

A Wise Girl.

"You see how it is, my dear," he said, taking her a-ft hand, which had never done very hard work, and patting it reassuringly: "I'm poor—only a thousand a year, dear—and we shall have a struggle to get along at first—"

"I don't mind that in the least," she interrupted stoutly, rubbing her cheek softly against his hand.

"And," he pursued, graciously having allowed her interruption, "we shall have to come down to strict economy, but if you can only manage as my mother does, we shall pull through nicely."

"And how does your mother manage, dear?" she asked, smiling—but very happily—at the notion of the mother-in-law cropping out already.

"I don't know," replied the lover, radiantly; "but she always manages to have everything neat and cheerful, and something delicious to eat—and she does it all herself, you know! So that we always get along beautifully, and make both ends meet, and father and I still have plenty of spending money. You see, when a woman is always hiring her laundry work done, and her gowns and bonnets made, and her scrubbing and stove blacking done, and all that sort of thing—why it just walks into a man's income and takes his breath away."

The young woman looked for a moment as if her breath was also inclined for a vacation; but she wisely concealed her dismay, and, being one of the stout-hearted of the earth, she determined to learn a few things of John's mother, and so went to her for a long visit the next day. Upon the termination of this visit, one fine morning John received, to his blank amazement, a little package containing his engagement ring, accompanied by the following letter:

"I have learned how your mother 'manages,' and I am going to explain it to you, I find that she is a wife, a mother, a house-keeper, a business manager, a hired girl, a laundress, a seamstress, a mender and patcher, a dairy maid, a cook, a nurse, a kitchen gardener, and a general slave for a family of five. She works from five in the morning until ten at night; and I almost wept when I kissed her hand, it was so hard and wrinkled, and corded, and unkindled. When I saw her polishing the stoves, carrying big buckets of water and great armfuls of wood, often splitting the latter, I asked her why John didn't do such things for her. 'John' she repeated, 'John'—and she sat down with a perfectly dazed look, as if I had asked why the angels didn't come down and scrub for her. 'Why—John'—she said in a trembling bewildered way—'he works in the office from nine until four o'clock, you know, and when he comes home he is very tired, or else—or else—he goes down-town.' Now, I have become strongly imbued with the conviction that I do not care to be so good a 'manager' as your mother. If the wife must do all sorts of drudgery, so must the husband; if she must cook, he must carry the wood; if she must scrub, he must carry the water; if she must make butter, he must also milk the cows. You have allowed your mother to do everything, and all that you have to say of her is that she is an 'excellent manager.' I do not care for such a reputation, unless my husband earned the name also; and judging from your lack of consideration for your mother, I am quite sure that you are not the man I thought you were, or one whom I should care to marry. As the son is, the husband is, is a safe and happy rule to follow."

No the letter closed, an John pondered, and he is pondering yet.
