Advances in Education Is H-S Address Topic

TIGNISH—Advances in Education was the topic delivered by Mrs. Reg. Eldershaw, at the March meeting of the Tignish Home and School Association held in the regional high school auditorium Thursday. Mrs. Eldershaw spoke on the tremendous expansion in the regional high school system, and noted a yearly increase of over one thousand students since 1961.

Other great improvements noted by the speaker included the growth of vocational institutes. During the past two years two new institutes were added to the provincial system. Extension night classes recently started in Prince County Institutes have met with astonishing success with an overall enrollment of 150, she said.

"We are just beginning to experience the adult education explosion," she said, "and at the present time, there are more adult students outside the formal school system than within it." Mrs. Eldershaw also commented on the growth of alcohol education groups in regional high schools, and noted the effect of television within the school system.

Sister St. Rosalia, superior of Tignish, and Gerald Handrahan, president of the local association, thanked Mrs. Eldershaw for her address.

KHRUSHCHEV

In the only special treatment accorded him inside the polling station, Khrushchev was given the opportunity to move ahead of a few others waiting for ballots. He refused with a smile and waited briefly.

In the voting, the Communist party selected one candidate for each local government job open and voters could only approve or disapprove in Soviet elections, few disapprove.

Without marking it, Khrushchev dropped the ballot paper in a box. He chatted briefly with several journalists, and left.

An unmarked ballot means a yes vote.

CROWD GATHERING

As he emerged from the building, a crowd surrounded his car. Security men cleared the way.

A youth began clapping but no one joined in. Then Khrushchev, again in the front seat and his wife in back, drove away.

About an hour earlier, another voter at the same booth had been Mikhail Suslov. Suslov delivered the indictment at a secret meeting of the Communist party's central committee that resulted in Khrushchev's ouster last Oct. 14.

Khrushchev's successor as premier, Alexei Kosygin, voted later at the same booth.

The reappearance of Khrushchev was obviously a deliberate thing, although correspondents had no official advance tipoff. They just gathered on the chance Khrushchev might show up.

Under the system Khrushchev started of letting fallen Soviet politicians live out their lives quietly, he had to turn up eventually in public view.

tolerate any further violence or unlawful public disturbance... each and every violation of our laws will be met with prompt arrest."

BAKER DIDN'T SIGN

The city's public safety director, Wilson Baker, did not sign the statement. He told The Associated Press he had not seen the statement and knew nothing about it.

When offered a copy, he said, "I haven't got time to read it." Baker, appointed by the mayor, has avoided arrests generally. He has enforced an ordinance requiring a parade permit for marchers but until last week had allowed small groups of demonstrators to walk to the courthouse.

Civil rights leaders held a church rally shortly after the statement was issued.

"After the president tells us that Negroes ought to have the right to vote and protest, we are going to keep our movement going," shouted Rev. James Bevel, denim-clad Negro leader in the spreading voter campaign led by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

CALLED FOR 3,000

Bevel called for at least 3,000 demonstrators to fill the street in front of the Browns Chapel A. M. E. Church today. The church is command post for the drive.

"Bring in old folks, babies and children," he told the roaring crowd in the church.

"We are going to close up Selma tomorrow.

"Let's take the whole town to jail tomorrow."

Another Negro leader, Hosea Williams, said marchers would remove the barricades, wooden sawhorses, set up by police and try to march. But he said the marchers would not make contact with any line of policemen.

TO GIVE HANDBILLS

Bevel said handbills would be distributed to Negroes throughout the county today in the voter drive. Boards of registrars will be in session today. Bevel said there also would be demonstrations in Perry and Wilcox counties.

The big sheriff, wearing a business suit and dark glasses, appeared near the barricade. Clark said that if marchers removed the barricades and tried to march, they would be arrested.

While students sang and clapped their hands, in the Selma street, memorial services were held in churches throughout the U.S. for Rev. James J. Reeb, the Unitarian minister fatally injured here last Tuesday night in a gang attack. Four white men have been charged with his slaying.

Told of the reaction by the civil rights leaders to the arrest policy, Baker said: "I was afraid that would happen."
