Demise of HRC's Green Charlotte Comes After 5 Years Service

The Charlottesville Hall-Company the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Corps... The division more than 3,000 men throughout its existence maintained a record which has been equal to that of any other of the other 21 naval divisions in Canada.

It was in its old location on Kent Street that hundreds of naval reservists not only trained in Prince Edward Island but also from several other provinces received their basic training during World War II before being transferred to Halifax for sea duty and advanced training.

It has been estimated that in connection with the operation of the division more than $100,000 was spent annually within the province.

Also with its closing the future of at least six civil servant men and one woman... will be in doubt until it becomes known what the federal government will eventually do with the building.

The climate of a landslide for Johnson resurrected the unrest of 1960 when Harry Truman... a full four-year-term over-riding the 1960 campaign...

Johnson, who had fought Kennedy hard for the 1960 nomination, became the eighth vice-president inaugurated into the White House.

The shock of the assassination might also have had some part in the ease with which Goldwater captured the Republican nomination in July...

Goldwater's campaign formula altered little from first to last although emphasis shifted on some parts.

Monday night's breaks netted the thief or thieves little or nothing at all spoken for the firms said that as far as they could determine no money had been taken and only minor damage was done.

The breaks were discovered at approximately 8 o'clock yesterday morning by an employee of Thas Ellis Ltd. The thieves had gained entrance through a basement window which had been covered with potato bags.

After getting into the building the person or persons involved entered the offices by passing through the glass in the doors and unlocking them from the inside. Both offices had been ransacked with papers strewn over the floor, desk drawers upset and vaults tampered with.

Police Chief S.D.A. Wannamaker stated yesterday that a man was being held for questioning in connection with the break. Wannamaker said the man was taken to the Granville market on Granville which resulted in approximately $300 being taken.

SPUD PLEBISCITE SEEN MUST WITHIN SIX MONTHS HERE

A report on potato marketing boards operating in Canada and a potato marketing review highlights the annual meeting of the Prince Edward Island Potato Producers Association at the Basilico Recreation Center last night.

The meeting opened with president and chairman George Howatt giving a run down on information about the setting up of the P.E.I. Potato Marketing Board following a meeting of the growers in 1963 which recommended it.

He said efforts were being made to get the various aspects of the board and no loopholes have been found.

He said the idea is ready to be voted on and a plebiscite with the growers must be held within the next six months. He spoke briefly on what he has learned about setting up a potato marketing board.

OTHER CANADIAN BOARDS Minister of Agriculture Andrew B. MacIver addressed the meeting on potato marketing boards in other parts of Canada. He said that in the west of B.C. about 97 per cent of the growers were members and that board controlled acreage and prices set.

He pointed out, however, that the potatoes sold by the board go to the domestic market while the rest go to some 20 different countries.

Mr. MacIver said B.C.'s deputy minister of agriculture Alex Turner said the dealers should be on any board to add business influence.

Mr. MacIver pointed out the main difficulty on the Island was that the board had very little in common between the B.C. boards and the one here.

The minister said one desk selling potatoes in the United States and a lot of know how.

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) While millions of Americans concentrated on the presidential election Tuesday, President Johnson showed reporters how to draw water from a well.

Relaxed and smiling after casting his vote in this central Texas town of 500, the president and Mrs. Johnson showed by his homestead for about 30 minutes early in the day.

REPORTERS got a brief demonstration of how to bring water up in a bucket from a well. The president stepped into the hole on the homestead and the hill country around it and a personal tour of the unoccupied white frame house.

Johnson even defied superstition by a potting with Mrs. Johnson in a swing on the porch of the house, where she said she closed his 1941 campaign for the U.S. Senate, E. A. Tamm.

But that was by only 1,211 votes, he said. Johnson, behind the wheel of a white limousine, drove to the homestead from the Pedernales Electric Co. power plant building, where he and Mrs. Johnson cast their ballots about 8:30 a.m. It's a drive of only a block or two.

Walking through the gate of a white picket fence Johnson stopped by a well in the front yard while reporters gathered around. After a little difficulty using the knot in the rope attached to the bucket, Johnson drew it upwards, describing how his father used to do the same thing every morning.

He then started around back to the well, where he pointed to what he said was a stone for his grandfather had about 30 minutes early in the day.
