

MRS. PHYLLIS NEWMAN AND CORNWALL JUNIOR CHOIR

Choir Director Honored At Mrs. MacEwen's Home

On Saturday evening, November 21st, the Cornwall Junior choir held a surprise party for their choir leader, Mrs. Phyllis Newman at the home of Mrs. Reg MacEwen.

Phyllis, who has organized and directed this junior choir of thirty-six boys and girls deserves much credit, as she also directs the senior choir of Cornwall church as well as teaching music in many rural schools.

An address was read by Audrey Yeo after which Wendy Wilson and Harvey MacEwen presented Phyllis with a pop-up toaster and a leather bound suitably inscribed Hymnary.

Phyllis thanked the choir for their gifts and all sang "For She's A Jolly Good Fellow". A dainty lunch was served by hostesses, assisted by mothers of the choir members.

MR. AND MRS. J. E. TREMBLAY

Pretty Autumn Wedding Is Held In Alberton

The Sacred Heart Church, Alberton, was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding on Saturday, October 25, 1958, when Frances Bernadette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Larter, Alberton, was united in marriage to Joseph Eugene, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Tremblay, Bathurst, N.B.

Rev. Phelan McKenna performed the ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass. Peter Larter, brother of the bride, was altar boy.

Mrs. E. E. Larter, mother of the bride, played the wedding music. Mrs. Aurele Doucette, aunt of the groom, sang, "Mother Beloved". Mr. Raymond Ahearn, cousin of the bride, sang, "Sweet Sacrament Divine," and, as a duet, Mrs. Doucette and Mr. Ahearn sang, "Oh Lord I Am Not Worthy."

The altar was beautifully decorated with autumn flowers and the guest pews were marked with bows of white satin ribbon.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage.

Chantilly lace and nylon net over satin fashioned the bride's gown. The full, three-quarter length skirt of white nylon net over satin and ermine cascade from a fitted bodice of Chantilly lace with sweetheart neckline and short sleeves. A very pretty feature of the gown was a scalloped peplum edged with a Chantilly lace. She wore long mitts and a shoulder length veil held by a crown of rhinestones and seed pearls. Her bouquet was pink roses.

Miss Ann Larter was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a waltz length gown of bluish pink with full skirt and fitted bodice. The neckline, high in front, dipped to a point in the back and featured a large back bow above the waistline. With it she wore matching feather hat and white accessories, and carried a nosegay of yellow roses.

As bridesmaid Miss Dorothy McNeill, cousin of the bride, wore an identical gown and hat in aqua. Her nosegay was of white roses.

The best man was Mr. Ray Walsh, brother-in-law of the groom, and the ushers were Mr. Alva McAlduff and Mr. Larry Profit.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Larter chose a navy blue dress with powder blue accessories.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where luncheon was served to thirty guests.

The bride's table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake, topped with miniature bride and groom, and flanked on either side with low bowls of autumn flowers.

A toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Ray McNeill and responded to by the groom.

For a honeymoon trip in the Maritimes and Maine the bride wore a grey wool dress with sapphire blue coat and black accessories. Her corsage was pink carnations.

LAC and Mrs. Tremblay will reside in Montreal where the groom is stationed with the R.C.A.F.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ray McNeill of Summerside, Mr. J. E. Tremblay, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Walsh, Mrs. Van Plum and Mrs. Aurele Doucette, all of Bathurst, N.B.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Ellen Must Remember James Promised Two Hats!

Now November broods fitfully in that over-cast, quiet chill of season which points out winter's approach. Or again in fall-sunlight, pale and brittle, though one may find therein, nice reflections of the summery days past. We look back to their charms with some longing... and ahead beyond the frosty beautiful winter to the warming spring days.

These mornings when the twilight lifts, there is sometimes a rim of frost on the cover of the nearer spillway on the dam below. And even though the cattle and horses leave their night-shelters of stable or grove to resume their grazing, the fields are not like summer's but faded and forlorn.

The ravens that home in our woodlot, and excursion from their throaty croaks seem to fit in well with the somewhat sombre scene. And yet, there is a certain beauty to be found in the shadings if meadow and tree that blend into an attractive picture of the season to make quiet and peaceful pastorals which indicate the passing of the year.

On these farms of the name there remains yet field-work to be done before they can be given over to winter. The plowing which forms the pattern of next year's hopes, is about complete. Here are the grainlands, the fields to be seeded down, the potato and root-land, red or furrows turned to the sky. All is plowed except that which will be bared when the task of clearing up the debris of this and that ancient fence bottom and hedgerow, which now provides the farmers with active busy hours, is at length done.

"I see", James remarked to the younger farmer, when he came by to stop a minute after breakfast today "the last of the (pipils) pellets have been fed. I guess."

"Yes", the younger farmer nodded. "I was thinking so too; we should perhaps slip to town this morning for some. The weather—well, we can't depend on it now."

"And it wouldn't do to be out of them", James offered. "Not when they are doing so well. I never saw jitters do better. They've come to eat at the creeps since they were quite young—and done well."

So, snug between the two, we also excursions with them off into this Monday morning... to buy those odds and ends of items that the housewife, as James declares when we go on such a safari, "thinks she needs!" To window-shop (hastily), and in the sight of glossy fir trees being set in place in certain stores, to note the nearness of Christmas.

"Now just a minute" we said arresting James' brisk steps in a store as we were drawn naturally to stop by a millinery display.

"Ellen," he offered with some suspicion, "never mind dawdling over any silly buyings today! Besides," he added "what would you want with another hat? You have more now than you'll ever wear out! Make haste get whatever else you need and let's get home to the farm-work. We may not get another day so open this year."

A saleslady chuckled. We did too, if a bit ruefully.

"I'll buy her two," he grinned at her, "when the frost has finally settled in!"

And November moved on, into the westerly days.

Until tomorrow — — — Diary, Good-night.
