Opening lead—Jack of hearts. Life at the bridge table would be much more comfortable for declarer if each hand that came along turned out to be a pianola. But the declarer, in the normal course of events, will find himself in many contracts that are difficult, if not impossible, to make, and all he can do in such cases is exercise his best efforts under the circumstances.

South found himself in a dubious three notrump contract. Fortunately, he got a heart lead which he won with the queen. With seven sure tricks in sight, it was by no means remote that the hand would be made.

All he needed was a normal diamond break to produce trick number eight, and a successful club finesse for number nine. So he led a diamond to the queen and then cashed the ace. East showed out and one of South's potential winners disappeared.

All was not yet lost, however. There was a chance the clubs would be favorably divided. Abandoning diamonds, declarer led a club and finessed the queen. When it held, South was back in business. He led the ace of clubs, everybody following. He then played another club, hoping the suit would break 3-3, but the hope did not materialize.

East cashed the K-J and shifted to the queen of spades (a fatal error). South ducked. West, by this time, was down to K-7 of spades, K-10 of hearts, and J-9 of diamonds. West also ducked the spade. He was dead but he didn't know it.

East led another spade and South took the ace. It was then a comparatively simple matter for declarer to lead a heart to the king. West had to return a diamond, and from his J-9 into declarer's K-10, and South made three notrump in the hard-fought struggle.

If East had returned a heart instead of a spade, after cashing his clubs, no endplay would have been possible, and South would have gone down. In bridge, though, all favors are gratefully received.

Nehru Cites Conditions For Parley With China

By HENRY BRADSHAW
 NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru says the Chinese Communists must evacuate outposts they have seized on the Indian side of the Tibetan border before he will discuss the frontier dispute with Peking.

Nehru declared in a letter to Communist China's Premier Chou En-lai made public Sunday: "No discussion can be fruitful unless the outposts on the Indian side of the traditional frontier now held by Chinese forces are first evacuated by them and further threats and intimidations cease."

He added in a 7,200-word letter Sept. 26 that any discussion of minor disputes about border lineation must be based on the condition that the frontier is generally beyond dispute, pegged to a line drawn in 1914 by a British official named McMahon.

REPLY TO CHOU
 He was replying to a Sept. 8 letter from Chou which accused India of violating Chinese borders. Chou suggested "friendly negotiations" could begin if India took steps to stop "trespassing."

Nehru replied: "I entirely disagree with your view that the tense situation that has arisen on the border has been caused by India's trespassing and provocation. In fact... it is the Chinese who have trespassed into Indian territory across the traditional border at a number of places in recent years."

Going down Chou's points one by one, Nehru rejected all his claims to territory. In Parliament three weeks ago, Nehru said he would yield a few miles of territory to the Chinese if it were found that Indian outposts had been placed across the border. But now he says there can be no question of withdrawing an Indian personnel...

STIFF STAND
 Nehru's firm recitation of where the border lies seemed to leave little room even to negotiate what he called border disputes, as distinct from the larger Chinese claims, which he has rejected outright.

Nehru denied Chinese charges that Indians had crossed the frontier to help Tibetan rebels. He said that at one point Indian troops withdrew from an area they learned they had accidentally crossed the line.

He added India has refrained from trying to recapture Longju outposts, which India says is on her side of the border. Chinese troops forced Indians from Longju late in August, killing one Indian in a brief battle.

CNESORS' OWN PLAY
 DUBLIN (Reuters)—Dominic Behan, 35-year-old brother of controversial, drinking Irish playwright Brendan Behan, voluntarily censored some lines from one of his own plays—"at the request of my mother." Dominic, himself a writer and broadcaster, was heckled when his play Posterity be Damned opened at the Gaiety Theatre here. Said a spokesman for the theatre: "Certain usages of Jesus' name to which objection was taken will be deleted."
