

Canada To Get Small Job On U.S. Fighter

WASHINGTON (CP)—A small part of the American war effort will be a technical flight known as T-7, which will be a contract with the Canadian sub-contract deal with parts of the tail-section.

U.S. Air Secretary Eugene Tamm told Congressional investigators last week that a major part of the General Dynamics Corporation contract will go to Canadian Limited of Montreal, a subsidiary of the prime U.S. contractor.

General Dynamics, in association with Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corporation of New York, will produce 25 of the experimental planes at a cost of more than $600,000,000. Canada will do a small part of this production.
