

MEMORIAL STARTS ROW

CHOBHAM, England (Reuters)—The rural harmony of this little village near London has been shattered by a thorny theological question: Has a dog a soul.

The row started when an accountant erected a £90 (£270) cross in the local cemetery over the grave of his great Dane Aristotle.

It bore the inscription: "Here lies as noble a dog as ever walked. Until we meet again, dear fellow."

Since then the cross has been cracked, broken and removed in separate outbreaks of vandalism. The cemetery trustee has received 12 anonymous letters saying it is sacrilegious to mark a dog's grave with a cross.

A London lawyer, who wants to put a similar marker on the grave of his three-year-old Labrador retriever, has added fuel to the fire by saying: "A dog can be just as much a Christian as some humans."

Rev. Oswald Roney Acworth, Anglican vicar of Chobham, ruled: "A dog cannot be a Christian unless it has been baptized. I cannot imagine any vicar baptizing a dog. Just how stupid can animal-lovers get?"

But the battle rages on. A notice posted outside the cemetery asked villagers whether they had any objections to crosses on pets' graves.

By today 24 had signed "Yes" and 15 "no."

Better Relations Mutual Desire

JAKARTA (AP)—President Sukarno and U.S. presidential envoy, Ellsworth Bunker, have called for mutual efforts to minimize differences that have strained relations between the United States and Indonesia.

They issued the appeal after a 2 1/2-hour talk and luncheon at Sukarno's presidential palace in Jakarta. It was his second meeting since Bunker arrived last Wednesday to explore reasons for the low state of relations between the two countries. Bunker and Sukarno will meet again Friday. In agreeing to the meeting, Sukarno ignored Communist demands that Bunker leave at once.

After Sunday's session, Foreign Minister Subandrio issued a statement for Sukarno. He told reporters "even if we cannot agree on all specifications of items that have strained relations 'we should minimize the irritation on both sides.'"

MINIMIZE DIFFERENCES Bunker, who is standing next to Subandrio, said: "We are trying to minimize the differences."

Subandrio did not specify what the two sides disagreed on but said, without elaboration, "we have discussed acute problems such as Malaysia and Viet Nam."

Indonesia has objected to U.S. support for Malaysia, which Sukarno has vowed to crush, and has demanded that the United States withdraw from South Viet Nam.

Although Bunker was welcomed by the Indonesian government, the Indonesian Communists during the past two days have launched a "to hell with Bunker" campaign and charged that Bunker's mission "could not but be interpreted as an effort at making an excuse to intensify American war policy in the area."
