Depletion of Soil Fertility In P.E.I.

OTTAWA, Sept. 30—Since potatoes have become the main commercial crop in Prince Edward Island there has been a tendency to depend almost entirely on commercial fertilizer as a source of fertility without the use of organic amendments, particularly manure, according to G. W. Boswell, agronomist, Charlottetown Experimental Station. Observations over a period of years indicate that this practice has resulted in deterioration of the fertility of the soils in many parts of the Province, owing to depletion of organic matter content. Among the remedies advocated are manure, composts and green manure crops. Where farmers carry on mixed farming with a large number of livestock, manure is relatively plentiful and the soil fertility is usually maintained. However, farmers who specialize in potato growing often have little or no manure and green manure crops and composts, prepared from old hay, straw, potato vines, together with some chemical fertilizer to assist in decomposition, can be used to advantage.

A project was conducted at the Charlottetown Station during the past 25 years where manure versus chemical fertilizer were compared. The yield of potatoes grown in a three-year rotation on chemically fertilized plots was 20 per cent below that on manured plots, and during the past few years the barley crop on the fertilized plots has been practically a failure. Where potatoes were grown continuously the fertilizer yielded 40 per cent less than the manured plots. Also during the 25 years the continuous block produced 20 per cent less potatoes than the rotation. Therefore, advises Mr. Boswell, farmers who specialize in potatoes should not overlook the fact that a rotation of crops should be used, if at all possible, to conserve humus and help maintain fertility. More important is the fact that plots which received a combination of manure and a complete fertilizer gave yields almost equal to the plots receiving manure alone, and in recent years they are outyielding the manure plots. Therefore farmers with a limited amount of manure should apply it to about twice the area and supplement it with a complete fertilizer so the beneficial effects of manure would be spread over more of the farm than when manure alone is applied.

O'Brien, an old resident here, recalls the days of threshing with a flail, nothing more than a stick to beat the heads of the grain, and clean it in the wind. Many changes he recalls in a lifetime.

Kinross Man Injured In Road Accident

Mr. Harold Behm, of Kinross, was rushed to the P.E. Island Hospital by Cutcliffe ambulance at 8:15 last evening to be treated for injuries received as a result of an accident just east of Pownal on the Montague highway at about 7:30 last evening. Cut on the face and possibly a broken nose, was the extent of the injuries reported until a more thorough examination is possible.

The injured man was travelling east in a '36 Ford car when a collision occurred between his vehicle and a heavy army truck, coming towards the city. The Ford had the driver's side running board slacked off completely, a front wheel broken clear of the axle and the dash pushed in almost to the back of the driver's position, ending up in the ditch.

The left front of the truck was badly damaged but remained upright across the pavement. There were no other casualties in either car. The injured man was resting comfortably at a late hour last night.

Catholic News Editor At China Peace Conference

MONTREAL, Sept. 30—(CP)—A hard-hitting Roman Catholic newspaper editor is among a dozen Canadians attending a Communist-sponsored peace conference in Red China.

The man is Gerard Filion, 43, who directs Le Devoir, Montreal daily which guides nationalist opinion and promotes Roman Catholic social doctrine in Quebec Province.

Mr. Filion's presence at Peiping has aroused interest since he is the first newspaper man without Communist attachment to enter Communist-run China in many months.

He set out from Montreal by air Sept. 11 bound for Paris and Prague. He carried a visa for entry into Czechoslovakia, and at Prague planned to get visas for travel to Moscow and Peiping.

Andre Laurendeau, assistant editor of Le Devoir, said today Mr. Filion accepted an invitation to the Asian Peace Conference on condition he would be considered a reporter, uncommitted to any movement or group.

Mr. Laurendeau said Mr. Filion set out on the spur of the moment and estimated he would be away six weeks.

On a European trip in 1950, Mr. Filion commented himself with note-taking and published his observations only on his return to Montreal. Mr. Laurendeau said he thought the same plan would apply this time.

If he is allowed any freedom to observe conditions in China and Russia, Mr. Filion will give his readers a frank visitor's look at life in Communist China and Russia.

His reports are unlikely to be Communist-influenced since the soft-speaking, blunt-writing editor is accustomed to examining situations from an independent viewpoint.

The paper of which he is editor was founded by an independent thinker, the late Henri Bourassa, and has a 42-year-old tradition of expressing itself independently of what thoughts or ideas are popular in current opinion.

Earlier this year Mr. Filion was a winner of one of Canada's National Newspaper Awards for his editorial-writing in 1951.

Top Brass Welcome For 175 Canadians

VANCOUVER, Sept. 30 —(CP)—It was a top brass welcome for 175 Canadians who returned to their homeland from Korea last night.

The men were delayed in disembarking from an American troopship in Seattle and had only a few hours to catch their train in Vancouver for the eastward journey home.

Squads of police cars with sirens screaming escorted the five bus loads of Canadians as they sped north from Seattle.

Pte. Michael Joseph, a 21-year-old Newfoundland on his way home after 13 months' service with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, commented: "People must have thought we were some top brass."

Another Newfoundland, Pte. Gerald Drake, 21, who spent more than a year in Korea, said he was "kind of glad" to be delayed.

"The excitement with all the police escorts and sirens helps a guy a bit to forget all that shooting and being shot at."

Southern U. S. Coal Producers Bow To Lewis

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 — (AP)—Most Southern United States soft coal producers bowed today to John L. Lewis' contract demands but a few risked a strike tomorrow by turning him down.

With the old agreement expiring at midnight tonight, the bulk of the southern producers reluctantly agreed to strike along with the contract which Union Leader Lewis previously negotiated with the rest of the bituminous industry. It calls, among other things, for a pay increase of $1.90 a day.

With the south signed up, or most of it, the major problem facing Lewis is getting the new

Nine months later, Willie met Tommy Collins and was a TKO victim in six.

Pep will weigh 128 against Savoie's 132.

Savoie, a rough battler is shooting for a shot at the winner of the Oct. 15 title bout here between lightweight champion Lauro Salas and Jimmy Carter.
