Great Treat For Boxing Fans Tonight At S'Side

IT'S THE NIGHT Sir—Before Bud Ramsey and Albert MacKay start battling each other around in the main event of tonight's boxing card at the Civic Stadium in Summerside, New Glasgow's Doug 'Slug' Turnbull and Walter Arsenault will slug it out in the six round semi-final.

Two excellent preliminaries have been arranged by promoter Charlie Hogan to usher in the first pro-card of the season.

MacKay has agreed to make 147 pounds for the bout and has looked sharp in training. MacKay also has a hard right which could prove Ramsey's weakness as it has in the past.

The bout may have more ups and downs than an elevator in a ten storey building, as both fighters can punch destructively and have their hearts set on roaring into contention among the topflight performers.

Several months ago MacKay was just a preliminary fighter, manager Henry Filsinger has carefully and shrewdly guided his charge into the position where a victory over Ramsey will place him within shouting distance of a Maritime title bout.

The fast stepping MacKay is razor sharp and ready to erase Ramsey from his list of possible opponents.

MacKay is listed as the fourth ranking welterweight in the Maritimes and a loss to Ramsey would either prove that his rating is far out of line or that Ramsey is a much better fighter than is generally believed.

Both boys have fought well in the past and there is no reason why they cannot fight as well in the future.

I am, Sir, etc., W.O. McCluskey

Will Hang Up Cleats

MONTREAL (CP)—Herb Trawick, a tough tackle with Montreal Alouettes football team since it was formed in 1946, has decided to hang up his cleats because of a back injury, suffered last season.

Ted Workman, president of the Big Four club, said Trawick will be placed on the team's coaching staff.

"We can use his knowledge with some of our younger players," Workman said Thursday, "and Herb has indicated a strong interest in remaining with the organization."

Trawick's familiar Number 56 sweater is to be retired in a ceremony July 3.

Camille Henry, Winner Of Lady Byng Trophy

MONTREAL (CP)—Camille Henry, slender little left winger of New York Rangers who had only one minor penalty in the full 70-game schedule, was announced by the National Hockey League Thursday as winner of the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy for the 1957-58 season.

The trophy, along with $1,000, is awarded annually to the player "adjudged to have exhibited the best type of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct combined with a high standard of playing ability during the season."

Henry was far ahead in the balloting. He had 135 of a possible 180 points. Don Marshall of Montreal Canadiens was second with 48 and Don McKenzie of Boston Bruins third with 21.

It was the second successive year a Ranger player has won the award. Andy Hebenton, New York right winger, was the 1956-57 winner.

Lane Wants 10 Team Loop; Some Revitalizing Needed

By JOE REICHLER NEW YORK (AP)—The American League should take immediate steps toward expanding to 10 clubs, Frank Lane said Thursday. The general manager of Cleveland Indians, mindful of talk that the American League has taken a back seat to the National, strongly advised that such cities as Toronto, Houston, Tex., and the twin cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn., be given consideration for possible major league franchises within the next year or two.

"This talk about the American League being dead is the bunk," he said, "but it does need some revitalizing."

"Why not expand to 10 teams? We have the cities, we have the players and I'm sure we'll have the parks."

Lane then offered a plan, the same one he suggested five years ago and which was turned down then.

"My plan is simple," he said. "First, we reduce the major league player limit from 25 to 23. That would make available 32 players. Then take the 10 to 15 players that each club option out to the minors each year and make them available. Together with several old pros and young kids they would form the nucleus of the new major league clubs."

Lane said a number of young players with good futures are returned to the minor leagues each spring. "All they need is an opportunity. We have proven that in Cleveland."

"We have such kids as Carol Hardy, Gary Geiger, Dick Brown, Russ Nixon and Billy Moran playing for us now. "Youngsters like these, playing in virgin major league territory, would revitalize big league baseball."

Lane said he was convinced Toronto, Houston and Minneapolis-St. Paul would support big league baseball.

Eisenhower Picked Bad Time To Ask For Trade Agreement

By GEORGE KITCHEN President Eisenhower couldn't have picked a worse year to ask Congress to extend the U.S. Trade Agreements Act for another five years and give him wide authority to cut tariffs.

His trade bill now is in deep, deep trouble in Congress for three basic reasons—an important congressional election coming up this fall, a business recession that shows no sign of early recovery and the chronic unwillingness of American congressmen to give other nations an even break in the U.S. market.

Eisenhower, of course, didn't pick the year—the trade act expires next month by law—but he did pick the terms of his bill to renew it: an unheard-of five-year extension and authority to lower tariffs by another 25 per cent in negotiating trade agreements abroad.

Those terms don't sit well with the members of his Republican party, most of whom are hide-bound protectionists. Nor does it suit the Democrats, who fathered the Trade Agreements Act when it was first introduced 24 years ago and usually have tended to support legislation to keep it alive.

The upshot is that Eisenhower, at this stage, can't muster enough support in Congress to get his bill through. Yet, he has given no indication of willingness to compromise, either by shortening the extension period or modifying his tariff demands. Canada, with a $5,000,000,000 annual trade with the United States, has a big stake in the legislation. Canadian jobs often hinge on the ups and downs of U.S. tariff rates. So do those in many another Western nation which needs entry into the U.S. market, the biggest in the free world, to keep its industry booming.

