, a meeting was held in the hall on Tuesday, the 23rd ult. On motion of James Ross, Esq, Donald A. McDonald was appointed chairman and the undersigned secretary. The chairman in a few introductory remarks, said that there were many questions of public interest to be discussed, but the one for which this meeting was called, was to give expression regarding the necessity of building a Government wharf at this place, and called upon Hon. D. Ferguson to address the meeting.

Mr. Ferguson, on coming forward, expressed himself in accord with the sentiments put forth by the chairman. He dwelt some time on the action of the Local Government in enforcing the claims of the provinces against the Government at Ottawa regarding our wharves and felt satisfied if the people would represent their claims for a wharf through their representatives, the General Government would grant it. And promised as far as laid in his power to assist.

Mr. Beer was the next speaker. He thanked them as this was his first opportunity of doing so since the last election for the handsome vote accorded him on that occasion, and said he would do all in his power to forward any movement which would be for their interest.

A letter from Hon. L. H. Davies was read, regretting his inability to attend, owing to a severe cold, but would do all in his power for the advancement of any reasonable project for the good of the district.

Jas. Ross having been called upon, regretted the inconvenience in this place for the want of wharf accommodation; also of not having a County Court. Made mention of a short piece of road which needed macadamizing, and concluded by moving the following resolution, which was seconded by Allan J. McDonald:—

Whereas, The object of the meeting is to give a unanimous expression of opinion consequent upon the inconvenience heretofore prevailing with reference to the want of proper wharf accommodation at Mount Stewart, as also to recommend and intreat by word and petition the granting of this public convenience; and

Whereas, We believe that in no other town or village in Prince Edward Island, where the exports are not any greater than here, are they depending upon the use of one private wharf as we are, the owner of which is a large exporter himself, and requires all the accommodation thereby afforded; and

Whereas, The annually increasing exports of the Province renders it necessary regarding our shipping facilities to have Public Works constructed where required in order to place us on a common equality with our neighbors in the other Provinces,—

Therefore Resolved, That the Representatives of the District in which the wharf is required, both in the Dominion and Local Legislatures, be requested to press our claims to the Dominion Government and to insist that the completion of the same is necessary for next autumn's shipping; and Further Resolved That a committee of five be appointed to draw up a petition setting forth our claims as herein stated.

A committee of five was then appointed —Jas. Ross, Esq, Messrs. Richard Egan, D. A. McDonald, Dingwell, Coffin, and Augustine McDonald.

A vote of thanks was then tendered Messrs. Ferguson and Beer for their attendance, which was cordially received.

H. F. FEEHAN,
Secretary.

Mount Stewart, Jan. 5th, 1885.

The Saturday Review publishes an article on Michael Davitt's 'Lectures Addressed to a Solitary Audience.' The writer pays a tribute to Davitt's honesty, and says it is exceedingly difficult to forecast his future, as to whether it will be that of a great dreamer or a great leader, closing: 'He is the most popular Irishman living. He is the ideal hero of millions of Irish people, and may yet lead the Irish party and oust Mr. Parnell from the post of power he now holds. After that, who can tell? Mr. Davitt may die prematurely of consumption, or he may die on a barricade.'

There is a balm for every wound. Defeat hath its joys as well victory.
