Other attractions will also be put on, and an exceptionally fine programme of orchestral music will be performed. Everything will be done to make this a most brilliant, unique and enjoyable entertainment.

A LAPSE OF DUTY.

Sir, I desire through your columns to direct the attention of the Board of Education to the fact that our District School, No. 47, has not been officially visited for a period of about or over two years. I have personally informed the Superintendent of Education of this omission, but so far I have not learned that the Visitor, whoever he may be, has received any instruction relative to the matter. I feel, therefore, constrained to avail myself of this means of moving the "powers that be" Trusting that you will kindly publish this letter, I remain, respectfully,
A RESIDENT.

OLD TIME DOCTORS.

The Students Helped Their Teachers In Practical Work.

During the last century in America the medical education of a young student was generally what he picked up by serving as an apprentice to some noted practitioner, which combined the duties of a student with many menial affairs.

He ground the powders, mixed the pills, rode with the doctor on his rounds, held the basin when the patient was bled, helped to adjust the plasters, sew the wounds and run with vials of medicine from one end of town to the other. It was a white day when such a young man enjoyed the rare good fortune of dissecting a half putrid arm. So great indeed was the difficulty of obtaining anatomical subjects that the medical school of Harvard college made a single body do duty for a whole year.

Under such circumstances the doctor's knowledge was practical, and derived from personal experience rather than from books. The advantages of study were sparingly enjoyed. Few physicians boasted of a library of 50 volumes.

His apprenticeship ended, the student returned to his native town to assume the practice of medicine. At that period, with the exception of the minister and the judge, the doctor was the most important personage in his community. His genial face, his engaging manners, the sincerity with which he inquired after the carpenter's daughter and the interest which he took in the family of the poorest laborer made him the favorite for miles around. He knew the names and personal history of the occupants of every house he passed. The farmer's lads pulled off their hats to him and the girls dropped courtesies as he passed. Sunshine and rain, daylight and darkness, were alike to him. He would ride ten miles in the darkest night over the worst of roads in a pelting storm to administer a dose of calomel to an old woman or attend a child in a fit.

The drugs were stowed away on the shelves of the village store, among heaps of shoes, Rohan hats, packages of seeds and fitches of bacon.

The physician was compelled to compound his own drugs, make his own tinctures and put up his own prescriptions. His saddlebag was the only drug store within 40 miles. Each spring the blood must be purified, the kidneys excited and the damsel who fainted profusely bled. Large doses of senna and manna and rhubarb and molasses were taken daily. It was safe to say that more medicine was taken every year by the well than is now taken by the sick in the same time.

Water was denied the patient tormented with fever. In its stead was given a small quantity of clam juice. Mercury was taken until the lips turned blue and the gums fell away from the teeth.

The writer has a vivid recollection, when about 8 years old, in a raging fever, pleading for water. The nurse handed the pitcher, and the child satisfied her burning thirst. Her brother, overhearing what was going on, rushed into the room, exclaiming, "You will kill her," but it was too late.—American Magazine.

President Lincoln's Birthplace.

Abraham Lincoln, our great war president, was born in Larue county, Ky., in a rude little log cabin. This cabin has recently been restored, and so far as possible made exactly as it was 88 years ago, when a little baby boy was born to Thomas and Nancy Lincoln, or "Linkhorn," as the name was then spelled—humble "settlers," who had moved to the neighborhood from Washington county four years before.

The few living people who remember Thomas Lincoln, the father, say that he was a rather improvident man, not working long at any one thing. He was a hard worker, but was a poor manager, and the little family was often without more than the simplest necessities of life. Thomas Lincoln cleared a few acres around his cabin and raised a small crop of corn and grain. Then he became a carpenter and tinker, working at such odd jobs as he could find among the pioneer neighbors. He was away at work at the time Abraham was born.

The neighbors heard that Mrs. Lincoln was in the cabin all alone with the little baby, and had little to eat except corn and potatoes. They at once visited the Lincoln cabin, taking such delicacies as their houses afforded. The father returned in a few days, and the baby was named Abraham Lincoln after his grandfather, who had been killed by the Indians when Thomas Lincoln was a little boy—George H. Yenowine in St. Nicholas.

Tosti's Hobby.

Signor Tosti, the Anglo-Italian composer, has recently acquired one of the most peculiar hobbies possible. After a hard day's work, either of teaching his many royal pupils or of composing, he is wont to retire, in company with his charming wife, to his study. From thence the sounds of hammering may be heard, accompanied by the notes of a mandolin. It may be gathered from these sounds that the great composer is seeking recreation at his favorite amusement of upholstery. It is safe to say that the greater part of the chairs, and certainly the whole of his wife's boudoir, have thus been upholstered by Signor Tosti.

Brooklyn Bridge.

Brooklyn bridge was commenced, under the direction of Mr. Roebling, the designer of the Niagara suspension bridge, in 1870, and completed in 1883 years. It is 5,989 feet long and 135 feet high. The cost of building was little less than $15,000,000.