Eisenhower recognizes this. He argues that the trade agreements must be kept open if free nations are to be kept from Communist domination. He points as well to the fact the $21,000,000,000 worth of goods the U.S. sells abroad each year provides jobs for 4,500,000 Americans.

But Congress has its collective eye on another big figure—the 5,100,000 Americans currently out of work. To politicians seeking another term in Congress, that figure translates into 5,100,000 solid votes and, as one Washington wit once put it, Canadians and other foreigners, however trade-hungry they may be, haven't got a vote.

All 435 members of the House of Representatives and one-third of the 96-man senate are up for election in this November's off-year congressional election. Until that issue is settled, talk of lower tariffs, more foreign imports and anything else that might threaten American job security will be highly unpopular in the halls of Congress.

190,000 Non-Whites Now In Britain; Number Growing

LONDON (Reuters)—A government spokesman said Wednesday there now are 190,000 non-whites in Britain and the rate of immigration from Commonwealth countries continues to increase.

Miss Pat Hornsby-Smith, joint parliamentary undersecretary to the home office, noted in an address that any citizen of a Commonwealth country—whatever his color—is free to enter Britain and make his home here.

Social security allowances and free medical services under Britain's national health plan attract as many as 2,000 new immigrants a week from such overseas Commonwealth points as Jamaica and Pakistan.

"This is a subject which has given us serious consideration in recent years," Miss Hornsby-Smith told the Rotary Club here. "No one can be blind to the potential social and economic problem created by this liberty. "There are dominions overseas with enormous populations and if a small fraction of them moved here it could swamp our labor market."

MORE DOPE-TAKING The non-white invasion of rural people into a large metropolitan area has produced social pressures. Social workers report increases in drug-taking and venereal disease in areas where there are non-white concentrations. In London's red light districts, many

Stan Laughs Off '400' Suggestion

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Stan Musial, batting an incredible .529 in the fastest start of his career, Thursday laughed off suggestions that he may hit 400 this season.

"There's a long way to go," said the seven-time batting champion after St. Louis Cardinal manager Fred Hutchinson and members of the Milwaukee Braves termed him a 400 threat.

Staph, 37, is just seven hits shy of the 3,000-hit milestone reached by only seven players in baseball history.

Once he attains this mark, a 400 average would be one of the few goals left. Boston's Ted Williams, with 406 in 1941, is the only major leaguer to reach it in the last 28 years.

With the Cardinals off to a dismal start, Musial's flying start has captured the imagination of the fans.

The Braves, who came to St. Louis to battle the Cards and praise Musial, offered some theories Wednesday night sweeping three games.

Warren Spahn, dean of National League pitchers, thinks Musial is better now than he ever was.

"He's smarter," Spahn said. "He's just going for hits, not homers."

Dick Littlefield, Milwaukee's well-traveled lefthander, suggested Musial, a left-handed batter, couldn't have lost any power—"not when he hits a 370-foot double off the left field wall."

Musial batted over 500 down the stretch last season with an injured shoulder which prevented him from taking a full swing. He's fully recovered from the injury but some think this spray hitting was habit-forming.

Whatever the reason for Stan's fast start, both Hutchinson and Braves' pitcher Lew Burdette think he has a chance to hit 400.

Spahn shook his head. "He won't make it," the 37-year-old lefthander said. "Know why? Because he's a great team man. When he's up there with the tying or winning run on base, he won't let you walk him. He'll hit your pitch—and often that costs him points."

Australia May Hold Winter Games In 1962

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Australian winter sports officials are considering the possibility of staging a Winter Games for Commonwealth countries in Australia in 1962.

The first Commonwealth Winter Games were held in St. Moritz, Switzerland, last February, and it is hoped to hold the event once every four years.

Australian officials will ask other Commonwealth countries to give their views. If Australia gets the games they will be held at Crackenback, in the southern New South Wales Alps.

Indict N. Y. Disc Jockey

BOSTON (AP)—A grand jury Thursday indicted New York disc jockey Alan Freed on a charge of "inciting the unlawful destruction of property" during a rock 'n' roll session at the Boston arena last Saturday night.

The indictment said Freed "by speech did advocate, advise, counsel and incite the destruction of real and personal property."

In a riotous outburst outside the arena after the jam session 15 persons were slugged, beaten or robbed by gangs of teen-agers. One was stabbed.

Freed has been reported in New York since the Boston affair. He is master of ceremonies for the travelling band of rock 'n' roll musicians and singers.

No Ice, Aircraft Handle Less Mail

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Eastern Provincial Airways delivered 289,464 pounds of mail to northern Newfoundland and Labrador during the winter, a drop of about 50 per cent over the previous year.

A post office official said "this winter we did not have to use planes to get the mail to Bonavista or Notre Dame bays. These areas were ice free and therefore we could deliver the mail by motor boat. Last season the two bays were icebound."
