Pope Proposes Closer Ties To Non-Christian Creeds

By BENNET M. BOLTON
VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI has opened the Vatican's doors for closer Roman Catholic relations with Judaism, Buddhism, Hinduism, Islam and all the non-Christian religions of the world. It also has named four cardinals, among them his closest unofficial aide, to help guide the pope's executives in running the Vatican Ecumenical Council. The council opens again Sept. 29 after a nine-month recess. Several Asian bishops of the Roman Catholic Church had proposed advising earlier this year that the Vatican create a secretariat for non-Christian religions to encourage an exchange of views and information. The idea was endorsed by Thomas Cardinal Tien of Taipei, Formosa. In his outline for administering the revamped Ecumenical Council, Pope Paul named as panel delegates or moderators these four cardinals: Leo Josef Suenens of Brussels, Julius

Malaysia Becomes Neighbour

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—The federation of Malaysia took its uncertain place as the world's newest nation today, greeted by apprehensive warm wishes from its friends and the enmity of its two biggest neighbours. One, the Philippines, withheld recognition; the other, Indonesia, announced it could not accept the new nation "as it is now."

President Diosdado Macapagal of the Philippines summoned to his ambassadors in Kuala Lumpur and Jakarta, Indonesia, for urgent consultations. Foreign Secretary Salvador P. Lopez was ordered back from New York. Filipino diplomats abroad were told to boycott Malaysia celebrations. A Filipino foreign ministry spokesman said, however, this action by the president did not preclude eventual recognition of Malaysia.

In Indonesia, Foreign Minister Subandrio announced disagreement with a favorable report of the United Nations on Malaysia. Subandrio met with top military and civilian leaders in an emergency session called by President Sukarno. Shortly after the Indonesian statements, Malayan Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman said he has ordered all women and children of embassy and consular staffs recalled from Malaysia. He said he was disappointed at Indonesia's apparent decision to withhold recognition from the new federation for the present.

Iran's Women Vote Tuesday For First Time
TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—In veils and in chic Western dresses, Iran's women will vote Tuesday for the first time in history. The election is revolutionary in more ways than one. The new Parliament, instead of being filled with rich industrialists and powerful land barons, will include workers, farmers, middle-class civil servants and possibly a few women. A new electoral law has decreased abuses of past elections. No longer will an Iranian be able to vote half a dozen times, and no more ballots will be cast on behalf of animals, babies or villagers who died years ago. There are, however, shobbies and connivings to the Majlis lower house of Parliament election. Determined to form a Majlis that will back its reform program, the government of Prime Minister Feroz Assadullah Alam has prevented the opposition from campaigning. Many opposition leaders are in jail, influential religious leaders are discredited, and some opposition organizations have announced they will boycott the contest.
