The lieutenant-governor thanked members of the society, competitors and prize donors and expressed his appreciation for the program and the matter. "Striving for the prize" that was in important.

Some 39 awards and prizes were presented to contest winners at the event.

Premier W.B. Shaw, commending on what he termed a "tremendous" year, said one of the finest efforts of Centennial Year was the spur given organizations throughout the province to improve rural areas.

Feed, Farm Supply Co-op To Be Established In City

A decision to form a retail co-operative for the purpose of recalling feed and farm supplies to the farmers of the Charlottetown area was reached at a farmers meeting at Birch Court last night.

Chairman for the meeting, Ted Sabine, noted in his opening remarks that such an association has been talked about for the past few years and a probe into the possibilities of one and a questionnaire to farmers in the area got favorable reaction, bringing on the meeting last night.

Mr. Sabine noted that the questionnaire asked about a feed co-op only but that the committee brought many suggestions for farm supplies to be added to the feed co-op.

He said the Maritime Co-operative Services board of directors has agreed to the spending of monies for a mill to be built in the Charlottetown area if a local organization were formed to support such a move.

Maritime Co-op Services has been searching for a suitable location for such a mill and has identified a very favorable piece of land in the area which was noted.

Maritime Co-op Services has rented a warehouse on Water Street, Charlottetown, and is preparing to carry out limited business in feeds for the association until a mill is set up for central grinding and custom mixing of feeds. The purpose of this would be to build up volume, Mr. Sabine said.

It was noted that the central grinding and custom mixing mill in the Charlottetown area would make the Cooperative a success because of the great variety of local grains for feeds.

WATNEY HOLLOWAY, Mayor Everett Champion presided and four of the six councillors were present. Bills were passed amounting to $799. An application was approved for Dorothy MacKinnon to build a house on School Street.

There was considerable discussion on the fact that it is being done on Victoria Street and on the suggested removal of a large tree which will be too close to the sidewalk.

It was decided to have the man do more work on the sewage lift.

A Kensington firm announced the town is interested in making a survey regarding proposed garbage collections and permission was given by the town.

Outside District Applies For Fire Assistance

KENSINGTON — Another out of town district approached the Kensington Town Council for their Women's Institute to participate in the fire assistance program and the matter was considered with favor at the regular council meeting Monday night.

It was pointed out at this time, however, that the Women's Institute should collect the $3 fee for every dwelling on each property regardless of ownership.

By the summer of next year, there are plans for the grinding and mixing mill also for places for bulk delivery and storage.

The meeting was told that the co-op would be formed to retail feed and farm supplies which are cost of production items on farms. There was a need in the association to look to the future in long terms as well as the immediate present, it was stated.

Following the discussion of the proposed organization, a vote proved overwhelmingly in its favor and this vote was followed by the passing of the bylaws of the association.

W. Prince Berry Association Formed At Tignish Meeting

TIGNISH — A West Prince berry association was formed in Tignish last night to establish a growers industry in the area under the Agriculture Rehabilitation and development Act.

A tentative slate of officers was brought in by a nominating committee comprised of Leo Handrahan, Wilson Shea and Edward McAllduff.

Officers are Gerald Handrahan, president; Lester Jenkins, first vice-president; Walter Christensen, second vice-president; Roy Chiossey, secretary; and Leo Handrahan, treasurer.

The meeting was conducted by Gordon Ripley, fieldman of the department of agriculture.

Reid Sanderson, director marketing, research and resource development, described the benefits available under ARDA for designated areas to become established in small industry which he said could be the salvation of Prince County. "You would be better off financially at present prices to have an acre of blueberries instead of an acre of strawberries," Mr. Sanderson said.

"Blueberries could become an important industry in West Prince and other types of berries, such as cranberries, are also worth considering," he felt.

It was generally agreed that a large acreage would be available for blueberries in the Tignish area possibly as high as 1,000 acres where berries are already growing.

For a start the association plans to obtain 200 acres of crown lands and also to develop privately owned land if that proves possible under ARDA.

The well-attended meeting was held in the Dalton School. Further meetings will be held in the near future to draw up a constitution and by-laws.

POTATO

(Continued from page 1) the government had a publicistic on-one-day selling and other allied marketing improvement suggestions made at that meeting.

Mr. MacKinnon told of the fears the government had of promoting the proposed plan, but promised if the producers would show their confidence by controlling substantially to the amount of money that would be necessary to carry out such a marketing scheme as the one-day agency "I would be prepared to recommend to the cabinet that it guarantee a substantial sum at the banks."

REVIEWS PRICES — E.D. Reid, Charlottetown reviewed the marketing of potatoes over a 20-year period and found the average selling price was 91 cents per bushel. Island potatoes went last year to 22 countries and nine Canadian provinces, he added.

Reid Sanderson discussed marketing briefly and then gave up the uneven struggle of battling with one of the worst cases of laryngitis that ever hampered a man on a public platform.

The meeting was held by the Prince County Federation of Agriculture.
