Tequila Sunrise

An excellent movie which combines romance, action, and suspense into an interesting plot with unexpected twists and turns.

What happens when you mix two men (who happen to be friends) with one attractive woman? You get trouble no matter how you look at it, but when one man is a cop and the other a drug dealer, the fun really begins.

Tequila Sunrise features Mel Gibson, Michelle Pfeiffer, and Russell Stewart. I give it four out of five panther paws. A movie as good as the critics said it was!

The Burbs

You might think you have strange neighbours but they can't be anything compared to those in The Burbs. What would you do if you lived beside someone who only came out at night, and when they did they engaged in very suspicious activities (such as digging in their backyard - not in the garden either)? What would you do when one of your neighbours suddenly disappears for no reason? If you're Tom Hanks then you don't just sit back and wonder, you take action!

Hanks, together with his other neighbours hilariously investigate this disappearance by breaking into their neighbours house. To find out what happens next why not rent The Burbs, it'll keep you laughing for hours! The Burbs stars Tom Hanks, Carrie Fisher, Rick Ducommun, and Corey Feldman. I give The Burbs four out of five panther paws. Tom Hanks does it again!

Ground Zero

Ground Zero, starring Colin Friels, and co-starring Donald Pleasance investigates the British nuclear testing in Australia in the 1950's.

A photographer takes pictures of something the British government wants to hide. The photographer is murdered for what he has seen, but before they murder him he manages to hide his film somewhere they will not find it. Many years later his son helps to expose some of the government's best kept secrets by finding this film. This movie is full of suspense and action as the government is prepared to keep this film from the public at any cost. Ground Zero is an excellent movie which is based on true facts. I give it three out of five panther paws.

 The GhostWriters

Greetings, Big Dogs;
 The Mardi Gras weekend proved to be Marian Hall's chance to do some serious unwinding, after indulging in the numerous activities that have taken place thus far in the semester. Many Hallers took advantage of the lull to go home (to some real food!), while a few of the more stubborn partyers took off for Halifax; This reporter wonders whether a certain Newf (or rather, his stomach) managed to retain his dinner during the Caribou crossing.

Late last week, the residents of the Hall got first-hand experience of how foolish some people can be while under the influence. We were surprised that there was yet another individual who lost a little leg hair to a stupid bet (You KNEW that you couldn't win, Scott). Word has it that both he and the other luckless gambler will be checking the fashions in Bernadine for a while. It's at least for certain that he won't be playing Caps for a while.

Last week, we speculated on the possible effects that a quart would have on someone with an allergy to alcohol. Since Tiger was bounced to QEH last weekend and was returned to us the next day with electrodes stuck to his chest, we speculate no more (How was the ambulance ride, Tiger?). We hope, for our good as well as for his own, that he won't be tiggering much in the future.

That's it for this week; PARTY ON, DUDES!!

P.S. Was the thermometer cold, Chris?
