Psychiatry Gives One Someone To Lean On

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Your recent discussion of the question "How does psychiatry help?" was informative, as to ways-and-means whereby the doctor helps.

1. In the patient-psychiatrist exchange, you feel that somebody really understands and cares, without requiring an emotional response from you.

2. You realize that you can be yourself honestly with the doctor, that you have nothing to lose, as he won't be involved emotionally. You can't have that with your family.

3. The psychiatrist will be honest with you, so honest that it will hurt. But the turmoil of treatment becomes a straight path out of indecision.

4. The psychiatrist will steadily sustain your efforts to stop blaming others and or circumstances for your frustrations; and actually accept and be happy with those things that you cannot change.

5. He will help you also to see those things which can be changed, and will encourage you to act to do so.

6. He can help you shake-off the habit of hoping that time or the future, will eliminate your problems. He helps you to face today happily.

7. Even if nothing else were accomplished, the psychiatrist is someone to lean on when others fail you. And this bedrock support enables you to grow, so that you learn to depend upon yourself and or God, with faith and ease.

DEAR E. J.: I am not sure that the representative psychiatrist would endorse your happy impression that it's part of his specialty to be "someone to lean on," even if he has nothing more specific of helpfulness to offer in a given instance.

In general, I think psychiatry tends to emphasize subtly that the less leaning the better for the patient, provided he has any recuperative capacity whatever.

But I suppose this disposition to expedite the weaning process, and set the patient on his own feet in relation to life, wouldn't keep the responsible psychiatric specialist from making exceptions to the rule, and being super-considerate as an emergency measure, in certain cases. Possibly this was your experience.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Can you give me the names of any organizations, public or private, that help mature women to prep for a career?

Recently there has been much discussion about the return of mothers to the nation's workforce. But I haven't been able to learn anything definite or helpful to aid me in choosing a school.

Versalite Acorn Squash Makes A Fine Delight

Counters are heaped with seasonal vegetables, a m o n g them the versatile acorn squash. A judicious beauty now at the height of the season, acorn squash is a treasure-trove of nutrition, furnishing 4,950 international units of Vitamin A when boiled; but 6,190 units when baked, because the nutrients are not washed out into the cooking water.

Do most people like acorn squash? Yes, they do. So many that it is featured in the largest New York restaurant chain ordered Acorn Squash Amantine one evening that the supply ran out long before the dinner hour was over.

PREPARING ACORN SQUASH Allow half a small acorn squash for each person. Cut the squash in halves lengthwise. Scrape out and discard seeds and strings. Do not attempt to cut off the green shell.

To boil: Put the prepared squash in a kettle. Add 1 tsp. salt to the pound and boiling water to cover. Boil 35 min. or until the interior is fork-tender. Drain, brush with melted butter or margarine, and use as a container for a light entree, such as chicken-a-la-ling, creamed ham or creamed tongue; or canned corned beef hash seasoned with onion powder. Then dust each squash half with 1 tsp. seasoned crumbs; dot with 1 tsp. butter or margarine and brown in a hot oven, or under the broiler.

To Bake: Turn the prepared halves of acorn squash cut-sides down in a bakingpan. Pour in hot water to the depth of 1/2"; add 1 tsp. salt. Bake 50 min. in a mod. oven, 350 degrees F. Brush the interiors with melted butter or margarine and season each half with 1/4 tsp. brown sugar, mixed with 1/4 tsp. each salt and cinnamon or ground ginger. Serve very hot.

Measurements level: ACORN SQUASH AMADINE recipes for 6 Boil or bake 2 lb. acorn squash. Cool. Carefully cut lengthwise through the shell making wedges, 1" to 1 1/4" wide. Brush the inside of the wedges generously with 3 tsp. melted butter mixed with 1/4 tsp. each salt and cinnamon. Top each wedge with 1 tsp. shredded blanched almonds and press on lightly. Place points up in a shallow pan; add 1-1 1/2" hot water. Bake 15 min. in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F. or until the almonds are a pale golden brown.

Oranged Acorn Squash: Prepare and cook wedges of acorn squash as for acorn squash Amantine. Brush generously with 1 1/2 tsp. melted butter mixed with 1/2 tsp. orange concentrate and 1/4 tsp. Angostura Bitters for that gourmet touch, center each wedge with a drained Mandarin orange section. Bake 10 min. at 350 degrees F.

Cranberry Juice Cook tail Celery and Carrot Sticks Boiled Smoked Tongue, with Horseradish Sauce Tartare, Oranged Acorn Squash, Wedges - Tomato Lettuce Salad - Jellied Autumn Fruit-Nut Melange - Coffee or Tea, Milk.

JELLED AUTUMN FRUIT-NUT MELANGE 2 (3 1/2 oz.) pkg. apple-flavored gelatin 1 c. boiling water 2 1/2 c. cold apple juice 1/4 c. coarsely-chopped walnut or pecan nutsmeats 1/4 c. halved seedless or seed-ed grapes 1 large apple, core'd, peeled and small-diced 1 c. quartered pitted small prune plums 3 mashed peeled ripe persimmons.

Sweetened whipped cream or whipped dehydrated skim milk crystals. Turn contents of pkgs. of gelatin into a 3-pt. bowl. Stir in boiling water. When gelatin dissolves stir in apple juice. Refrigerate 30 min. or until beginning to thicken; fold in nutsmeats and prepared fruits (except persimmons). Refrigerate 3 hr. or until firm. Spoon into deep dessert dishes. Top with mashed persimmons. Garnish: a dollop of sweetened whipped cream or whipped dehydrated skim-milk crystals (recipe on pkg.).

THE CHEF'S HORSE RADISH SAUCE TARTARE Mesdames: This is a sauce that men enjoy.

In the following order, combine 1/4 c. tomato ketchup, 1 1/2 tsp. mayonnaise, 4 tsp. prepared horseradish, 1 tsp.

DEAR N. N.: In 1960, Radcliffe College in Cambridge, Mass., launched an "Institute for Independent Studies" to enable wives and mothers to complete study programs interrupted by marriage.

Started as an experimental project, it has become a solid success, and credit is given to Radcliffe's president, Miss Mary Ingraham Bunting, who fostered the undertaking.

I suggest you write to Miss Bunting, co Radcliffe College, 10 Garden Street, Cambridge, Mass., for all the information she can give you, on how to "prep for a career" in your neck of the woods. M. H. Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Guardian.
