put up a school and a chapel." "Did you sell it?" said his friend. "Of course not," rejoined the squire. "Well, I'm sorry for you," said the friend; "you're a gone man, and may just as well get out." "How so?" asked the squire. "Do you know what these fellows will do?" said the friend, "they will hold a big prayer meeting, and pray to the Lord to 'remove every obstacle out of the way, and then you'll see what will happen.' I'm sorry for you!" "Is that so?" said the squire, "well, they can get the land next week. And they got it! I am credibly informed that Mr. Shephard Allen, the district and the people well, and if that gentleman 'shepherded' them, I am willing to take the story without even the proverbial grain of salt.

France helped Russia to raise the Chinese to thwart England, but after all the latter is a winner in the game. The Montreal Witness says: "It is a curious comment on all this that after all the books had to be paid by a transfer in the books of the Bank of England, and it is probable that the loan had to be really placed in London. In financial transactions it is general, the party who has the money makes the chief part of the profit. The money will be spent in England, too. Japan is devoting the greater part of it to the strengthening of her navy, and has ordered men-of-war from the British. Russia is compelled to strengthen her fleet so as to hold her own in the Pacific power that has arisen, and she, too, has placed and is placing orders for men-of-war, torpedo boats and torpedo catchers in England. The consequence is that the British shipbuilders are working night and day in their efforts to keep up with the demand. British workmen are benefited. The Belfast and Clyde shipbuilders who struck for a big advance in wages have been successful in their demands. It is probably the fact that the nations see that Great Britain somehow gets the lion's share of the profits of most international struggles, whether diplomatic or military, that makes most of them enviously opposed to her.

ITEMS FROM SUMMERSIDE.

Active preparations are being made by the Sisters of St. Mary's Academy for a Christmas Tree to be held in Market Hall on the 11th and 12th inst.
The sch. Laurence, Harding master, is being loaded at Holman's wharf for Provincial markets, by R. T. Holman.
D. Rogers & Son are loading the sch. Unas at Queen's wharf with produce for the Halifax market.

Large shipments of lambs are being made by the ss. Northumberland for the St. John's market.

MARRIAGE BELLS.—We hasten to felicitate Mr. E. T. Carboneil, of the Prince Edward Islander, upon the auspicious event which took place yesterday afternoon at the residence of Rev. D. Sutherland. The bride, who is a daughter of Captain Neil McDougall, of this city, was becomingly attired in a handsome tailor-made suit of English slate broad cloth, trimmed with h. tur. The bride-maid, Miss Mrs. Carboneil, was also becomingly attired in a suit of purple material. Mr. Harry Jenkins acted as groomsmen. A reception and supper took place last evening at the groom's residence, Hillsborough Street. Mr. and Mrs. Carboneil have the EXAMINER'S best wishes for a happy wedded life.

HOME FOR INTERMENT.—The body of Daniel F. Nicholson, who died at Hot Springs, Ark., lately, arrived here last evening and was this afternoon taken to Elton for interment. The Oddfellows took charge of the remains, the deceased being a member of that order, and the funeral this afternoon was under their auspices.

Mr. W. J. Allen, of Austin, Pa., accompanied the body to Charlottetown. The deceased was a son of Hon. James Nicholson, Elton, and was a young man of sterling character. It seems that Mr. Nicholson, who has been working at Austin for some time past, was sent to Hot Springs on business by his employers. He was not very well when he left Austin, and shortly after reaching Hot Springs he was stricken with intermittent fever, of which he died. He was ill about ten days.

Do not dally with rheumatism. Get rid of it at once by purifying the blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla. Be sure to get Hood's.

POINT PAIR BOAT.—We presumed that the person who gave the Guardian its information respecting the Point Pair boat was in possession of all the facts. But as the Guardian pleads ignorance in respect to a material fact, and claims to have told all it knew about the matter, we must accept its statement.

As regards the proposed line of fast steamers between England and Canada, Mr. Chamberlain will shortly see Mr. Cook, the promoter of the scheme. It is not considered likely that the imperial government will give a direct money subsidy, but it will give the line the carriage of a portion of the mails on paying terms.

Lord Salisbury had better hurry up with the appointment of a laureate, or the poet may not be able to get his verses ready in time. But doubtless everyone of the aspirants has a marriage song up his sleeve, ready to be produced at the word of command.

At Venice, when anyone dies, it is a custom to fix a placard on the usual dead person's house, as well as in the neighboring streets, as a sort of public notice, stating his name, age, place of birth, and the illness of which he died, affirming also that he received the body, and requesting a good Christian, and requesting the prayers of the faithful.

The Earl of Strafford, presided recently over the annual meeting of the Home of Rest for Horses. He said that those who had horses, such as omnibus drivers, cab drivers, and car men, could send them to the Home for a few weeks' rest and care when they found the animals suffering from temporary lameness or other complaints. The Home also provided medicines for poor persons for temporary use while their own were resting, and was a suitable asylum for old favorites.

D. A. BRUCE, Leading Merchant Tailor. The best work can only be done when the bodily health is good, because the body reacts upon the mind, and a mental inertia supervenes when the body is enfeebled. To have the body in a strong, healthy, buoyant state use Wilson's 'Iguvalis' Port Wine, which upon the first symptoms of debility, loss of appetite, and general weakness, should be regularly taken. And then in a few days, desirable for its own sake as a beverage, being pleasant, stimulating, and mellow. Its great advantage to the invalid is that it makes blood which is so sadly needed, and this gives a new vitality to the whole system. It is a tonic, an incomparable brace, and it is at the same time a rare old wine of exquisite bouquet.
