REALITY AND DREAM.

I can smell the scented snowflakes
Softly falling at my feet;
Hear the bees that sip the honey
From the cherry blossoms sweet.
I but shut my eyes to see them,
Orchard, meadow, brook and well;
I can hear the cattle coming
Down the lane with tinkling bell.

See the clouds go swiftly sailing,
Summer zephyrs fragrant blow,
Where the sunset and the river
Meet and fade in golden glow.
There are moss incrusted pebbles
Where the robin dips his wings
In the brook whose rippling music
Of my boyhood ever sings.

Happy boy whose careless whistle
Echoes through the vanished years;
Now a dreamer in the gloaming,
Looking through a mist of tears.
That the light and this the shadow,
Days like passing visions seem,
Till I whisper in the twilight
That the real and this the dream.

TRUE ELOQUENCE.

Its Effect Upon an Oratorical Tenderfoot From the East.

"Talkin about oratory," said Broncho Bob, "you ought to have been out to Crimson Gulch last fall, so as to hear some of the real thing."

"We have some pretty luminous specimens in congress," ventured the man who felt it incumbent on him to show a little local pride.

"Not a circumstance. I've read some of them kind of speeches. I've heard 'em too. A feller come from the east an started in to tell Crimson Gulch what it orter do. Some of the boys allowed things was gettin ruther slack, an they says anything fur a change. So they took his advice an blazed away an organized a city council."

"I see. You held an election."

"Nary. We didn't want any bloodshed. We jes' passed the word around that the city council was goin to be held an made it an open game. Everybody was there except Nevada Bill, an he didn't dare show up because he was under suspicion of sittin in a poker game with a private stock of blue chips which he had bought unbeknownst from a store in San Antonio. It wasn't long until, under the instructions of the tenderfoot, we had the city council in good shape. Only officers was allowed to wear their weapons durin the proceedin's, an nobody was barred from the debate. The first business we took up was the case of Nevada Bill. We reckoned that it wouldn't be no more than decent local pride to prevent the importation of any poker chips except by the duly recognized authorities fur said importation. Rattlesnake Pete said the only way to make the law bindin was to pervide that anybody breakin it should be shot at least once. The tenderfoot got r'iled in a minute. He jumped to his feet an got off the most long winded talk about constitutionality an the rights of citizenship an whereas an therefore that I ever heard. He talked hard, an he showed he had read books. But you orter have heard Three Finger Sam's historic reply. It jes' showed how quick a man who has the gift of genuine eloquence can end an argument. Crimson Gulch hasn't got through talkin about it yet. Three Finger Sam drawed himself up to his full height an p'inted his finger at the tenderfoot. 'I don't desire to use no harsher words than is necessary,' says he, 'but I'd like to know what you mean, you low down, lop ear jack rabbit, by comin into this town an tryin to tell us whether a man needs shootin or not. Have we got to wait for some lantern jawed coyote to come wanderin in off the prairie an tell us what's good fur us? Beware!' says Three Finger Sam, still p'intin his finger an growin more eloquent every minute. 'Beware, you bow-legged burro! Don't you think you can come here an overawe people because you wear specs. Have a care, or the fust thing you know you'll be travelin out of this town with a bunch of patriotic citizens on your trail, every one of whom is dead anxious to shoot a freckle off'n the back of your neck!' The tenderfoot didn't have another word to say, an he left to [illegible] mornin."—Washington Star.

His Good Eye.

It is a curious fact that the loss of any one of the five senses is atoned for to a considerable extent by a pronounced increase in the efficiency of the other senses. The result is sometimes astonishing.

A man who had lost the sight of both eyes trained his hearing until he could tell by the sound of his footsteps on the sidewalks, as he made his way about town, whether he was in the middle of the walk or at one side, whether he was walking past a brick or a frame house, or a fence, or open ground.

He knew in what part of the town he was, not only by his memory or sense of general direction, but by the difference in the "tones" of his footsteps, and he walked about freely, seldom running into anything or anybody.

Some one in his presence once called in question his total blindness.

"Which eye do you think I can see with?" he asked the skeptic.

"The left one, of course," was the reply. "I can see that the right one is blind."

In reply, the blind man merely opened his penknife and tapped the left eye with the little blade.

It was a glass eye.—Youth's Companion.

The Head Hunters.

In Tupuselei, in New Guinea, the houses are built on piles in the open ocean a good distance from the shore. The object of this is to protect the inhabitants against sudden attacks of the kindly head hunters, who always are on the lookout for victims, whose heads they need in their business. Other villages in this happy land are perched up in all but inaccessible trees for the same weighty reason.

Two Reasons.

"You mustn't play with Mr. Borum's hat, Bobby," said a young lady who was entertaining a caller to her small brother.

"Why mustn't I?" asked the youngster.

"Because you might break it," replied his sister, "and, besides, he will want it shortly."

Only One More Month

Our celery will only hold out about one month. Some of the wise ones are ordering a quantity to be kept in reserve for them. We have held on to the best for the last (the famous English Red Celery.) In this respect we resemble children who keep the most dainty part of their lunch to the last and at the rate it is going the time will soon come when there will not even be a last. The moral to the above is quite plain; no need to read between the lines it is enjoy it while it lasts.

We also have Hubbard Squash, Cape Cod and Island Cranberries, Spanish & Canadian onions, Brussells sprouts, red & white cabbage, carrots, beets, parsnips, turnips, beans, peas, parsley, etc.
