

MISCELLANY.

It is eminently proper that popular opinion should, at all times support penal legislation in the matter of correcting offences against public probity. But it is clear that the great bulk of the people are not easily moved and at times condone breaches of public rectitude which again they punish with the utmost rigour; they are upright by sudden fits and starts, and not as they should be uniformly steady and temperately. Evidently the electorate is in one of its careless moods and see in the excesses of the Liberal party only the pranks and outbreaks of a wayward child whom they idolize. But the reaction must come, it will be sudden, it will be destructive, and the Liberal party after the convulsion will be as completely demoralized as its namesake of Great Britain.

Some curious circumstances are remarked in regard to the result of the election. Many of the "free and independent electors," who before the seventh, were undecided as to which constant to shout for, are now cheering for the big Liberal fellow but must again become indifferent if they hope to get a consideration on the 14th. A sentiment of hopeless resignation has taken possession of the place-seeking Conservative, and one in the intensity of his despair was heard to remark, "the country is going to the dogs, let it go." But we have faith in our country, and in our people, and as things refuse to be mismanaged long, we may rest assured that if individually we are honest and upright, we can in some measure defy misgovernment and prosper in spite of disloyalty and tariffs' talk and humbug.

Bedford is about to begin a spirited agitation for a daily mail. Milcove and some vicinial settlements will take a hand and the prospect of getting such a reasonable convenience will be among the near probabilities.

Two ballots at Bedford poll were without a mark of any kind and two were marked for both candidates. It is stated that the latter were marked by persons who had been bribed by both parties and thus attempted to square matters with their consciences. Of course, this is a fable and no satisfactory explanation can be suggested.

When passing through Milcove recently he had the pleasure of meeting an old friend in the person of Mr. James Mahar, a gentleman who has passed the psalmists utmost limit by almost a lustrum and who is yet so hale that he is able to carefully cultivate a farm of fifty acres, and handles a scythe with such dexterity that all his contemporaries are put to the blush. He is the proud possessor of a savant among dogs. This intelligent animal knows, almost before being told, his master's wishes and a case was instanced to us where the dog overheard a conversation between his master and his master's beloved partner in reference to cattle being in the turnips at once set out and drove them from the field. We can testify to the truth of this, for we know Mr. Mahar and have seen both the dog and the turrips. At some future time we may for the entertainment of your readers retell some fairy tales related to us by this entertaining old gentleman.

Have Nice Hands.

When the hands have been very badly stained, wash them first in hot water, and then rub the stains with lemon juice and saw, and apply the pumice stone. If the stains be very deep, and refuse to move after several washings, go to your druggist and ask him to make you up a lotion or wash, with oil of vitriol in its composition. This should only be done as a last resource.

A slow circulation is a great enemy to a white hand during the cold weather. For this reason it is good to rub the hands and arms gently, especially after washing, and undergarments of wool with long sleeves should be worn.

However white a hand may be, its appearance is utterly spoiled if the nails do not receive proper attention. They should be filed every day, and cleaned every time the hands are washed. If the scarfs in be pushed gently down, have nails all out put in an appearance, but if they do, on no account bite or pull them off; a sharp pair of scissors must be used for the purpose. The tips of the fingers should be pressed between the thumb and finger upwards to give them a good shape.

A beautiful woman knows not her charms, therefore is she beautiful, more so than the colours of the sea.

...LARGE DRY GOODS HOUSE CLOSES DOWN FOR ONE = = MONTH = =

TO THE PUBLIC.

The Always Busy Store needs more room and increased facilities for growing business. The attractions will necessitate the closing of the store for at least one month. We have no place to store the goods, so are obliged to make a clean sweep sale.

Pulling Down and Building Up

The store front has to come out, all the plaster has to come down, all partitions, stairways, counters and shelving have to be removed. A modern, up-to-date store that will not only be a credit to ourselves, but to the city, will be the result.

We ask you one and all to make this sale a grand success. The stock is well known as the most up-to-date and cleanest in the province.
