The Jays...

The Toronto Blue Jays and the Minnesota Twins are sparring for the chance to play in the World Series. Pitching is what wins ball games. Minnesota has good pitching in all Star Jack Morris (best win-loss record in major league during the 1980's) and Scott Ericson with 19 wins. These are the brightest stars among Minnesota's starting pitchers.

No one on the Blue Jays can match Ericson's 19 wins but I believe that the Blue Jays have a better pitching staff as a whole. Gywan Guzman who started pitching after May 22nd, has won ten games and lost only two. Todd Stottlemyre has 15 wins. Tom Candiotti has won 13 games, and Dave wells has collected 14 wins. Dave Stieb the perennial all star (second best pitching record of the 1980's) was injured May 22nd and he will not be pitching until 1992. All Blue Jay fans miss Stieb!

When starting pitchers become tired the relief pitchers come in. Minnesota has one of the league leaders in saved games, Aguilera who has saved 41 games. Minnesota also has Steve Bedrogian but he hasn't played as well as hoped. The Blue Jays have as one of the league leaders in Tom Henke with 32 saves. Duane Ward has a powerful 94 MPH fastball who also has saved many games. Dave Wells is now back in relief duty and he is surely one of the best relief pitchers in the American league.

Hitting supplements the pitching and the Minnesota Twins have the mighty Kirby Puckett who at .318 has one of the best hitting averages in the American league. Kent Herbek hits for power, only thing is that his stats have been declining in the past few seasons the same thing can be said about power hitter, Gary Gaetti. For the Twins, the good news is that their rookie-of-the-year hopeful, Chuck Nobvok is hitting impressively. The Blue Jays appear to have the edge in hitting. They have Joe Carter the best RBI man in all of baseball for the past 5 years. Toronto also has Pat Tabler, baseball's best bases loaded hitter, an incredible 40/80 lifetime average with bases loaded. Roberto Alomar and Devon White have smashed many timely hits all season long. John Olerud is a power threat. Then there is Kelly Gruber who is having a less than terrific season due to injuries, but who has great hitting power.
